Drapeau Home Bombed

BOMB - DAMAGED Drapeau home is surveyed (above) by Montreal mayor. His home, in city's east end, was rocked by bomb at about 5:15 a.m. Mayor Drapeau was at his newly - opened restaurant when the blast occurred and his wife and son, asleep in the house, were not injured. Neighbors (below) gathered to view the damage. (CP Wirephoto.)

MONTREAL (CP) — A powerful bomb, estimated by police to have the equivalent power of 10 sticks of dynamite, exploded at the east-end Rosemount home of Mayor Jean Drapeau early today.

Mrs. Drapeau and her 21-year-old son Michel, asleep upstairs in the two-storey residence at the time, were not injured by the blast that shattered windows two streets away.

Mayor Drapeau was at his restaurant, Le Vaisseau d'Or—The Golden Vessel—when the bomb exploded about 5:15 a.m. He reached home shortly after 6 a.m. and immediately asked if anyone was hurt.

The bomb shattered the rear of the grey stucco and wood-trimmed dwelling, built 20 years ago at a cost of $14,000. Additions had been made to the house on rue des Plaines since.

The force of the blast tore a gaping hole in the foundation and broke every window of the house.

The mayor told reporters the house appeared to be a total loss. Walls were split, the foundation cracked and floors had heaved, he said, and his preliminary estimate was that the house would have to be rebuilt.

Brandt Makes Bid To Lead Germany

Mark Freed Tuesday

BONN (CP) — The outgoing coalition government of Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger today announced it will turn its currency free on the markets Tuesday to find a supply-and-demand price level.

The move came after a new wave of speculative demand hit foreign exchange markets this morning and forced a hasty closing of exchanges, which opened briefly after a Thursday-Friday pre-election shutdown.

The unprecedented move to allow a free market price would at least temporarily have an effect similar to upward revaluation of the mark, since strong demand for the West German currency recently forced the central bank to sell marks to keep down the price.

But a government spokesman declined to comment when asked whether the move was a revaluation.

Formally, the announcement said the West German government has told the central bank to stop intervening in the market for the time being and let a free market establish the price.

The mechanism by which nations keep the level of the currencies fixed within narrow limits is the action of their central banks, which move in to either buy or sell enough of the currency to keep the price between fixed floor and ceiling prices.

SEE THREE CHOICES

Central bank sources said the move to turn the mark loose on the exchange markets might be followed by any of three alternatives:

—Formal revaluation to a new fixed parity.

—A "crawling peg" system in which minor adjustments of the parity value would take place at regular intervals.

—A return to the old exchange rate, accompanied by other economic moves to stop inflation, dampen an economic boom and reduce the balance-of-payments surplus.

In Washington, Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer of the International Monetary Fund said the West Germans had promised to resume maintaining the mark's value as soon as possible.

He said the German decision was taken to "avoid possible pressures on the international monetary system."

The decision to let the mark float free was made at a special post-election session of the Christian Democrat-Social Democrat coalition government.

The two parties face a parting of the ways some time in the next three weeks because of big gains by the Social Democrats in Sunday's national election.

Many observers expect the Social Democrats to head a new coalition with the free Democrats, a small liberal group which holds the balance of power.

SPECULATION SOARS

The prospect of a Social Democrat-led government produced the new wave of speculative demand for the mark when exchanges opened briefly this morning.

West Germany has been subject for several years to pressure to increase the international exchange value of its currency in order to dampen an economic boom and keep West German exports from throwing international book-keeping further out of balance.

'Neo-Nazis' Strike Out

Nearly 1,500,000 West Germans voted Sunday for the NPD, but the party failed to get the 5 per cent of the poll necessary to qualify for representation in the Bundestag (lower house).

Party leader Adolf von Thadden suffered a resounding personal defeat in Bonn, where he polled only 3.5 per cent of the vote.

New Coalition Eyed in Bonn

BONN (CP)—West Germany's Social Democratic party said today it plans to form a governing coalition with a liberal Free Democratic party, a move that would make Foreign Minister Willy Brandt the country's next chancellor.

The Social Democrats issued a statement saying Brandt had decided to ask the Free Democrats to form a coalition.

20-Year Rule May End

After Sunday's general election, the two parties have a 12-man majority in the next Bundestag (lower house).

A coalition between the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats would end the 20-year Christian Democratic domination of West German politics that began when the federal republic was formed in 1949.

There was no word immediately from the Free Democrats.

Theoretically they could still form a coalition with the Christian Democrats, but leaders of the Free Democrats indicated before the election they would prefer sharing a coalition with the Social Democrats.

The statement by Brandt's party this morning said federal President Gustav Heinemann had been informed that the Social Democrats plan to try forming a government with the Free Democrats.

Heinemann, himself a Social Democrat elected president in March, is the person who will officially submit the name of the next chancellor to the Bundestag for approval.

British Pick Brandt

In Britain, newspapers were betting today that Brandt would succeed Kiesinger as a result of the elections.

The Sun headlined its election story, "Brandt Poised to Snatch Victory." The Daily Mail's banner said "Midnight Poll Drama: Brandt to Make Bid for Power." The Daily Express proclaimed "Brandt Bounces Back."

The old government will resign Oct. 20.

Brandt's Social Democrats were the only party to gain in Sunday's elections, the most dramatic since the federal republic was formed 20 years ago.

If Brandt is successful, it would be the first German government in 39 years to be headed by Social Democrats as the major partner of the coalition.

The Social Democratic party won 42.7 per cent of the vote—a gain of 3.4-per-cent since the 1965 election. The Christian Democrats won 46.1 per cent—a loss of 1.5 per cent.

Both parties wooed Walter Scheel's small Free Democratic party which captured 5.8 per cent of the vote, compared with 9.5 per cent in the last election. The Free Democrats now have 30 seats in the 496-seat Bundestag.

If Scheel agrees to form a coalition with Brandt, the two parties could outvote the Christian Democrats 254 to 242 in the Bundestag.

Kiesinger declared himself satisfied with the outcome, but declined comment on coalition possibilities.

The Social Democrats bounced back from a series of early computer forecasts predicting a Christian Democrat victory to finish with 22 more seats than in the old Bundestag. The Christian Democrats dropped three seats and the Free Democrats lost 19.

VICTORIANS HEMMED IN?

Starting to feel a little hemmed in?

It's getting crowded down here at the bottom of Vancouver Island.

Not so bad as west-end Vancouver's high-rise jungle where people live 60 to the acre — in Victoria, the population density is only 12 per acre, in Oak Bay seven.

A planner says 30,000 acres are available for development in the capital region.

If only high-rises are built, only 1,000 of these acres will be needed to soak up population growth by 1981.

If, however, the whole region develops as Gordon Head is developing, 10,000 acres will be needed by 1981.

Or if it is cut into one and 1½-acre lots, all 30,000 acres will be gone before 1981.

1981 is only 11 years, three months away.

UN 'Sideshow' Danger Scored

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp warned today that the 126-member United Nations is in danger of drowning in a "sea of words". He added that if this and other institutional problems are not solved the UN will become a "sideshow on the international scene, its activities brushed aside as irrelevant."

In a policy speech before the General Assembly, Sharp said the institutional problems are compounded by the fact that there is something like a tacit conspiracy by all members to pretend the problems do not exist.

Sharp called on all UN members to "lift our eyes from the narrow concerns of transient political advantage and national self-interest to a broader horizon that encompasses the whole family of man."

He said that if the 126 members do that they will fulfil the major UN tasks of keeping the peace and improving conditions of life on earth.

Sharp, whose speech ended a round of consultations with foreign ministers of more than 15 countries, made no mention of China and only passing reference to Biafra.

He called on the United States and the Soviet Union to start bilateral talks on the reduction of strategic nuclear weapons immediately, saying that these talks could prove the turning point of history.

And he, in effect, called on some powers to agree to limit their sovereignty to permit consultations on establishment of peacekeeping forces in areas of crisis to progress.

COMMONWEALTH OFFICER SOUGHT

The provincial government has launched extradition proceedings against a second officer of the Commonwealth group of companies, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

Mr. Peterson said the proceedings are against Cornelius G. Polvliet, a former Commonwealth vice-president and treasurer, arrested in Bakersfield, Calif. The other officer is A. Duncan Crux, who is in Nassau.

Nuclear Test Protests Echo Around Pacific

Times News Services

Thursday is M-day for Amichitka Island in the Aleutians and a growing wave of fear and indignation is rolling into Washington from Pacific rim areas.

At 3 p.m. PDT Thursday the United States Atomic Energy Commission has scheduled an underground atomic weapons-testing explosion called Milrow.

The device will have a power of about one million tons of TNT.

Because the island is in one of the most earthquake-prone areas in the world, Hawaiians, Alaskans, Japanese and Canadians fear the blast may trigger an earthquake and possibly a tidal wave.

Residents of Port Alberni and the Cowichan Valley have sent telegrams to President Nixon protesting the atomic test.

A group of Hawaiian legislators in Anchorage for an AEC briefing, have requested a 30-day postponement of the test, pending further study.

Official protests have been sent by the governments of Canada and Japan.

NO GUARANTEE

AEC seismologists insist the danger of a quake and tidal wave are minimal but they cannot guarantee anything.

Sunday Japanese seismologists said the test does not appear to involve a nuclear device big enough to set off a tidal wave.

But residents of Port Alberni, remembering the 1964 series of tidal waves set off by the Alaska earthquake, are not reassured.

Acting mayor George McKnight has sent a personal letter to President Nixon calling for "a halt to this madness."

"I appeal to you on behalf of all who live on the Pacific Ocean rim, be they Canadians, Americans, Japanese, Russians or any others, in their millions, to put a stop to this plan," he said.

In Duncan The Cowichan Valley Unitarian Fellowship has wired a plea to Nixon to stop all nuclear testing.

Alaskan Oil Find Changing History

By AB KENT

Alaskan petroleum resources have potential to change the course of history, a state representative said today on behalf of Gov. Keith H. Miller.

Thomas K. Downes, commissioner of Alaska's department of administration, spoke at luncheon to delegates attending Pacific Northwest Trade Association in its fall general conference at the Empress Hotel.

Miller, expected Sunday night to be one of the principal speakers, cancelled his appearance at the last minute to attend a special meeting of state governors called by President Nixon at Chicago.

DISCUSS INFLATION

The Chicago meeting to discuss the problem of inflation was expected to last at least until Tuesday.

Commissioner Downes, whose department is responsible for financial and borrowing matters as an interdepartmental service agency, said the $900 million received by the state in a sale of oil lease rights at the beginning of September is subject of a special study.

To indicate the vast potential offered by even the interim investment of the money, Downes said at 7½-per-cent interest the $900 million raises $67.5 million a year additional revenue.

This is equal to $187,500 a day, $7,800 an hour, $130 a minute or $2.16 a second, in round figures, he said.

"Everywhere I go the question is asked, 'What's going on in Alaska? What's all the excitement about?'" Downes quoted from the governor's text.

"What's happening in Alaska is oil. On the north slope, at the very edge of the continent, we have a single field that is quite possibly the largest deposit of oil in the world."

"We believe the location and quantities of the oil give the northland the potential to change significantly the course of history. We're not just bragging either."

"We've got $900 million to prove that the oil companies meant business when they considered our oil potential."

The text said other known and suspected deposits of oil make Alaska a probable storehouse for years to come, which with the petrochemical industry will attribute much of the success of the state.

The governor also rated mineral wealth and development highly, including silver, lead, coal, copper, asbestos and iron.

SURPLUS DOUBLED

Foreign trade has more than doubled the export surplus of Alaska; development of roads, human resources, a cross-state oil pipeline, marine transportation and conservation programs are also high on the list of priorities.

Alaskans, said the text, "do not intend to waste their vast (conservation) heritage. They do not intend to see it mindlessly exploited and spoiled, nor extracted solely for the purposes of a present generation."

Two study papers given in the morning session dealt with the future of air transportation, by H. A. Carter, of the Boeing Company, Seattle, and with travel research and regional tourist development, by Edward S. Bryant, Alberta government director of tourism.

How to go about practical tourist research was outlined by Bryant, but unless the information is used the effort is wasted, he cautioned.

A principal speaker lined up for Tuesday is unable to be present, a conference official said. He is Robert Bonner, vice-president MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., who was to have dealt with trade in the Pacific northwest.

ist National Democratic party, which some critics have called ned-Nazi.

The National Democrats, called the NPD, received 4.3 per cent of the vote. They needed five per cent to seat deputies in the Bundestag.

Kiesinger and Brandt both hailed the shutout of the NPD.

The record turnout of 32,900,000 voters—86.8 per cent of those eligible—put the five per-cent hurdle beyond the reach of the NPD. They received 1,400,000 votes and would have had to get 1,600,000 to qualify.

A coalition between the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats probably would adopt a more flexible policy toward East Germany and the rest of the Soviet bloc than the Kiesinger-led government.

On domestic issues, the two parties are further apart.

The Free Democrats, firmly committed to free enterprise, are opposed to the Social Democrat's program to give unions a key voice in the policies of industrial corporations.

If the Social Democrats head the government, it will be for the first time since Hermann Mueller was chancellor of the Weimar Republic 39 years ago.

are all responsible for how we live and what we have not done to prevent something dreadful," said spokesman Mrs. Ralph Morton of Duncan.

READERS WRITE IN

The Alberni Valley Times, a twice-weekly newspaper, sent a telegram, following a write-in campaign, telling Mr. Nixon the test was "trying the patience" of residents.

"The faith of your northern neighbors in your great nation is being tested," said the telegram. "Please show us your recognition of their fears by cancelling the test."

Civil defence headquarters for British Columbia, in Victoria, has been put on "double alert for Thursday, just in case."

Co-ordinator John Erb said a Pacific-wide tidal wave and earthquake warning system has been in operation since 1964.

"I'm no expert but so far I've seen nothing to throw doubt on the contention by U.S. experts connected with the test that the underground explosion will come off safely," he said.

Victoria's Voice of Women chapter is also protesting the blast.

President Mavis DeGirolamo said the group objected to the annihilation of sea otters, bald eagles and Canada geese as well as the danger to human life.

AEC officials admit there will be "some effect on the ecology of the region" because of the blast.

In Washington, Senator Mike Gravel said today that the proposed United States underground nuclear test in Alaska "might well generate devastating tidal waves which could smash into the Canadian, Russian or Japanese coasts."

Appearing before a Senate foreign relations committee hearing, the Alaskan Democrat noted that both Japan and Canada had formally expressed concern over the test scheduled for Thursday at Amchitka Island in the Aleutian chain.

"The notes have not been made public, but our state department says that both nations have served notice that they will hold the United States responsible for any lives lost or damage incurred as a result of tests.

Victoria Draws Stanfield Visit

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield will spend a day in Victoria between Nov. 22 and 27.

Progressive Conservative headquarters in Vancouver said today his itinerary is not complete, but he will arrive in Vancouver Nov. 22 for a five-day tour of B.C. Two of those days are to be spent in the Okanagan.

John de Wolf, leader of the B.C. Progressive Conservatives announced Sunday that the party's national leader will visit this province in November.

Skating Teacher Dies at 80

And when the rink burned down in 1928, he saved the life of a fellow employee who was trapped by the flames.

Ruell died in the Veterans' Hospital early Saturday at the age of 80. He is remembered by many who once skated at the Willows Rink and one of them is J. Norman Findler, 903 Fullerton.

"I worked with Curly when I was just a boy," Findler said. "I did various jobs for him, such as sharpening skates and sweeping the ice. He taught many youngsters to skate and they remembered him years after the rink burned down."

Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will conduct funeral services for Curly Ruell in Thomson and Irving's funeral chapel Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. Cremation will follow.

Born in Quebec province, Ruell came to Victoria with his parents as a child and, except for service overseas in the First World War, he spent the rest of his life in Victoria.

He was engineer at the Willows Ice Rink (also known as Patrick's Rink) from 1919 until the fire of 1928. Subsequently he was for many years chief engineer at the Wilson Ice Company.

Ruell is survived by the widow, Ruby, at their home at 1612 Quadra; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothea Hunley, Sacramento, California; two brothers, Joseph at Spokane, Washington, and Emile, Jasper, Alta.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

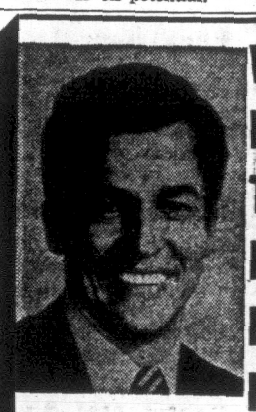

The population of a city reacts en masse to the weather. Doctors learned a long time ago that although different people showed different signs of strain during weather that caused stress in the human body, almost everybody in the city could be said to react to the storm or cold front that triggered the change.

Researchers used students at Northwestern University to learn what happened when there were abrupt changes in the weather and then they studied hospital and city health records. They discovered that what occurred in the bodies of the students under study pretty much also occurred in the bodies of the general population, in countless varying degrees, however.

More potentially psychotic people became psychotic, more pregnant women nearing term began to have labor pains, more normal individuals became sick and more sick people died.

Christine Rakes Up The Past

LONDON (AP) — Christine Keeler, the good-time girl who rocked a British government, started publishing her life story Sunday—and set off a fresh row.

As the mass-circulation Sunday newspaper News of the the World began a series on Miss Keeler's life, Lord Longford, former leader of the House of Lords, and Baroness Stocks denounced the paper for raking up the past to boost sales.

Both expressed concern for John D. Profumo, war minister who resigned from Harold Macmillan's cabinet six years ago when his affair with Miss Keeler was revealed.

Profumo, Longford said, had since buried himself in social work in London's tough East End district.

"I believe he has reclaimed his reputation so totally in the last few years that it is quite revolting to think that some stale old stories are being published," he said.

Meir Asks $1 Billion Economic Aid

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — The Israeli radio said today Premier Golda Meir asked President Nixon for $1,000,000,000 in economic aid during the next five years.

The radio quoted what it described as unofficial Israeli economic sources as saying that in her talks with Nixon in Washington last week Mrs. Meir raised the question of the economic burden resulting from Israel's defence expenditure.

The sources said Mrs. Meir estimated that in the next five years Israel's balance-of-payments deficit will grow to $1,000,000,000.

Israelis Continue Air Attacks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli fighter planes pounded Egyptian military tartets south of Suez today, the Israeli command said.

A spokesman said the planes hit objectives in the southern Suez Canal sector and along the Suez Gulf where Egyptians were rebuilding damaged fortifications. All planes returned safely, the spokesman said.

It was believed to be the 16th strike flown by Israeli pilots since the Sept. 9 Israeli amphibious raid along the western shore of the Gulf of Suez.

Bomb Business As Usual—AEC

By PHILIP D. CARTER

WASHINGTON (WP) — When the Atomic Energy Commission needed a safe new spot to set off its hydrogen bombs, it went to Amchitka. True, the windy little Aleutian Island lies in a national wildlife refuge. True, it stands astride a major earthquake zone. And, also true, it is only a few hundred miles (as the tidal wave rolls) from the Alaskan mainland and Soviet Siberia.

But such matters, measured by the higher logic of the AEC, understandably counted as nothing. The institutional imperative dictated that an agency in the business of exploding nuclear weapons had a certain obligation to explode them. And Nevada, where the big ones uesed to be burst, was getting punchy.

Probably the AEC could have exploded its next few bombs any place it wanted, including Westchester County or Chevy Chase, Md. As the agency has long made clear, underground bomb blasts are antiseptically safe (the above-ground kind were outlawed by the nuclear test ban treaty.

"The father of the H-bomb," Dr. Edward Teller, pointed out just the other day that "an explosion executed with care is no more dangerous than vaccination."

But in a free society not at present engaged in nuclear war, there were other considerations. Surprising numbers of Americans did not share the agency's assurance. In Las Vegas, for instance, there was always chronic concern about the little radioactive clouds (naughty, but officially safe) that occasionally wafted across the Nevada desert. And even civic minded local businessmen like Howard Hughes sometimes mused about the "structural integrity," as engineers put it, of their gambling palaces and hotels.

So a few years ago the AEC concluded that the bigger bomb tests—as safe as they might be—would have to be conducted someplace where there weren't so many anxious people.

Amchitka has no people at all. Other than 3,000 sea otters, some bald eagles and the usual unusual sea birds, there was nothing much on the island but wild flowers and heather. With an airstrip dating from the Second World War, it was both remote and accessible. And because the defence department had already exploded a small bomb there in 1965, no one could really accuse the AEC of violating a wildlife sanctuary.

"People can talk about the 'rape of Amchitka' all they want to," went one candid explanation. "The fact is, Amchitka has been raped before."

One or two officials of other agencies did not share the AEC perspective. The manager of the Aleutian Islands National Wildlife Refuge, a combative naturalist named Robert D. Jones Jr., started objecting to his superiors in 1965. Ever since, his reports to the interior department have been officially unavailable to press or public, and government rumor has it that Jones has been denied an expected raise.

There have been other bureaucratic complications. During the Johnson administration, a presidential scientific adviser, Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer (now president of Stanford University) led a panel of scientists who examined the possible relationship between underground bomb tests and earthquakes and seismic sea waves. That report has never been released by the White House, and its contents, understandably, are classified.

Outside the government, certain maverick scientists have tried to make people believe underground explosions can have strange repercussions. Politicians have repeated their objections, but luckily for the AEC most of the political complaints have come from Alaska, Hawaii and California, states where people just naturally worry about things like earthquakes and tidal waves.

The rest of the opposition has been just as predictable. With a weary appreciation of the inevitability of it all, the AEC has weathered the unending complaints of the Sierra Club, SANE, the National Wildlife Federation, the Alaskan Federation of Natives, the Audubon Society, the Educational Committee to Halt Atomic Weapons Spread and an Anchorage-based group of lawyers, businessmen, housewives and the like called SOS (Save Our State).

The agency has counterattacked, of course, with a succession of public statements and skillfully constructed color movies. They are designed, one public relations man for the agency has said, for the average man — not for "the nuts and kooks who remember Hiroshima."

Meanwhile, nonetheless, the governments of Japan and Canada have voiced official concern about the Amchitka tests. The AEC has no comment about these complaints, but it must be noted, in the agency's behalf that Japan's experience with nuclear weapons is dated, and that Canada is not a major power.

Assurance Doubly Sure

THE NEW COMMITTEE to study and co-ordinate welfare agencies in Greater Victoria will have the dual task of preventing duplication of services and seeing that the public receives full value for the dollars which it contributes. The committee will be similar to one established earlier in Vancouver, and it arises as a result of a recent meeting between the mayors of the Greater Victoria area and Welfare Minister Campbell, which the Community Council had long sought.

While there may be soft spots in some instances, requiring a tightening-up of procedures or cost-accounting, Greater Victorians need not anticipate any startling disclosures of inefficiency. The Community Welfare Council, now known as the Community Council, has been particularly active during the past two years in advising agencies with a view to avoiding duplication of their services to needy or suffering persons in the area. Agencies proposing a new service have been given information on existing services, and told whether the new service could better be combined with one already in the field. The Council has also advised the Intermunicipal Committee, at its request, in regard to money grants sought by various local agencies and organizations.

In regard to agencies which are members of the United Appeal, a probing review of the work and financing of each is carried out annually by the budget committee of the Community Chest, and a measure of control is thus exercised.

The proposed Greater Victoria committee may duplicate some of the investigatory work already being done, but with Provincial Welfare Department backing it will carry much more weight than is possible with the volunteer studies, and its operations will be particularly important in those agencies which are partially or completely supported by provincial funds.

There is a multiplicity of appeals these days, and a steady increase in the number of organizations being set up to cater to the needs of this or that afflicted segment of the population. The majority of these agencies are beneficial, instigated by dedicated people, and destined to do a good job. But insofar as they depend on public appeals for funds, or are supported by provincial or municipal grants, they should be open to continuing expert inspection to show their value to the community and demonstrate their efficient use of the money provided.

Many a voluntary agency has proved after a period of operation that it meets a real need and merits being put on a permanent basis of governmental support — perhaps even being taken over by the government. Full public confidence in worthy agencies such as should be engendered by the proposed close check on operations, will be to their direct benefit: the good housekeeping seal of approval will be of tangible value to those agencies which earn it.

A Time for Honesty

SOMETIME THIS FALL THE United Nations General Assembly will stage its annual production, directed by the United States, of No, No, Red China. If the play follows its usual format the U.S. will announce in the prologue that it has rounded up enough supporters to ensure that Peking is excluded from membership once again, and the final act vote will be something of an anti-climax.

Except that this year there should be at least one small change in the script: the role played by Canada. In past years this country's approach to the question has been somewhat ambivalent. While professing support outside the UN for the idea that China must take its place in the world's peace-keeping councils, we could never quite bring ourselves to back that position up with an affirmative vote inside. In large part this stemmed from a desire not to go against the wishes of our chief ally and neighbor, the U.S. The boldest step we have taken so far is to abstain.

Now, if the government is to be consistent in its approach to China as evidenced in the Stockholm negotiations aimed at diplomatic recognition, it has little choice but to support a UN seat for Peking. One concern has always been: what would happen to the seat already held by the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan? But now External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has declared: "We do not have a two-China policy; or a one-China, one-Taiwan policy. We have a one-China policy."

There cannot be much doubt about that statement; it means that Canada believes the chips must fall where they will if recognition of the Peking government is agreed upon. That is the only logical position to take in the present world situation, and it should apply at the United Nations just as it does at Stockholm.

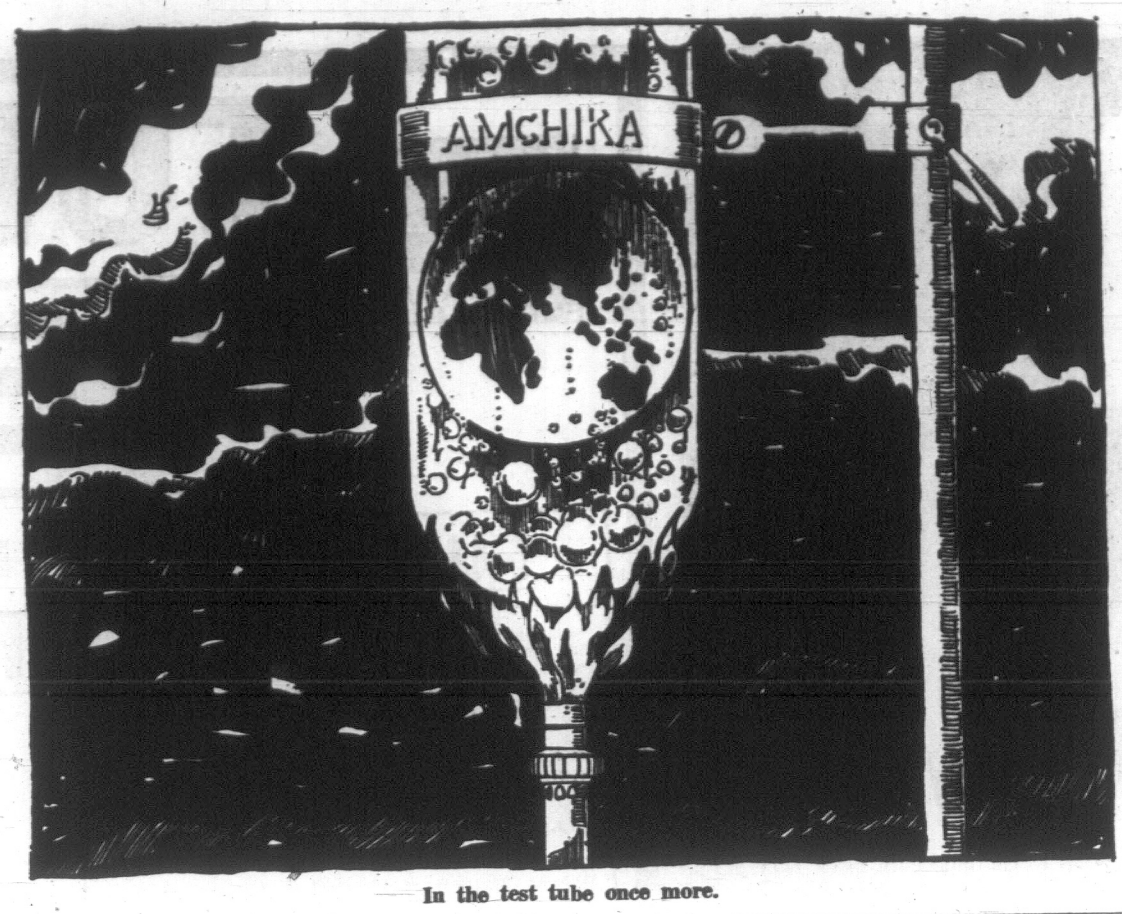

One other question that has always been thrown up in the UN deliberations as justification for waffling on the China issue is: does Peking really want to belong? That should have been answered by the fact that Albania, China's ally, would hardly have kept bringing its motion forward if Peking didn't agree. And now Mr. Sharp says the talks at Stockholm have convinced him that the Chinese do indeed want to become a member of the world body. What more do we need?

Human Face Re-Masked

THE FORMER CZECH Communist party leader, Mr. Alexander Dubcek, has been knocked out of power and favor in his country's government along with a dozen or more of the liberal-minded ministers who agreed with what he was trying to do. It is more than a year since Russian tanks swept in over the Czechoslovakian border and crushed the movement toward personal freedom which Mr. Dubcek had led.

He has been the target in recent weeks of accusations that his leadership was responsible for the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia — the usual sort of tactic of the Communist hierarchy when they are destroying a man. But in this case the accusations are correct. Mr. Dubcek did through his actions bring on the Russian invasion—but it was to his credit, not otherwise. For Mr. Dubcek, in the phrase that summed up his campaign, sought to "give Communism a human face." That was too much for the Kremlin — the human face, speaking its opinions, gathering where it wishes, hearing what it chooses, does not belong in the regimented environment which is required for the survival of Communism today.

Mr. Dubcek came to represent individual human freedom, and the idea spread like wildfire among the people of Czechoslovakia, particularly the youth. Moscow reacted with force—the only weapon that occurs to authoritarians when freedom raises its head. The movement was crushed by troops, and the ensuing months have seen the tidying-up process which resulted in last weekend's forced resignations. But the people will not forget.

In the test tube once more.

Letters

Off the Rails

Having seen in the Times of Sept. 22 your photograph and paragraph concerning the shipment of a steam locomotive and exhibition train from Liverpool to Boston, I feel it necessary to clarify a few of the mistaken items contained therein.

Firstly, "Flying Scotsman" is a locomotive and on its own does not constitute a "train". The reference to "Flying Scott," a common error where newspapers are concerned, makes one think that the literary personality is being shipped, not the locomotive.

The statement "later Scots were dieselized" also needs clarification: the train "Flying Scotsman" is a service between Kings Cross (London) and Edinburgh, which at one time in its long history was steam-hauled by locomotives such as (and including) "Flying Scotsman," but like most others in Britain succumbed to diesel power.

The duration of the tour is not 10 days as stated but several months—probably until next spring during which time it is hoped to bring the exhibition train to the west coast.

The reference to a "steam-driven dream" appears to be just another piece of highly fanciful newspaper reporting which perhaps would be more suited to the women's pages.

Finally, thanks for publishing the excellent photograph of the locomotive being loaded on the "Saxonia" — for a rail fan this more than makes up for the somewhat jumbled caption, despite the fact that you have shown it to be an "AP Wirephato". — R. N. Isles, 8-423 Superior Street.

Students' Help

We would like to thank the students of the University of Victoria who participated in the "Shinerama" a week ago for research in cystic fibrosis. It was so well organized by Dave Allen and his executive that one could not help but be proud of these young men and women. Also we would like to thank the citizens of Victoria who took this project to heart and supported it. Also the news media; radio and newspapers; no one could help but hear about the project. The goal was $5,000 and it was achieved.

We would also like to thank the President of the Victoria Chapter, Mrs. Conquest and members of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, for their help and confidence that the goal could be reached. As parents of two cystic fibrosis children, from the bottom of our hearts we thank you all. — Pam and Peter Young, 3940 Smugglers Cove Road.

Author! Author!

This individual presumes to report on a convention of the Canadian Authors Association seven weeks after the event. Without having been present. Without so much as seeing a program. Yet Jan Gould can dismiss the convention, which was excellent, with careless malice.

Since this item appeared on August 18, I'm late in presenting my protest. But not as late as that report was printed. This is news?

Re the lower item about Margaret Laurence (a C.A.A. member, incidentally, who does more than talk about writing a book someday), your Jan Gould might be interested to know that the Canadian Authors Association was the instigator of the Governor General's Awards, of the U.W.O. President's Medals, the U.B.C. Award for Popular Biography and several others.

Jan Gould's unkind cuts are distressingly familiar. Literary critics find glee in attacking the C.A.A. for some unknown reason. They might better get into it and improve it, since obviously there should be a national literary association. — (Mrs.) Lyn Harrington, C.A.A. National Secretary, 22 Yorkville Avenue, Toronto, 5, Ontario.

Minor Hockey

On behalf of the Executive of the Esquimalt Minor Hockey Association, may I take this opportunity of publicly thanking those players and officials who donated their time and talents to the first Annual Midsummer Pro-Am hockey game held in the Esquimalt Sports Centre on August 23, 1969. This event was held in the interest of furthering Minor Hockey in this community and was an unqualified success.— Bill Allen, President, Esquimalt Minor Hockey Ass'n.

New Coverage

I very much appreciate your new coverage of television programs. It is far superior to anything else in Victoria and must be a great help to your subscribers. — P. V. R. Badley, 1837 Emery Place.

Fairly Obsolete

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

As the season for rural agricultural exhibitions draws to a close in Nova Scotia, fair organizers might well conduct a critical self-analysis of the structure and role of such events.

While it would be unfair to suggest that the province's 14 regional exhibitions no longer serve a useful purpose, it is proper to comment that a surprising lack of initiative has been displayed in changing the composition and nature of these shows, to suit the demands of the times. Little recognition seems to have been given to the fact that the majority of fairgoers are now townspeople.

UNITED NATIONS, NEW YORK — By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Two Mideast Concessions Raise Hopes

SOVIET-AMERICAN talks on the Middle East have won agreement by Moscow to two important elements of an Arab-Israel peace settlement, excellent diplomatic sources say. The two points: 1. That there need not be a withdrawal by Israel from territory conquered in the 1967 war until after there is full agreement on a peace "package"—that is, until all other terms and conditions of the settlement have also been negotiated and agreed.

Frye

2. That the UN peace force which is to be placed as a buffer between Israel and the Arabs after a settlement shall not be subject to eviction by any single government, but must be withdrawn—if and when it is withdrawn—by order of the UN Security Council. The withdrawal directive would thus be subject to veto by any great power including the United States.

These two points go far to meet earlier Israeli objections.

Israeli Stand

Israel has consistently refused to pull its troops out of conquered territory until it knew what counter-concessions the Arabs were prepared to make. It feared the premature loss of valuable bargaining power.

As far as a UN force is concerned, the ease with which President Nasser of the UAR was able to evict the previous UN Emergency Force (UNEF) in May, 1967, has been a strong argument, in Israel's eyes, against re-establishment of such a force.

The Soviet Union has rarely taken a position, in either the Big Four or Big Two talks, which diverges materially from that of the Arabs.

It follows, therefore, that both Cairo and Amman are also prepared to negotiate a package deal with Israel, including a UN force immune to unilateral eviction. UN diplomats expect the Big Four UN delegates to resume consideration of the Mideast in October. Agreement to do so has been reached "in principle." Meanwhile the Big Two—Washington and Moscow—are expected to continue their contacts.

Credit to Sisco

Much credit is given, by those close to the Mideast exchanges, to Joseph J. Sisco, assitant secretary of state for the Near East and South Asia, who has master-minded the talks for Washington.

Sisco's opposite number in most of the two-power exchanges has been Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, who is also highly regarded in Washington diplomatic circles.

Because of the important, if limited, progress made, many in the West say they are puzzled and concerned at Israel's continuing objection to big-power involvement.

France has been so disturbed that it has made a resumption of arms shipments to Israel (except for warplanes, which would still be banned) conditional on Israeli co-operation with the Big Four.

Israel has repeatedly called for direct talks with the Arabs, under UN auspices, arguing that no war in history has ever been solved exclusively by third parties.

"How can Israel say, on the one hand, that the Arabs want to destroy them, and on the other, that they are the only people worth talking to?" a top UN diplomat asked.

Need Big Four

"Besides, the Arabs will never do it. The Big Four have got to pave the way; bilateral (Arab-Israeli) talks will never take place otherwise. I hope Israel's position is not irreversible."

The Soviet Union's continuing commitment to Israel's existence and sovereignty, despite renewal of Arab talk of "holy war" to exterminate her, has encouraged the United States, Britain and France.

The Big Four foreign ministers agreed, at a dinner hosted by UN Secretary-General U Thant Sept 20, to reaffirm "that all states in the Middle East have an inalienable right to exist as independent and sovereign states."

Diplomats of the three western powers repeatedly cite this fact as evidence of "progress," by which they appear to mean progress in persuading the Soviet Union to take positions different from those of the Arabs.

Peace is considered possible only if Moscow is willing for the Big Four to frame their own settlement package, in terms which neither the Arabs nor Israel will willingly accept, but in which they both might acquiesce.

FROM PARIS — By ANDRE FONTAINE

The Cold War: Can We Say It Has Ended?

THE Cold War has dominated the international scene for the last 20 years. Many times it has threatened to degenerate into a hot war. Today, however, a conflict between the Soviet Union and the United States seems the most unlikely of prospects.

Does it mean that the state of hostility between Washington and Moscow has ended? It would be easier to answer this question in the case of a hot war. An armed conflict can be said to be over when the fighting has stopped and an armistice has been signed. Just as the Cold War was never officially declared, no treaty has been drawn up to conclude it. But since it began almost imperceptibly, perhaps it has ended in the same way.

Unrecognized Victory

A few years ago a French journalist, Andre Frossard, stated, "The Americans have won the Cold War, but they haven't realized it yet." General de Gaulle is said to have appreciated the remark.

Many Europeans would probably agree. No one, in fact, aside from diplomatic and military circles and a few rightist politicians, believes now in the reality of a Soviet threat. No European government could justify increased defence costs or an austerity program by the fear of a Soviet attack. On the contrary, there is growing suspicion that the two giants have agreed, or even conspired, to divide up the world. The American reaction to the invasion of Czechoslovakia, after all, was no more marked than that of the Soviets when the Americans landed in the Dominican Republic.

Causes Remain

At the same time, it is obvious that the causes of the Cold War have not disappeared. The Berlin Wall, that terrible symbol, is still standing. Not only does it divide a nation; it marks the separation of Europe and the world into two camps. On either side stand the forward lines of the two armies, formidably armed and ready to fight.

The battle is still on in Vietnam, and there is fear that it may resume in Korea. In the Middle East, the Arabs rely on massive Soviet support, while Israel enjoys U.S. backing.

Andre Fontaine, deputy chief editor of Le Monde, is author of a two-volume "History of the Cold War."

In Moscow the widely acclaimed relaxation of tensions has not been extended to the intellectual sphere. Many courageous Soviet men of letters have been sent to Siberian labor camps for protesting against the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

One is forced to admit that agreements such as the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty (which does not outlaw all kinds of tests) or the treaty limiting the military uses of outer space mean relatively little when weighed against these negative signs.

To continue in the thermal metaphor, one might say that the Cold War is frozen over. The main reason is undoubtedly the invention of thermonuclar warheads. After the Cuban missile crisis, it became evident that it was too risky to use them for blackmail or as a bluff. Secondly, both of the superpowers are faced with serious internal problems; they have more important preoccupations than to liberate each other's proteges. A prolonged match always wears out the players.

Finally, there is the Sino-Soviet rivalry, which dominates the present international scene. When a nation finds itself with two enemies which are not themselves allied, it has to decide which should be given priority. Nikita Khrushchev's successors have apparently concluded that Peking is their Enemy Number 1, and not the United States nor Germany.

Looking Back

From the Times of Sept. 29, 1909:

There sat in the prisoner's box in Victoria Police Court this morning three men whom the police authorities of Vancouver and Victoria believe to be a trio of the cleverest crooks who ever operated on the continent of America —Robert Russell, Percy Foley and John Charles of Australia. They were arrested at Vancouver a few days ago and brought to Victoria, the belief being that they are the men who robbed the store of Charles E. Redfern of over $4,000 of valuable gems.

LETTER FROM QUEBEC . . .

. . . By PAUL WILLIAMSON

The Quiet Revolution Doesn't Touch All French-Canadians

The "quiet revolution" in the province of Quebec is more quiet than revolutionary.

At least this is the distinct impression a British Columbian receives after living one month in Quebec City. It is an impression quite different from the image of Quebec in the minds of many westerners—that of a vibrant society, forging ahead with governmental programs designed to preserve and bolster a unique French culture in North America.

Williamson

From where does this impression come? English-speaking Canadians who do not have personal contact with the French-Canadian milieu acquire their impression of Quebec society from politicians, academics, students and journalists.

These are the mobile, and the articulate, French-Canadians. The only other group which has widespread contact with English Canada is that of the businessmen whose loyalty to the corporation likely tempers their loyalty to Quebec.

For the other groups, however, their profession, and therefore their livelihood, often depend on the isolation and emphasis of those traits which render Quebec society unique.

The politician campaigns on policies which he says will protect the particular attitude of the French-Canadian towards family and social life.

The academic attempts to define these attitudes, the student to enshrine them, and the journalist to spread them. And it is the ideas of these people which are picked up in English-speaking Canada.

The English-speaking academic or student attending a national conference is almost certain to find his Quebec counterpart preoccupied with the French-Canadian nation's struggle for survival.

He may be frequently dismayed at the pettiness of the arguments, but he will usually be impressed by the intensity of the French-Canadian's feelings. The post centennial year English-Canadian may even be a little envious of such national fervor.

Canadian newspapers outside Quebec will carry a hard news story, such as an abrasive speech by a separatist spokesman or reports of the St. Leonard incident, but they are less likely to carry subsequent French language editorial comment — comment which tends to place violent action well outside the options considered acceptable by French Canada.

Both the academic and the journalist contribute to the image of a Quebec constantly evaluating and reinforcing its own unique characteristics. It is this image that provides the western Canadian with his stereotyped view of French Canada.

But is this an accurate impression? Day to day life is suburban Quebec City suggests it is not.

The average citizen of this city appears to make little distinction, aside from language, between English and French. Backyard over-the-fence conversation is much the same as anywhere.

Neighbors do not suggest, as academics might, that certain opinions represent "an English way of thinking."

The question of separatism, or even of two cultures in Canada, seldom is mentioned, except that occasionally the newcomer is told to pay no attention to extreme talk, that English-speaking people are welcome in Quebec.

And welcome the westerner seems to be. The local people concerned with the setting up of a new household — the landlord, milkman, oil man and so forth — are most courteous.

The language "problem" is non-existent and those people who are bilingual will often ask in which language one wishes to converse. Those who are unilingual appear quite unoffended by somewhat less than effective B.C. academic French.

In fact, there is nothing to suggest any feeling on the part of the average population that a crisis in English-French relations exists in this country. In Quebec City, one feels almost as far from St. Leonard as if he were on the Pacific coast.

The city is, of course, changing. It is true that the old walled town is essentially as Thoreau described it over a century ago, and almost exactly as Victorian Bruce Hutchison described it some 30 years ago.

Except for the American cars, to wander along the narrow streets is to be in Europe. A short trip to the suburbs, however, leaves no doubt that one is in North America.

Quebec City, with a population of over 400,000, is a typical booming North American city. The peripheral farmlands are being gobbled up by sprawling housing developments, scores of bland three-storey apartment blocks, and the ubiquitous blacktopped shopping centres.

Here the English-speaking North American can experience something he can find nowhere else in the world — a foreign language and culture with all of the comforts, down to the same brand names, of home.

Most French-Canadians do not appear to be involved in a revolution designed to protect the racial and cultural identity of French Canada, but instead appear to be rushing inevitably into the super-consumer society that characterizes the rest of the continent.

If the concerns of the Quebecer are not pan-Canadian, neither are they exclusively French-Canadian. A glance at the origin of the majority of stories on the sports page of Le Soleil, the largest local newspaper, discloses a disquieting interest in American sports.

The school boards of Quebec City, unlike those of St. Leonard seem to be more concerned with the threat of the anti-consumer — the hippie — than they are with the cultural threat posed by English Canada or the Americans.

Administrators and teachers spend hours discussing elaborate rules of dress and grooming for students, but appear to spend little time attempting to disentangle themselves and their institutions from the incredible confusion which plagues education in the province.

As a result, it appears that the school system is not facing up to the challenge of the advertisers. The culture is succumbing to continental commerce.

Ironically, the only aspect of the "quiet revolution" which appears to have been taken up earnestly by large numbers of younger people in the province is secularization.

A recent federal Bureau of Statistics release noting that Quebec's birth rate is now the lowest per thousand in Canada indicates that the church has ceased to be the social arbiter it once was.

Conversations with young people support this conclusion, as does the demise of the regligiously oriented classical colleges. It was the church, of course, that more than any other institution preserved the identity of French Canada.

There can be little doubt that the French language will survive on this continent. The number of unilingual Quebecers suggests something of the tenacity of language.

But with the influence of the church waning, the educational authorities failing to rise to the challenge, and the gulf between the culturally conscious intellectuals and the mass of the population as wide as it is, one cannot help but think that Quebec is moving irrevocably towards the homogenized world of the consumer of mass-produced North American goods.

Social Theory Shakes Idealist

By WILLIAM GREIDER

WASHINGTON — The graying radical, Saul Alinsky, tried to tell the young people selected as the first crop of Robert F. Kennedy Fellows what they will face when they fan out to work with grass-roots organizations in communities of the poor.

Some of them nodded in agreement, but some of them found their idealism offended.

"In the world as it is," Alinsky began, "man moves on the basis of self-interest and not on the basis of mythical ideals. Those come later as justification."

Try to organize people around things, not issues; around their self-interests, not around what is right or wrong, he urged them. The 60-year-old Chicagoan has been organizing poor people since before the Kennedy Fellows were born.

"People do the right thing for the wrong reasons," Alinsky explained. "So one of the things an organizer tries to do is look for the wrong reasons."

Earlier Cynicism

The Alinsky monologue on power and community organizing struck some of the 31 young people at the conference table as the cynicism of an earlier age.

The new Robert Kennedy Fellows were gathered here for a short course on the problems of the poor—health and hunger, education, political power and economic development. They are loaded for one-year stints of service in big-city slums, Indian reservations and mountain poverty pockets.

Some of them, as one of them put it, are "into the love thing" and prepared to believe that people are a lot better than society's institutions have allowed them to become.

Edward Schwartz, 26-year-old former president of the National Student Association who will be assigned to a Massachusetts welfare rights group, said: "Someone commented at lunch that if people moved only around self-interest, then many of us wouldn't be here."

The altruism contrasts with Alinsky's crisp generalizations on how to deal with people in "the world as it is."

Profit on Sunday

"Never once," said Alinsky, "have I approached a priest or minister or rabbi on the basis of Judaic-Christian principles because to do so would be to go outside their experience."

As for businessmen, he said, "I could persuade a capitalist on Friday to bankroll a revolution on Saturday that will bring him a profit on Sunday even though he will be executed on Monday. Even though he knows he will be executed, he can't pass up that Sunday profit."

Alinsky posed for them a hypothetical decision facing a community organizer: Should he use material which would destroy an "establishment" opponent's personal reputation if that was the only way to win the fight for the poor?

Alinsky's answer was yes. Half of the Kennedy Fellows said no. He accused them of protecting their own moral purity at the expense of the poor. They said he would merely be adding to the world's corruption.

The validity of these two viewpoints will be tested for many of the Kennedy Fellows when they begin working for local organizations or, in several cases, for elected officials.

The Robert F. Kennedy Memorial which will give them a $350 monthly stipend, has tried to match the recruits' talent and personal background with the locales they will be serving. In most cases, the local organizations will be getting technical aid they couldn't have afforded on their own.

The group includes five blacks, four Mexican-Americans, two Indians, and four second-generation oriental Americans. Six are lawyers and others have professional specialties in education, economic development, and city planning.

More Freedom

While the program resembles the domestic service provided by Vista volunteers, the Kennedy Fellows are expected to cover areas which don't overlap and to have more freedom than organizers from many of the government-financed community action programs.

Alinsky offered this warning to those recruits who believe social change will flow from reconciliation among the people: "Reconciliation is when you get power and the other guy gets reconciled to it."

Ireland to Become Artists' Haven?

By ANTHONY LEWIS

DUBLIN — Synge and Shaw and Joyce and the other great Irish writers who found their country's atmosphere so hostile would not believe it: Ireland is about to make writers and other creative artists a favored class of citizens, exempt from income taxes on their work.

Yes, exempt. Under the budget now awaiting final action in the Dail, residents of the Republic will pay no tax on any income from a book "or other writing," play, musical composition, sculpture, painting "or other like picture."

To qualify, an artist must show that his works are "generally recognized as having cultural or artistic merit." There is no obstacle to foreign sculptors or composers rushing over to establish residence: one purpose of the new clause is to attract them.

This may not quite lay "the foundation for another Athens," as the Irish Times has said. But it is certainly in astonishing contrast to the fiscal treatment of creative artists elsewhere.

In Britain, the writer who has a huge success pays 90 per cent of the reward to the Inland Revenue — unless, like Desmond Morris, author of "The Naked Ape," he moves to Malta. Henry Moore, England's one artist indisputably of world rank, is said to earn $600,000 a year from his sculpture and keep about $25,000.

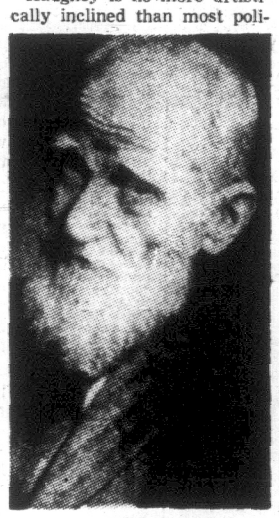

In the United States also the creative person working on his own does not have the tax advantages available in business. A Congressman who suggested a depletion allowance for writers would be laughted out of the Ways and Means Committee.

Then why Ireland? Mervin Wall, Secretary of the Irish Arts Council, admits the tax change was "a great surprise to us all. Traditionally, our politicians have thought artists were queer fellows, not to be trusted."

The exemption was a political gamble by one man: Charles Haughey, the Minister of Finance. He thought tax benefits for artists would be good politics, and the indications are he was right.

There has been little opposition in the Dail. Practically no one has argued that if writers are to be exempt, football players should be, too. People seem to like the notion of Ireland as a creative haven.

Haughey is no more artistically inclined than most politicians. The belief is that he wanted to come up with a novel and intellectually respectable tax reform, for his own sake and his government's, and decided to try this. Wall of the Arts Council put it in a wonderfully Irish way, not at all cynically:

SHAW

"This fellow is determined to make his mark, and thank goodness it's in this line of country instead of horsebreeding or something."

The tax method of helping artists will be easier to administer than straight subsidies. In England, Arts Council grants to individual writers have inevitably stirred envy and criticism.

On the other hand, tax exemption will not help the struggling artist who earns almost nothing. Indeed, that fact made the bill easier to pass: it was argued that few creative Irishmen earned much, so the exemption would not be costly to the Revenue Department.

The potential administrative problem is defining who is to get the exemption. The civil servants in the Revenue Department may get expert advice on what has "cultural or artistic merit," and they are expected to ask the Arts Council.

Wall's view is that the definition should be as broad as possible, to escape invidious distinctions about what is art. After all, he says, "the bill does not require great artistic merit." To avoid appraisals of particular works, artists will probably be exempted for their work as a whole.

Censorship is a worry in some people's minds. Ireland has an obscurantist past, with sexual censorship carried to absurd lengths. Would a novelist who was widely respected but whose books were banned in Ireland be likely to win a tax exemption?

But Wall and others concerned think there will be no real problem here. Censorship is dead in practice now if not in theory: Joyce's "Ulysses" in paperback is piled high in Dublin bookshops. And everyone is extremely sensitive to the danger of the censors returning in a new form.

An American is bound to note the contrast between such attitudes here and those prevailing in Washington. There, Ireland's gift to the House Appropriations Committee, Rep. John Rooney of Brooklyn, got the House to strike out the entire State Department appropriation for cultural exchange because of his rage that someone had considered sending abroad a play he thought dirty.

It may said that Rooney is a special case—a thin-skinned, angry man with a suspicion of intellectuals and artists, in a position of power and enjoying its use. But there is more to a political system than a Rooney or a Haughey. The fact is that the idea of nurturing a country's artists seems to be good politics these days in Dublin, even amidst the Ulster crisis, and not in Washington.

A Writer's Notebook

By RICHARD NEEDHAM

The man whose decency gives him the right to criticize others is too decent to make use of it.

Practically any woman can take an interest in practically any man who takes an interest in her.

Kind people tell me how many kindnesses they've encountered in the world; mean people, how many meannesses.

The students inform me, "You need Grade 12 to become a garbage collector." I reply, "So get your Grade 12 and become a garbage collector."

Judges and magistrates are human beings, appointed by human beings to administer and interpret laws made by human beings: and that's all I have to say about justice.

So long as some people enjoy staging riots, and so long as some people enjoy putting them down, and so long as most people enjoy watching them, and so long as everybody enjoys reading about them, riots seem likely to continue.

How can we get more and better teachers? I don't think money's the answer. The way I'd go at it is by making school attendance voluntary first at the high school level, then in the public schools. The teacher would then be in the same professional situation as the doctor, dentist, lawyer, architect, etc. He'd deal each day only with students who wanted to learn, who wanted to learn that particular subject, and who wanted to learn it from him. Most teachers, I think, would take that in preference to a pay increase.

A great mistake in life (as I've painfully learned) is ever to want, expect, even hope for anything from anybody else. Just rest quietly, take what comes, accept what they may be willing to offer. It's all, in any event, that you're going to get.

When Miss S., 9 years old, got back from her trip to Montreal with me, did she tell her friends and relatives about the stores? The buildings? The restaurants? The airplane flight? Man and His World? No; all she could talk about was how she got lost in downtown Montreal for an hour and how the police picked her up in a squad car and delivered her back to me.

If you wonder where your tax money goes to, you might note that Ottawa and Prince Edward Island have a $725-million agreement to develop that province — with Ottawa putting up $225-million of it. Since P.E.I.'s population is only 100,000, this comes to $7,250 per person; the federal share being $2,250 per person.

A middle-aged woman asked me, "What's all this modern stuff about kids having aims and goals? When I was a kid in the Depression, our only aim was to pay the hydro bill before it got cut off."

People think that if there's a problem, there must be a solution. I suggest that the problem exists precisely because there isn't any solution. Indeed I'll go further — if there isn't any solution, there isn't any problem. So much for the drug problem, the poverty problem and many others.

An American draft dodger told me, "War is retroactive birth control."

Look at it this way. If your children have turned out to be wicked, they're in no position to condemn your wickedness.

An Ontario clergyman was giving premarital advice to a young lady of 22. He warned her, "There will be times when you will get very bored with each other." Her eyes widened in astonishment. "Oh, no, that could never possibly happen." This story was related to me (with loud guffaws) by a woman who has been married for 25 years.

Christopher Morley: "There are some knightly souls who even go so far as to make their visits to book shops a kind of chivalrous errantry at large. They go in not because they need a certain volume, but because they feel that there may be some book that needs them."

After stagnating for 25 years, Manitoba has now elected an NDP Government to make the condition permanent. For further details, consult Saskatchewan.

Mill to Open

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston will formally open B.C.'s latest pulp mill at Skookumchuk, near Cranbrook, on Friday.

Also present will be Japanese ambassador Shinichi Kondo.

The mill, a joint venture of Crestbrook Forest Industries, Honshu Paper and Mitsubishi Trading Co., represents the largest single Japanese investment in Canada at about $40 million. It will produce 400 tons of pulp daily.

Bethlehem Copper

Bethlehem Copper Corp. Ltd. reports a 46 per cent improvement in net income from $1.49 million to $2.2 million during the quarter ended Aug. 31.

President Patrick Reynolds said the improvement is due largely to an increase in copper prices expected to last at least the rest of 1969. Per share earnings were 41.3 cents against 28 cents, or 77.1 compared with 61.8 for the first half of the year.

Canadian Foreign Exchange Reserves To Grow With 'Paper Gold' Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada stands to add more than $328,000,000 to its foreign exchange reserves in so-called "paper gold" as a result of this week's meeting of the International Monetary Fund.

The figure is inexact for two reasons: other members of the 111-nation world monetary fund may not subscribe to the new plan to inject a new kind of inter-governmental currency into the world financial system, and Canada's quota in the IMF is likely to be raised next year.

The IMF ad World Bak metings opening today were particularly conscious of the outcome of Sunday's general election in West Germany.

The uncertainty of the outcome raised speculation of an upward revaluation of the mark, which would result in a realignment of the exchange value of many world currencies.

Canada's current commitment to the IMF is $740,000,000 in U.S. dollars, of which one-quarter is subscribed in gold, and this commitment amounts to 3.49 per cent of the total funds. If all members of the IMF took up their share of the new Special Drawing Rights, Canada's share would be approximately $328,000,000 created during the next three years.

PICTURE IMPROVING

But Canadian officials say all 111 countries are not likely to take up their full quotas, and this will have the affect of increasing the amount available to Canada. Moreover, the fund next year is to review the quotas, and Canada expects an increase. This also will result in an increase in special Drawing Rights, or SDRs, available to Canada.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson arrived in Washington Sunday from Barbados, where he led Canada's delegation to last week's conference of Commonwealth finance ministers.

Benson, scheduled to address this world congress of finance ministers Tuesday, is expected to endorse wholeheartedly the creation of the new drawing rights. They will add—in a book-keeping way—to the present store of gold, sterling, and U.S. dollars as a means of settling debts between nations.

The three things are on the agenda in descending order of urgency:

1. Immediately, activation of the Special Drawing Rights, approved by a substantial majority of IMF members and their legislative bodies, including the Canadian Parliament.

2. Study, in preparation for action next year, of plans to increase IMF quotas generally, with an extra increase for four fast-growing countries—Canada, France, Japan and Italy.

3. Consideration of some plan to make fixed exchange rates more flexible than those that now prevail.

START JAN. 1

Activation of the SDRs on Jan. 1, 1970, now seems to be a foregone conclusion.

The idea now being discussed by world bankers here is to raise all quotas by 20 per cent, plus or minus three per cent. This would increase Canada's $740,000,000 to between $885,000,000 and $890,000,000.

On the third topic, Canada has so far expressed no view.

The last formal statement made by Benson is that fixed exchange rates should be defended. The Canadian dollar now is pegged at 92½ cents in U.S. dollar terms.

Other countries, especially the European ones, would like to have a formula by which pegged rates of international exchange could move gradually. They think this would obviate the need for sudden and unsubtle devaluation or revaluations.

SCHWEITZER

Gold Price Rise Blocked by SDR

WASHINGTON (WP) — Approval of the new system of Special Drawing Rights—"paper gold"—would remove any possible argument for a worldwide gold price increase, the managing director of the International Monetary Fund said Saturday.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer told a news conference the new system of reserves, expected to win approval by the fund's governors next week, would help solve the balance-of-payments problems plaguing many countries.

At the same time, Schweitzer ruled out any extreme new method of adjusting rates of international monetary exchange.

"Extreme solutions such as generally floating rates or wide margins are probably out of the question," he said.

Both formal allocation of SDRs and further discussion of making the exchange rates between currencies more flexible will be discussed when the governors of the fund and the World Bank open their 24th annual meeting.

Wage Stretches More in Britain

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The average company executive can earn more and live better in Canada and the United States than in Britain but he can stretch his salary a little further in this country than across the sea.

The reason, says Associated Industrial Consultants Ltd., is that while taxes in Britain are much higher, other living costs tend to be lower.

Trying to compare salaries among the industrialized countries is a complicated and inexact science which sometimes baffles the big corporations. If they are sending a manager to reside in Montreal or New York, should they pay him more than they pay him in London and if so, how much more?

And if a trained and experienced executive officer decides to emigrate, how much more should he expect to get if he resettles elsewhere?

Associated Industrial Consultants say it has made an intensified study, documented by massive research. The result suggests, as most economists have guessed, that the trained manager can earn more and live better in North America.

TAXES ARE HIGHER

For example, the average sales manager can earn about $21,000 a year in Canada and perhaps only $13,000 in Britain. The average personnel manager may get $12,000 in Canada and only $9,500 in this country.

Taxes in this country are higher than in most other leading industrialized countries. A married man with two children earning $10,400 a year will have only 75 per cent left after paying taxes in Britain. In Canada and the U.S. he would have more than 83 per cent, based on 1968 rates.

But the average manager in the big American or Canadian cities must pay more for living costs. Excluding taxes and basing 1968 British costs at 100, the research organization concluded that living costs in Montreal were 33 per cent higher and in New York 53 per cent higher than in London. Oddly enough, the organization found that costs in Paris were only 30 per cent higher than in London, a conclusion that some observers might challenge after digging deep into their pockets to pay for Paris charges.

UNDERPAID IN BRITAIN

Taking both taxes and living costs into account, the organization concluded that a married manager with two children earning $13,000 a year in Britain would have to earn 26 per cent more in Canada or 44 per cent more in the U.S. to live on an equivalent level.

Some British newspapers immediately leaped to the conclusion that the survey shattered old beliefs and that British executives were far better off in this country even with lower salaries. But an organization spokesman said it should be abundantly clear that if an executive is capable of earning $13,000 a year in this country, he would undoubtedly get more than a 22-per-cent increase in Canada and more than a 44-per-cent increase in the U.S.

"For too long," said the spokesman, "executive salaries in this country have been held down, leading to increased emigration."

The organization had anticipated that executive salaries in Canada would rise by 6.9 per cent in 1968. In fact they had increased by 8.2 per cent and were likely to go up by 8.7 per cent this year. Barring a major economic upset, it anticipated that these Canadian salaries were likely to continue to rise by eight per cent or more a year for the next few years.

RIDING HIGHER THAN USUAL over the waves is Grant Weir's Tatoosh. The 26-foot, Thunderbird class boat is one of 50 hauled out for winter storage on the weekend at Royal Victoria Yacht Club. Boats intending to race during the winter have gone elsewhere for winter moorage. The RVYC pulls all but one small float when the boats come out this time each year. The operation is reversed in April.

McNamara Lauds Pearson Report

WASHINGTON (CP) — A report by Lester B. Pearson, former prime minister of Canada, and a group of international authorities on the financing of world relief to underdeveloped countries won high praise today from Robert F. McNamara, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

The report, scheduled to be made public later this week, probably Wednesday, is expected to recommend that the richer countries of the world make an extra effort to help the poorer by low- or no-interest loans and not to burden them with increasing debt.

McNamara, former U.S. defence secretary, called on all inter-governmental and private bodies to take the Pearson report as subject of serious discussion in the months ahead. He promised copies in several languages will be available in a few days.

McNamara said the World Bank, which itself and through its agencies, make loans and grants for developing countries, is concentrating on the need to control population growth, to expand educational facilities in the underdeveloped countries, and to increase agricultural production as a step toward industrialization.

The bank has set up a new population projects department, which McNamara said already has found that "the immediate need is less for financial assistance than for technical advice and counsel."

Alaska Oil Finds Seen Vital Here

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public Works Minister Arthur Laing said Saturday the Alaskan oil boom means Canada must develop its own northern oil resources as rapidly as possible.

Laing, formerly minister of northern affairs, told a luncheon meeting Canada is the only land link between Alaska and the continental U.S. and "Alaska may well prove to be the richest state of all."

"The enormous find of oil in Alaska demands that we develop our oil resources in the Arctic and co-operate with our great neighbor and ally in facilitating its delivery to markets," said Laing.

MUNICIPAL BONDS HIT

Tight Money Slows Works

NEW YORK (AP) — City and state governments throughout the United States are being forced to postpone construction of much-needed schools and roads because of lack of money.

Municipal bonds—the tax-free, long-term state and local government issues used to finance new construction and improvements—are becoming increasingly difficult to sell in today's tight money markets.

In some areas, legal interest ceilings make it almost impossible to attract investor interest. Spiralling interest rates in other money markets offer more profitable investment opportunities.

Recently, for example, the city of Pittsburgh, Pa., which has a six-per-cent legal interest ceiling, was unable to place $9,700,000 worth of bonds for public improvement.

John E. McGrady Jr., Pittsburgh controller, said his city will have to turn to refinancing and city savings "to be able to get by."

A bill to raise the legal interest ceiling to seven per cent is before the Pennsylvania senate.

GOT NO BIDS

Dr. John Prince, president of Maricopa Country Junior College near Tucson, Ariz., wasn't optimistic about the prospect of placing the college's $5,000,000 bond issue, and hi fears proved justified. The bond issue drew no bids when offered.

New York brokers had predicted the issue would attract little buyer interest because of Arizona's six-per-cent interest ceiling.

Prince said local officials and legislators in Arizona have been discussing the possibility of lifting the ceiling during the 1970 legislative session.

The Daily Bond Buyer, a trade publication, reports that 27 states have ceilings on allowable interest rates for general bonds. They range from a low of four per cent in North Carolina to a high of 10 per cent in Tennessee.

The local general obligation bonds—local governments' common form of financing for civic improvements—are covered by ceilings of various sorts in 36 states.

Ceilings exist also on some state and local revenue bonds and notes. Usually the ceiling is set at between five and seven per cent.

"State and local borrowers are faced with two major obstacles," said Henry Kaufman, partner and economist for Salomon Bros. and Hutzler, a major bond house.

TIGHT CREDIT HURTS

One block is tight credit policy which has seen commercial banks become moderate net sellers of tax-exempt bonds instead of buyers.

The other factor, said Kaufman, is uncertainty created by federal tax reform proposals as they affect municipals.

Proposals to tax state and local bonds—now exempt—have "really crucified the business," said the head of the bond department for a leading New York bank. The exemption is a major factor attracting investors to the relatively low interest securities. Corporate blue chip bonds, on which tax is paid, recently have paid more than eight per cent in interest.

In addition to Pennsylvania, other states and local governments also are considering proposals to raise present interest ceilings. New York, for example, has dropped almost all its rate ceilings until March 31, 1970, in order to obtain financing.

California, which has found it almost impossible to get financing for many issues because of a five-per-cent ceiling on state offerings, also is considering a ceiling hike.

Haynsworth, Baker Linked in Stock Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., whose appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court has come under fire because of his stock dealings, has been linked to a 1958 real estate deal with Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, former Senate majority secretary.

The two men "invested jointly along with more than 20 other wealthy South Carolinians in an approximately 190-acre real estate tract outside Greenville," Haynsworth's home town, the New York Daily News said Sunday in a copyright Washington dispatch by James Wieghart.

Baker, who resigned his Senate post amid a scandal over his financial dealings, was convicted in 1967 of stealing $137,000 in political contributions and of dodging federal tax on the income.

Reached at his Washington, D.C., home, Baker said he did not know Haynsworth was connected with the deal. Baker said an associate of his, Dwight Holder, called and said, "Send me $10,000."

"Who he sold the stock to I don't know," Baker said. "I had no idea of what they bought or what they did." He said he sold his interest in the land "in 1964 and 1965."

The newspaper story said the group bought the land Dec. 13, 1958, from Grace Pepper Rhodes for $118,030.

The land was later transferred to the newly founded Greenville Memorial Gardens cemetery for $10 and other considerations, which the report said were "presumably stock in the corporation."

The deed listed Haynsworth as having 4-157th interest in the land and Baker 10-157ths.

Haynsworth listed 72 shares of Greenville Memorial Gardens in a financial statement to the Senate judiciary committee, which is studying his appointment to the Supreme Court, the paper said.

President Nixon has picked Haynsworth, chief judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va., to fill a vacancy created when Abe Fortas stepped down.

The appointment has been criticized by liberals and unionists because of the judge's rulings in civil rights and labor cases.

Inflation War Chiefs In Business Needed

HALIFAX (CP) — Business and industry should lead the way in trying to hold cost and price increases down in the struggle against inflation, the outgoing president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said today.

A. S. Leach of Winnipeg told the chamber's 40th annual meeting it still remains to be seen whether government efforts through the newly-formed prices and incomes commission will succeed in containing cost and price increases.

"There are many factors and facets involved and a number of these are difficult to control on a voluntary basis," he told the 700 delegates.

"If an acceptable formula cannot be developed, then we in business and industry might consider giving meaningful leadership for our own group in any event and espouse the cause of price restraint."

Mr. Leach outlined three areas of social action where he said business could provide effective leadership.

One was developing employment opportunities for persons in jail. Another was making it possible for persons on relief to work, by such means as setting up day nurseries so mothers with small children would have a chance to get regular jobs.

The third was counselling Indians and Eskimos so they could live more productive lives in their own areas.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL PARTNERSHIP

Government-Backed Student Loans Prove Boon to Thousands

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — Thousands of university undergraduates each year have their financial way made a little easier through federal and provincial student aid programs.

From July 1, 1968, to June 30, 1969, loans authorized through the federal government's Canada student loans plan amounted to $65,767,000 to 107,145 students.

The federal aid scheme operates in all provinces but Quebec, which has its own extensive program of loans and combinations of loans and grants for Quebec residents.

The federal plan provides loan assistance to full-time students.

Under it, chartered banks and designated credit unions may make loans up to an annual maximum of $1,000 to students with provincial eligibility certificates.

SOME IS REPAYABLE

Ottawa guarantees the loans and interest until six months after a student finishes his studies. He may not borrow more than $5,000 over-all.

Since the plan's inception in 1964 to June 30, 1969, participating provinces and two territories have issued 378,000 certificates of eligibility for loans totalling $226,700,000.

The federal plan provides most of the repayable aid to undergraduate students, an article in University Affairs, a publication of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, says.

The provinces provide most of the non-repayable aid.

These types of aid include grants—awards to students financially in need; bursaries—awards to students financially in need and reaching a designated achievement level in their studies; allowances—aid in recognition of a student's full-time work; scholarships—awards to students of superior academic standing; and free tuition.

Some of the provinces—Ontario, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Alberta—have formally combined the Canada student loans plan with their own non-repayable aid programs in order to create a single, comprehensive scheme.

Most of these provinces provide the bulk of the financial assistance in grants. Most of those having separate aid programs award non-repayable scholarships or bursaries.

Normally a province only helps students considered residents in the province. Some provinces do not help residents at universities in other jurisdictions.

New Brunswick, Ontario and Nova Scotia pay fees for teacher training.

Newfoundland now subjects applications for financial aid to a need assesment. This is a move away from its earlier policy of providing the equivalent of free tuition to all university undergraduates and allowances to all third-, fourth- and fifth-year students.

The only public financial aid for undergraduates in Prince Edward Island is provided through the federal loans plan, although the province hopes to have a bursary and scholarship program soon.

Six centennial scholarships of $1,500 each are available to exceptional students.

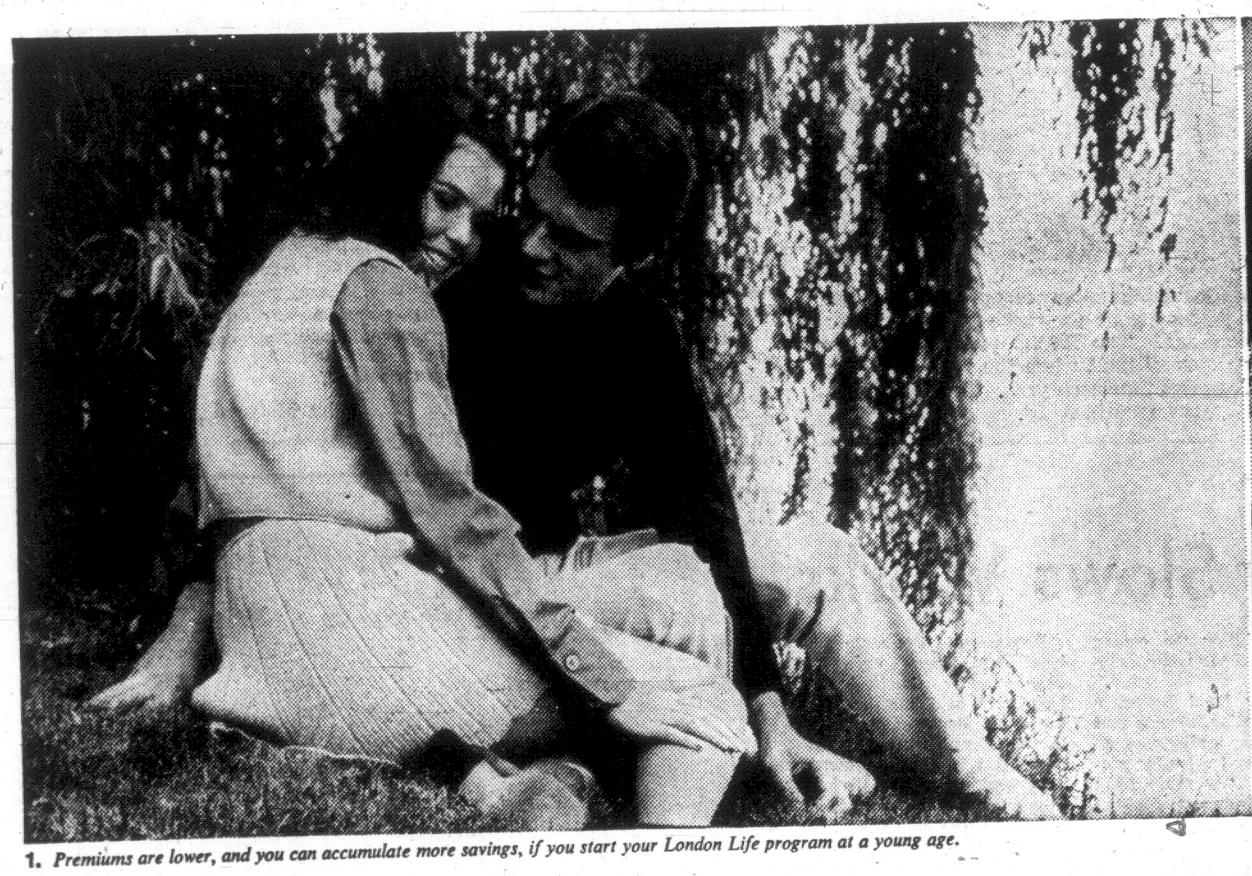

Alberta now limits scholarships to a $100 maximum. All other aid is provided through grants or loans.

In Manitoba, students may get provincial bursaries with a value of between $100 and $1,000.

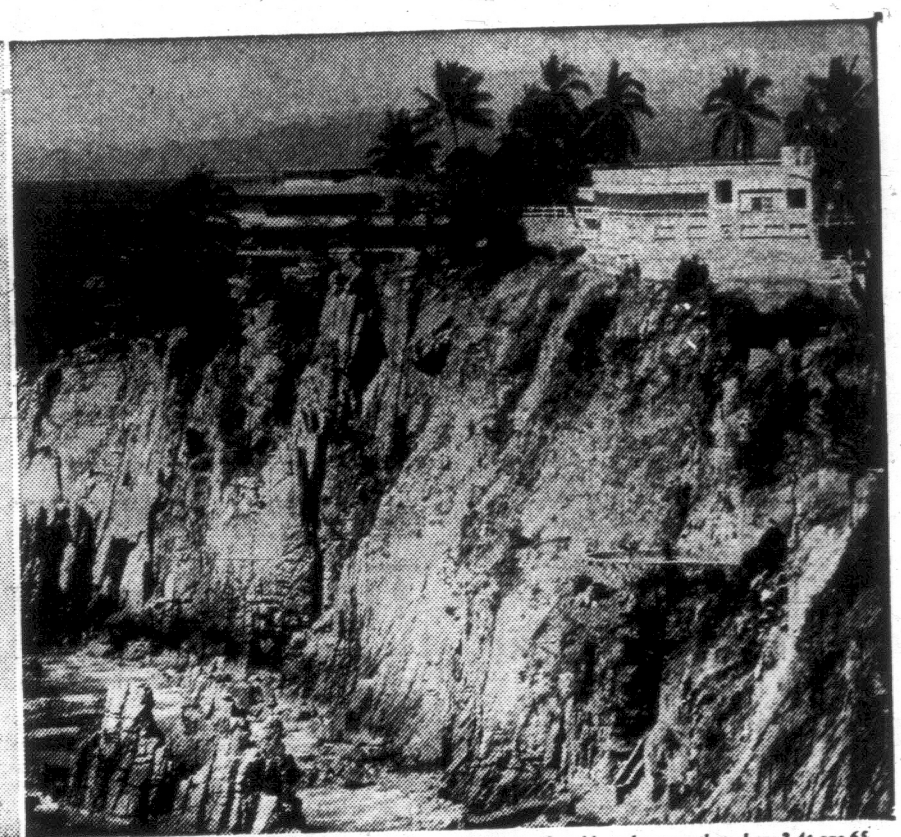

British Columbia offers first- or second-class scholarships representing a portion of tuition fees to students with grade averages of more than 70 per cent in senior secondary school work or undergraduate in-course examinations. Needy students get bursaries.

Men about to marry

How a young man can build a flexible program of life insurance to suit his changing needs – with London Life

1. Premiums are lower, and you can accumulate more savings, if you start your London Life program at a young age.

5. Finally, your London Life program can help you retire comfortably—down south perhaps? At age 65, or earlier, you may choose a guaranteed retirement income, a lump sum in cash, or continuing protection.

If you plan to get married this fall, or next spring, you should be thinking right now about the insurance you'll need.

In fact, there are some practical and economic reasons for starting your program as soon as possible.

Start when you're young

The cost of life insurance is based mainly on age. So the younger you are, the smaller the cost. And, importantly, the larger your savings will grow.

For example, at age 24, you can buy a $15,000 Jubilee policy* for about $21 a month to which you can add a number of flexible features:

a. You can include an option that gives you an income should you have a long illness or a serious accident.
b. You can arrange for London Life to pay your premiums for as long as you are disabled.
c. Another option lets you add a further $15,000 of Jubilee insurance at age 27. And up to age 40 you can add another $15,000 every 3 years—regardless of your health or occupation.

Protection for your children

Three years after you marry you become a father and need to provide more protection.

No problem at all. You can take advantage of the third option mentioned above. Or you could consider another feature that is very inexpensive. This makes sure that if you die your family will have a regular income until the children are 18—or any age you choose. (This income is on top of your total amount of insurance.)

These are some more examples of how your original London Life policy can be tailored to provide just the right amount of insurance, for the right length of time, at a reasonable cost.

2. You can add extra protection after children are born. You could also start a savings plan to make certain there'll be money for their education.

Mortgage insurance

Now you're 30 years old and you buy a house. Your insurance can help you borrow money.

And you can add insurance to cover the unpaid portion of the mortgage if you should die. This ensures there'll be money so your wife can decide, in her own time, where she wants to live.

Reduce your income tax

Although retirement seems a long way off when you're in your 20's, it will cross your mind more frequently in your 30's.

4. Your program becomes valuable collateral should you need to borrow money to take advantage of a business opportunity, renovate a house, buy a cottage, or farm, or take care of a financial emergency.

3. If you buy a house, you may wish to consider adding a low-cost feature which, if you should die, will pay off your mortgage.

You'll probably be earning a higher salary by then, and you could add a further $15,000 of Jubilee insurance and consider registering it with the government as a Retirement Savings Plan.

This could give you a handsome deduction on your income tax!

Valuable collateral for loans

You now have a very good program of protection, guaranteed savings, and a retirement fund.

In fact, you can borrow a considerable sum of money without any problem.

This could be useful if you decide to take advantage of a business opportunity. Or, you can use your insurance as collateral to help borrow money to meet a financial emergency, buy a cottage, or renovate the house.

Your program can be adjusted

As your circumstances change, the amount of insurance you own may be varied to fit these circumstances. If your needs for insurance are reduced, the amount of insurance can be adjusted.

Or you may find you need more insurance—to protect a business investment or new home. If you have chosen a special dividend option, your dividends can provide additional "paid-up" insurance without increasing your premium.

Valuable fund for retirement

You can use your insurance to help you retire early. Or, at age 65, you can choose between these options.

a. You can continue the full amount of protection with no further premiums to pay.
b. You can take out a lump sum in cash. And, if you'd left your dividends to accumulate, they would add substantially to your retirement fund.
c. You can choose a guaranteed income to supplement the Government Pension Plan or other retirement funds you may have.

The flexible one

As you can see, there are a good many ways a London Life program can be tailored to provide the protection and savings you need at any time in your life.

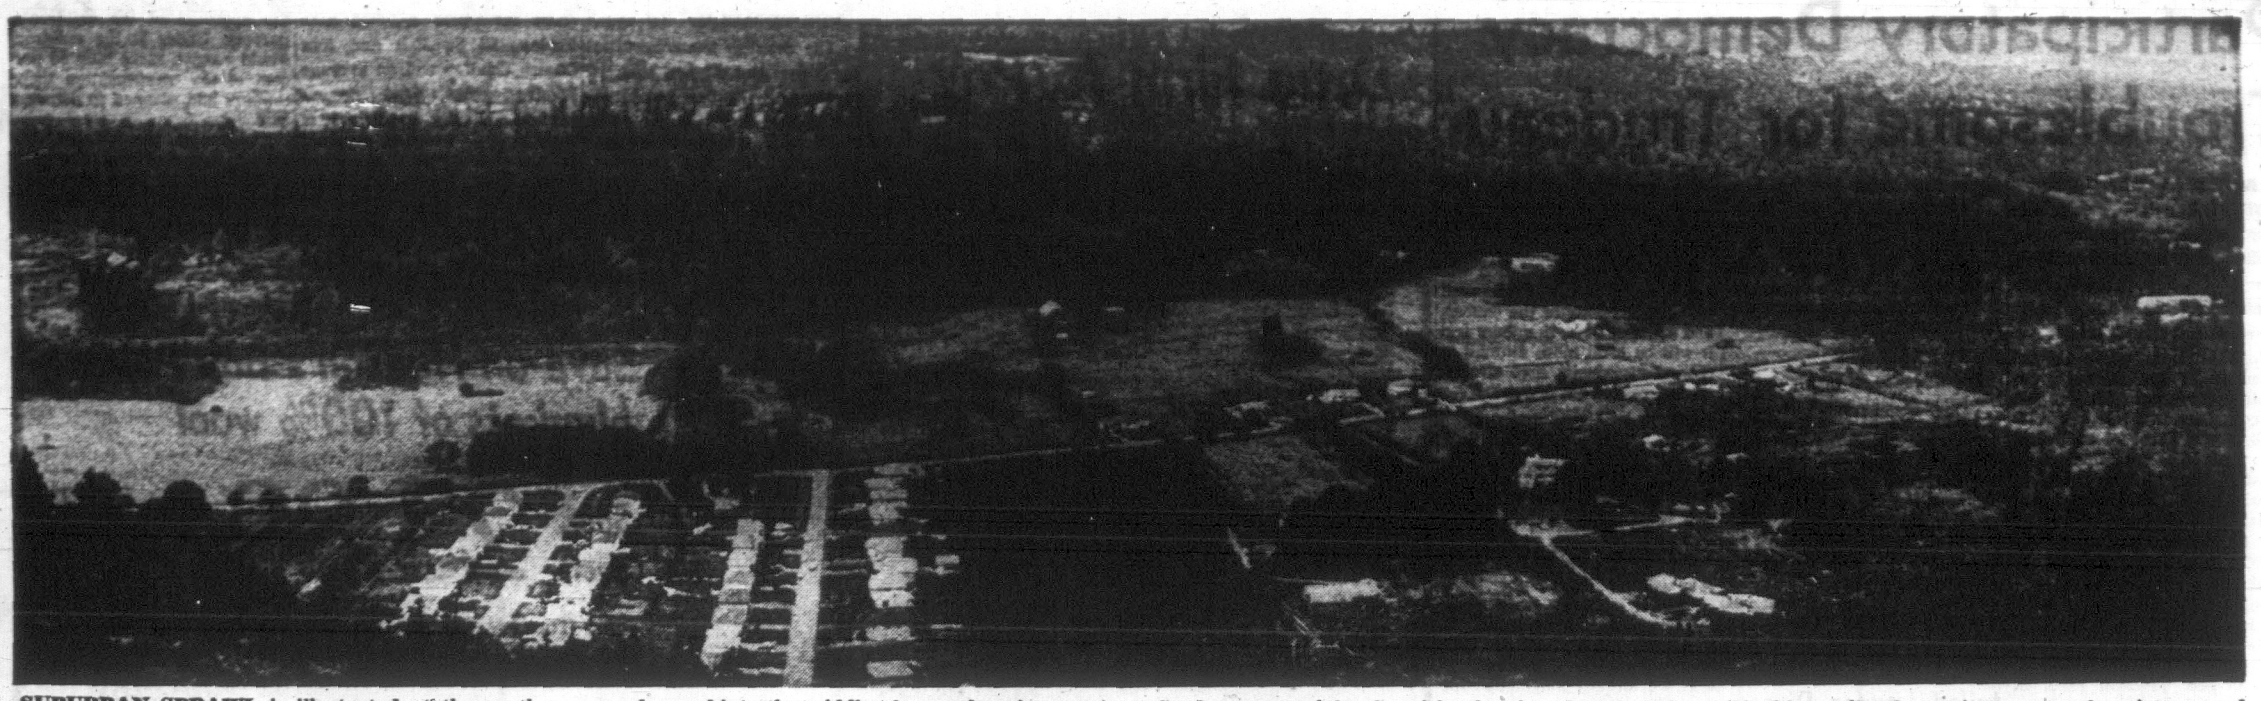

The important thing is to start your program when you are young and in good health.

It doesn't have to cost very much. And you get a solid financial foundation for the whole of your life. Talk to older men and you'll appreciate the need for such a program.

We suggest you look into "the flexible one" from London Life—where you get more than you expect from life insurance.

LAND USE: No. 1 Problem For Remainder of Century

We're Going to Live Much Closer Together

By Roger Stonebanks

Today's open fields and woods will be home for tomorrow's exploding population.

Between now and the end of the century, it is forecast that the population of the capital region, from Sooke to Sidney, will double from the present 190,000.

More people will mean more homes, schools, jobs, commercial areas, recreational activities, roads, sewers and other services — on the same amount of land.

How the land is used will almost certainly become the area's most important problem in the next 30 years.

To meet this problem, the Capital Region Planning Board has been holding a series of study sessions this year to review regional planning. The last regional plan was issued in 1959.

And next year, it is expected that the board will be absorbed by the Capital Regional District, responsible for an increasing number of area-wide problems.

Within the seven municipalities — Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney — there is a growing awareness by staff and council of the importance of proper planning for future land use.

There is much less awareness in the unorganized areas of Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, View Royal, Sooke, the Highlands and the Gulf Islands. But this may change as the Capital Regional District, with encouragement from the province, expands.

In planners' jargon, "density" refers to how closely people live to one another. Earlier this year, Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, told one of the study seminars the area from Sooke to Sidney has room for 750,000 residents if development continues at present densities.

But he cautioned that development trends of tomorrow won't be the same as todays. The area contains 214 square miles and 32 of these have been used for urban development. Of the remainder, 94 square miles is suitable for development, which would provide room for 750,000 people at today's densities.

The areas of future growth are those which have boomed in recent years — especially Saanich and Langford-Colwood, but also Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney. This is shown in population projections on this page.

"The transition from a rural environment, with minimal services, to an urban area, with adequate services, has always proven to be difficult, frustrating and costly, unless issues and problems have been understood and correct action taken." Blenkinsop Valley Study, 1969.

These outer areas began to change 10 to 15 years ago, to a greater or lesser degree, says Roberts.

"So we got a period of kind of . . . subdivide where you want to. That is a generalization. There were some pretty firm controls in Saanich, in other areas it was pretty open — Central Saanich, Langford-Colwood, View Royal."

"Then, to the last decade, the last five years in particular, there's been a recognition in municipalities that it wasn't in their interest to let this haphazard trend continue, so you got some fairly substantial development control, in Central Saanich in particular, but a fairly firm policy in Saanich and North Saanich.

"Langford-Colwood has been wide open pretty well and has attracted a lot of development. In terms of over-all subdivision layout the standards are not as good as municipalities and in the services provided."

Development in Langford-Colwood, which has no sewers, has been helped by having gravel sub-soil which allows percolation from septic tanks.

Roberts said the total picture is one of steady growth, at about 2½ per cent a year.

He said trends will be affected by three main factors — sewer construction, public policy and controls from this program, and transportation.

Sewers will open up the Colquitz area and sewering in Central Saanich will tend to encourage development in these areas. Improvements to the Patricia Bay Highway will make it that much easier to commute to downtown from the Peninsula.

Discussing public policy, Roberts said "we come back to what is the total regional policy and the extent to which it will be and can be implemented at the local level.

"Some regional development policy can be implemented at the regional level — trunk sewers and acquiring regional parkland. But it remains to be seen what local municipal policy develops."

Saanich planner Tom Loney said one of the trends, dictated by economics, is to higher population densities. People will live closer together.

There is more concern about housing at the municipal level. A few years ago there was virtually no municipal connection. Now Saanich is involved with a senior citizens project, a family housing scheme and in helping non-profit groups looking for land.

Loney sees continued and fairly rapid growth in tourism, slow but not spectacular growth in the military establishment, a possible "tail off" in the civil service with the new provincial office building in Vancouver, growth as a centre for finance and for executive operations which "We can't control and keep development in one area. Scatter it out and let people live where they want to. Colwood would never have existed if Saanich had not set controls 10 years ago. These controls bring in poor future development." Saanich citizen, loudly applauded, at Saanich lands and planning committee, 1969.

"We are becoming more and more under the influence of Greater Vancouver," he said. "Areas of the Saanich Peninsula will become economically feasible for people to live in and commute to Vancouver."

"The impact of these trends is what we are trying to wrestle with now — the distribution of population, areas which should be serviced — to try and ensure the municipality develops in an economical manner."

"And the second thing we want to do is to preserve the character of the area. If the character disappears, it will certainly have a lot of impact on our tourist base."

Both planners agreed that land use will be primarily determined by residential needs, with commercial zoning to augment this.

Why have certain areas — especially Gordon Head and Langford-Colwood — shown such rapid growth in recent years?

Loney said the University of Victoria is the magnet for Gordon Head. The magnetism includes sheer snobbery, handy facilities, playing fields, recreational activities, adult education and the physical setting itself — a pleasant outlook on fairly level land easy to develop.

The attraction of Langford-Colwood, said Roberts, is primarily economic — a cheap place to live, with low taxes.

Loney said that Gordon Head, in the last few years, has been the only place where Saanich has been able to put in sewers. This would change when sewers are laid in the Colquitz area.

While not predicting when Gordon Head would be fully built up, he said there would be other areas for this income group — Broadmead, expansion of Northridge and parts of the Colquitz.

"The biggest demand for places to live is from people without money," he said. "Hopefully this will be catered to with an increase in family apartments. We hope Colquitz (sewered) lots will be less expensive than Gordon Head but it won't be cheap."

One of the key questions posed to both planners was: can suburban and regional sprawl be contained with seven municipalities, plus the province, holding zoning and building regulation power in their own areas.

Loney said yes, but qualified it. Much would depend on the preparation of a regional plan, the subsequent discussion, reaction of municipalities, and whether or not the plan is adopted.

"I don't think that politically, that any of the local governments are going to willingly give zoning control to a regional board," he said.

"To a significant extent the face of a community is its fortune. An attractive environment as we now have in the capital region provides a pleasant place in which to live and visit. It is unlikely that such an environment will survive unless we take steps to protect it." Blenkinsop Valley Study, 1969.

And simply doing this, he said, will not of itself ensure any change in development.

"Most of our development in cities takes place when a decision is made by private capital to proceed or not with a certain development," he said.

"The amount of public funds spent in any municipality is very minor compared with the amount of funds by private capital. So let's not kid ourselves — no local government is really making these decisions.

"It may be able to establish a favorable or unfavorable climate and in this sense have an effect on decisions in the private sector, but it doesn't guarantee them."

Roberts also qualified his answer.

"If there is general acceptance of broad development policy as set out in an official regional plan, then regional objectives need not be compromised by individual municipal actions," he said.

Development sprawl is not only unsightly to the eye, and considered poor planning, it is expensive.

This point is emphasized in the Saanich planning department's Blenkinsop Valley Study made public earlier this year. It recommended roughly half of Saanich's 38 square miles be subject to a five-acre subdivision minimum to control sprawl and hold development to the area where sewers will be installed.

The study said it costs more to provide only an unsurfaced road and water supply to a 40,000 square foot lot than to provide roads, curbs, sidwalks, street lights, water, sanitary sewer and storm sewer to a 7,000 square foot lot.

The cost is about $250 less to provide full urban services to an urban lot than to provide road and water to a 1.6-acre lot.

Both planners agreed that future residential development should not be planned on the basis of where sewers go, but the other way round.

Loney said the function of planning is to plan where residential development is wanted, then put sewers in,

"For the next 20 years and more, Saanich will be accommodating the greater portion of the residential needs of the projected population growth for the capital region of British Columbia. The decision must be made to deal with this on an orderly and efficient basis but in the context of an environment required to meet the needs of the Greater Victoria community." Economic Study of the Proposed Colquitz Open Space Plan, Reid, Crowther and Partners Limited, 1969.

tempered by engineering and economic considerations.

Roberts said it should be decided where development is wanted, in the public interest, and then prepare logical servicing programs to implement this decision.

Nearly 400,000 To Reside Between Sooke and Sidney

'A Lot of Damage Done' In Langford, Colwood

Ten years ago the capital region was warned to take action to prevent an unplanned mess in Langford and Colwood.

The warning wasn't heeded and today it is almost too late to correct.

And the same error could be repeated in the Highland district, west of Saanich municipality, and in the Gulf Islands.

The warning for Langford-Colwood came in the 1959 Plan for the Capital Region of British Columbia, by the Capital Region Planning Board. It said:

"To date the development of the Langford-Colwood area has proceeded with little regard to the over-all physical pattern of the community which is evolving.

"If this condition is not remedied soon it will be too late to achieve a satisfactory and economical arrangement for even the most elementary aspects of community layout such as roads and subdivision."

Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, was asked by the Times if it is too late.

"If your objective is a relatively efficient community, then it is too late," he said.

"As long as change is taking place there is still room for improvement. As long as there is growth taking place you have a choice of whether it is planned or not.

"But a lot of damage has been done there —environmental damage and efficiency damage. In 1967 they took one step, they brought in some elementary land use control, zoning if you like.

"That was a step in the right direction, but very late in the day. Before that it was like the Highlands—literally wide open. It was too little and too late."

He said it is not too late yet, but the situation is not any better than it was.

"The controls that exist are not enough to ensure what I personally feel to be an attractive environment," he said.

Langford and Colwood are in the unorganized area, as are the Highlands, Gulf Islands, View Royal, Metchosin and Sooke. What little authority and regulation that exists comes from the provincial government.

Langford and Colwood have experienced some of the biggest population increases in the area—24 per cent between 1961 and 1966. Present population is 14,000.

So far this year, building permits have been issued for 287 houses—two more than Saanich municipality, which has a far bigger popultion.

In Langford-Colwood, there are no sidewalks and no sewers, poor subdivision layout, one park and one building inspector.

Roberts wondered if the Highland district will become "the Langford-Colwood of the next decade—the place where anything goes."

In the same category are the Gulf Islands. They are outside the Capital Region Planning Board's area, but inside the boundary of the Capital Regional District which is expected to absorb the regional planning function next year.

Roberts, whose staff members are working on a Gulf Islands study for the Capital Regional District, says Salt Spring Island is developing as the next Langford-Colwood with "urban subdivision scattered all over the place."

There was no community planning area, such as introduced for Langford-Colwood in 1967, "so it is like the Highlands—anything goes. There is no zoning."

He expressed surprise at what is being found on Salt Spring, but Pender, Mayne and Galiano were going the same way.

"Things like future transportation and where water services are coming from, sewers—no one is even considering them. Relatively few lots are being built on, but there is speculation."

Why have people rushed to live in the Langford-Colwood area?

Roberts belives it is economics—cheaper land and low taxes, because there are very few services.

"In terms of a new house for a family at the lowest possible price, there aren't many alternatives," he said.

"When somebody wants to buy, especially these days, the main considerations are two: the down payment and monthly payments. All other questions are subservient to these two points."

"It is also relatively accessible to town and by and large a fairly attractive area—it started off with a great deal of natural attraction, but this is very much less important than straight financial considerations."

Roberts emphasized, in his comments, that he isn't saying it is wrong that Langford-Colwood don't look like the Uplands.

"For the same expenditures in the devlopment of Langford-Colwood, they could have had a lot more if it was planned beforehand," he said.

He mentioned the existence of "bowling alley lots," measuring 120 feet across and 1,400 feet deep. This wasted the owner's money as well as the land.

There was a scattering of land uses, with too many industrial and semi-industrial uses in residential areas, affecting traffic, safety and a pleasant environment.

"If these people say we can't afford sidewalks, that's fine," he said.

"If they had some controls they would not have the annoyance of the used car wrecker in the neighborhood."

Loney said people are moving to Langford-Colwood because it is cheaper and because there is less regulation.

But the "hidden costs" are high—lack of planning is creating a legal land system that will be difficult to resubdivide so that much of the area now exists in awakward, impossible road and lot patterns.

"The economics of this type of development are going to be wild," he said. "Sewer costs will be fantastically high."

He thought people there would find themselves living in an essentially urban area, with none of the advantages of rural or urban envirnment and the disadvantages of both.

"There will be no peace and quiet, and there will be no full urban services," he said.

Participatory Democracy Troublesome for Trudeau

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to be holding firm in his determination to develop "participatory democracy," but it's apparently more difficult than it sounds.

For instance, when several members of his cabinet were publicly disagreeing earlier this year on Canada's role in NATO —all in the name of encouraging public participation—it created the impression of a wide cabinet spit. Sources say a decision has been made that this particular form of participatory democracy won't be tried again.

And now, it seems, increased participation for backbench Liberals has created some potential difficulties.

Since Mr. Trudeau assumed office he has been advocating a bigger role for backbenchers in the decision-making process, and there have been equally enthusiastic cries from the backbenchers themselves.

CONSULTS CAUCUS

So Liberal House Leader Donald S. Macdonald presented the caucus with an accommodating proposal.

In future, he said, after a cabinet committee has formulated a policy, it will report to the corresponding caucus committee before taking its recommendations to full cabinet. And if the caucus committee is not entirely satisfied, it can take the policy before a full meeting of the caucus.

This would replace the existing "bikini" briefings—which covered only essential areas—that the caucus used to get on forthcoming legislation.

There were some objections to Mr. Macdonald's proposal but, oddly, they didn't come from cabinet ministers. They came from some backbenchers.

While full participation in the decision-making process might be ideal in theory, there is a strong feeling among some backbenchers that it's not entirely practical in a diverse country like Canada.

WANT PUBLICITY

For instance, a highly-desirable piece of legislation might be objectionable to one particular constituency, and the MP from that area doesn't want to state his objections behind the closed doors of the caucus. He wants to do so publicly in the Commons—otherwise, his constituents will be unaware of his contribution.

While the new system of greater caucus participation won't prevent an MP from stating his reservations in the Commons, there are some members who feel it will have an inhibiting effect.

In theory, the legislation will be coming before Parliament with the blessing of the caucus, and some of these members feel it will be a bit more difficult to reopen arguments that already were threshed out in caucus.

DOUBTS PLAN

"Personally," said one Liberal MP, "I am not convinced the government will be very happy if we hold up policies in caucus with long arguments and then do an encore in the Commons.

"They (the cabinet) might very well say, 'Why bother.' "

"Yet if we don't stand up in the Commons and state our objections," said another MP, "how will our constituents know that we already fought like the devil?"

"We'll see how it works," said another. "But right now I am not convinced that this is the best form of participation."

Jailed Leader Dies

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Imam Abdullah Haron, a Cape Town Moslem religious leader, has died while being held under South Africa's terrorism act, police reported Sunday night. The Imam, spiritual adviser to mixed-race Moslems in the city's big Athlone suburb, had been held in a Cape Town police station since May 28.

Drug Firm to Pay Thalidomide Victims

SOEDERTAELJE (Reuters) — The Swedish pharmaceutical company Astra has agreed provisionally to pay compensation to 100 children deformed by thalidomide, a tranquillizer drug marketed by the company before its damaging effects were discovered.

Under the terms of an out-of-court settlement reached here Friday, 96 Swedish and four Danish children will on average receive about 6,000 crowns ($1,240) annually for the rest of their lives — which is expected to cost the company a total of more than 35,000,000 crowns ($7,230,000).

The agreement is subject to the approval of the children's parents. Under it the children would receive more than 50 per cent of the compensation their lawyers had planned to demand in court.

Stockholm newspapers reported Saturday that the parents of at least 12 children are not prepared to accept the company's offer.

By MICHAEL HAYES

PORT AU PRINCE (Reuters) — Fear rules the tropical island of Haiti—from the gleaming white palace of its president-for-life, Francois Duvalier, to the shacks dotting the countryside.

For "Papa Doc" Duvalier, a former country doctor who has run Haiti since September, 1957, the fear is of a Communist backed coup d'etat. Two anti-aircraft guns and a pair of ancient tanks on the manicured lawns in front of his palace, and a country-wide network of plainclothes roughneck informers known as the "ton ton macoute" bear witness to this.

The fear is based partly on fact, and partly on the dictator's hope the U.S. government will soon rush to his aid to avert any Communist takeover, say diplomatic sources.

DUVALIER
. . . sees Communists

The fact is that in recent months, several anti-Duvalier guerrilla outbreaks have been staged, the most recent in June when an exile group unsuccessfully sought to smash the government by dropping from a plane two home-made bombs on the palace and landing an invasion force.

But observers here doubt Duvalier's claims the insurrections were Communist-led. By failing to redeem the Western Hemisphere's second-oldest republic from abject poverty and his use of a reign of terror, Papa Doc has managed to antagonize a wide section of the Haitian nation, not only those on the far left.

The fear for the slum-dwellers, who with their rural counterparts make up the overwhelming majority, is that they will never see a better life.

With a population of between 3,000,000 and 4,600,000—even official estimates vary because no census has been taken for decades and births and deaths often go unrecorded—Haiti is one of the most densely-populated countries in the world.

Most arable land is given over to subsistence farming and even basic public services are lacking in much of the mountainous island.

Haiti is only two hours by plane from the United States. But unlike other Latin American countries, it receives no direct aid from Washington. President John F. Kennedy cut off all assistance in 1963 on the grounds it was being misused by Duvalier.

In the cool hills of Petionville, home of the wealthy elite and site of the major tourist hotels, fear exists that if Duvalier is toppled something more sinister may take his place.

"Even this situation is preferable to anarchy and chaos which must ensue if the one man who has held the country together for so long should be overthrown," a middle-class merchant said.

Preventive Health Care Program Seen

BURNABY (CP) — Oil and automotive companies have set up "diagnostic clinics" in several Canadian centres, designed to detect faults in cars before they really go clunk.

Why not do the same for humans? The answer is that such clinics could well be set up in British Columbia if a pilot project at Simon Fraser University pans out.

Dr. W. R. Duncan, health services director, compared the proposed medical diagnostic clinics to those used for cars and added: "We think of it as defusing medical time bombs."

Using computers and specially trained medical technicians, the clinics would offer physical and psychological testing services to detect troubles at a stage early enough to cure.

A technical group at SFU has tested more than 80 persons, all of whom were apparently healthy. For a start, they uncovered four with serious but relatively rare ailments.

SPOT ABNORMALITIES

"If we can flush disease out of a supposedly healthy population like this," said Dr. Duncan, "imagine what we can find if we took the whole age system."

Each subject is tested while taking a little physical exercise, designed to create stress and emphasize any abnormalities. Blood pressure and pulse rate are checked first.

Then the subject works for three four-minute periods on a stationary bicycle and the heart is checked. Also checked are oxygen intake and the capacity of the lungs to absorb oxygen.

There follow comprehensive physical and psychological tests. The subject's blood is checked after the exercise and again 48 hours later.

Dr. Duncan figures that when technicians have the procedures down to a fine art, they could test 100 people a day in each of several vans travelling to B.C. communities.

Computer records would be kept, simplifying the process of keeping medical records. Dr. Duncan says the program could be ready for public operation in three years.

Korean Crew Of Freighter Found Safe

HONOLULU AP) — All 37 crew members aboard a stricken South Korean cargo ship have been located on an island 150 miles east of Taiwan, the U.S. Air Force said Saturday.

The vessel Young Poong had been broken up by Typhoon Elsie and the crew were reported adrift in the sea for more than 12 hours.

An air force HC-130 entered the area when the typhoon moved aside and located the survivors and the boat washed up on the beach.

The plane deployed three para-rescuemen who reported that all 37 survivors were safe and apparently well.

Alberta Looking To Sheep

EDMONTON (CP)—Sheep—the forgotten animals in agriculture—are suddenly looming as the saviour of the hard-pressed Alberta rancher.

Experts believe this industry can revitalize Alberta ranching. They say that sheep are in demand for food throughout the world. Flocks of sheep once roamed southern Alberta, but prosperity and widespread cattle ranching cut their numbers until the only sheep ranches were in the extreme south of the province and even their numbers were dwindling.

Old-time ranchers say the situation now has changed again, and sheep are becoming popular.

"I have a list as long as your arm of people who are asking for ewes as breeding stock," says V. M. Gleddie, sheep specialist with the Alberta department of agriculture. "Ewes are becoming scarce and the price is moving up."

Sheep are the answer for farmers who are looking for a product they can sell, Mr. Gleddie said.

He estimated that Canadian production of sheep could be tripled or quadrupled without any strain on markets.

Canada produces only one-third of the lamb consumed in this country. Lamb consumption averaged only 4.2 pounds per family, compared to average beef consumption of 80 pounds.

BIG U.S. MARKET

Canadian farmers should supply a larger share of the home market, he said, and could even supply the United States. The U.S. market alone required at least another 1,000,000 sheep.

During the last few years the profit margin in raising sheep has been far better than in raising cattle, one sheep rancher said.

Louis Shewchuk, a rancher from Tofield, about 30 miles southeast of Edmonton, has 115 ewes.

He claims he has grossed about $6,000 annually from the sheep on 60 acres of land, and would like to expand to 500 sheep, which would provide a profit large enough to support his family.

"There just isn't enough breeding stock around right now," he says.

Mr. Gleddie blames the decline in sheep ranching on a number of factors. Lack of knowledge about sheep, lack of good labor, problems with predators and the need for close supervision during lambing are all factors.

"There are solutions for all these problems, but they were not applied," he said.

"Breeders here think 200 sheep make a large flock. A large flock is 3,000 sheep and we only have one flock like this in the province," Mr. Gleddie said.

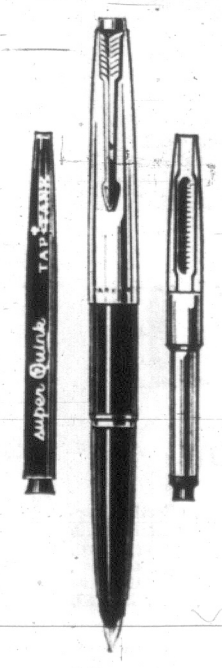

He views the northwestern Peace River area as natural sheep-raising country.

"After all, sheep are the most resistant to cold of any livestock."

Veteran Aldermen Seek Mayor's Chair

DODSWORTH

ELFORD
. . . 'controlled development'

Two veteran Oak Bay aldermen announced this morning that they would be seeking the mayor's chair in the Dec. 6 civic election.

Ald. Walter Dodsworth, completing his eighth year on council, and Ald. Frances Elford, completing her sixth year, will both be starters in the race.

A third alderman, Douglas Watts, has said he is "seriously considering" tossing his hat into the ring. Watts was unavailable for comment this morning following the Dosworth-Elford announcement.

THREE QUITTING

Mayor Fred Hawes confirmed this morning he definitely will not be seeking re-election.

He is one of three Greater Victoria mayors leaving office this year. The other two are Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, and Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria.

Two aldermen, Clyde Savage and Robert Baird, will square off for the Victoria seat. There are, at present, no bidders in sight in Esquimalt.

While neither Dodsworth nor Mrs. Elford forecast any great changes in administration if elected, Dodsworth did promise a streamlining of Oak Bay council meetings.

EXPERIENCE ESSENTIAL

"In the past I think we have wasted too much time counting how many dogs have been impounded and what we are going to do with cats in the pound," Dodsworth said.

Dodsworth added that it was essential that Oak Bay voters elected a mayor from council ranks.

"With so much going on regionally in the field of hospitals and sewers it is absolutely essential that Oak Bay's next mayor has a background knowledge of those proposals."

During his eight years on council Dodsworth has served on all major committees and on the Capital Region Planning Board.

If elected, one of his main targets during his two years in office will be to bring Oak Bay closer to its own recreational facilities.

Dodsworth stressed he wasn't promising overnight miracles in the recreation field.

Mrs. Elford said she would continue to push for "controlled development in the municipality if elected."

"I feel strongly that the 1969 council worked well along these lines," she said. "We let it be known that we wanted development in the municipality but that we also intended to control that development."

Mrs. Elford also promised to work for better recreational facilities.

NEED MONEY

"I would like to see us move in this direction as quickly as possible," she said. "But I don't want to see us go to the people for support until we know we have the money available.

"But I think the major endeavor in the 1970s will lie in the field of intermunicipal co-operation," she added. "It would be my intention to work closely with other municipalities and at the regional level to bring about better hospital facilities and to strengthen our pollution control programs."

Dodsworth was born in 1907, Mrs. Elford in 1914.

Gati's Programming Makes First Symphony Easily Enjoyable

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Making what was probably a wise decision, Laszlo Gati emphasized the charming, the vivacious, the effortlessly enjoyable, in programming Victoria Symphony Orchestra's opening pair of concerts.

Gati, the orchestra and guest artist, Czechoslovakian pianist Eva Bernathova, bowed in the 29th season at the Royal Theatre, Sunday, for a near-capacity audience.

That the symphony for 1970 is to have a new and better sound is quite evident already, despite the short time between the long summer hiatus and this first concert.

IMPROVED BALANCE

Much can be expected of the orchestra over the next few weeks. But already, with the addition of a number of new and proficient players, a thicker, silkier string tone has improved the balance of the ensemble.

This was especially notable in Delius' lovely impressionistic intermezzo, The Walk to the Paradise Garden which followed the brass-rampant Handel Royal Fireworks Suite.

Tender and evanescent, with its moments of rapture rising in finely balanced crescendoes, this was a clear example of Gati's instinct for the expression of tonal poetry.

FINE ATTACK

Again, strings are much to the fore in Mendelssohn's A Major (Italian) Symphony and after a fine attack this section settled down to a disciplined, cleanly articulated participation, contributing much to the particularly lovely second movement.

There is a reed entry, pianissimo, in the fourth movement and this was exceptionally well handled. A buoyant rhythm permeated the entire performance and gave it a sense of warmth and light.

Beethoven at his most Mozartean in his second Piano Concerto, was the vehicle for soloist Bernathova.

In perfect accord, Gati and Bernathova handled this music with admirable restraint, resisting any temptation to force it into a bigger mold than its nature demanded.

INTUITION

Bernathova possesses a fine musical intellect with the innate artist's intuition for perfect symmetry of phrase and balance of tonal design.

One can only guess, in this instance, at the power that lies beneath her exquisitely controlled performance. But that it is there cannot be doubted for it supplies the strength that makes such control possible.

Sensitivity and impeccable taste invest every aspect of her artistry — the purity of touch that turns passage work to festoons of crystal droplets, the warmth and sweetness with which she manipulates a phrase.

SYMPATHETIC

The tossing of phrases backward and forward between soloist and orchestra was effective, the orchestra under Gati's sympathetic touch, matching ritard and diminuendo skillfully.

Bernathova appears in the international artists recital series on Wednesday at McPherson Playhouse and it will be extremely interesting to hear this mature and finely endowed pianist performing completely contrasted syles of music.

The symphony program will be repeated tonight at the Royal Theatre at 8:30.

Kitchen Band jars United Appeal breakfasters awake

Appeal Gives Everyone a Chance To Carry Burden of Citizenship

"We can make it," he shouts.

He was riding high above 160 people at the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal kickoff this morning. The astronaut on the poster is the symbol of the appeal, the pie-moon its objective of $694,000.

The red slice represents the $112,000 pledged before the campaign officially began. By the time he completes one orbit, the objective will have been met, and the whole moon will be red.

Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen officially declared Sept. 29 to Nov. 10 United Appeal month at the breakfast and, later in the morning, town cryer, ringing a bell, made the proclamation through downtown Victoria.

'COMPASSIONATE SOCIETY'

Stephen told the breakfasters "our young people accuse us of not caring about what's going on around us. This appeal gives us a chance to show that we are a compassionate society . . . to show that the people of Victoria know how to shoulder the burden of citizenship."

Stephen said the people who have taken the job of carrying out the campaign had accepted "an onerous and most difficult but rewarding job that one can do in the community."

One reward was promised by campaign chairman Peter Darling this morning. He had been asked if he would supply some "bubbly refreshment" if the campaign objective was met.

He agreed, wished the workers success, and said, "I hope I can break out the bubbly when it's over."

PLEASED BY RESULTS

Darling said he is pleased by the results of the campaign in the armed forces. He was afraid with announced federal defence cuts, servicemen would become tight-fisted with their money.

But not so, he says. "They've said, 'damn the torpedoes and full speed ahead.'"

So far, the services have been successful on 70 per cent of their canvass, "up considerably from last year," Darling said.

He urged business canvassers to get their rounds done early. And he hoped people wouldn't procrastinate about their donation. "You can't expect a volunteer to come again and again for a single gift and still retain his enthusiasm."

HOUSE APPEAL

He wants the business campaign finished before Oct. 6, when the house to house appeal begins. About 10 per cent of the total is expected to come from the residential canvas, he said.

L. G. Glassford, president of the community chest, said he hopes people will accept canvassers at their homes as friends and neighbors.

As the people started into their breakfast of sausages and scrambled eggs at 8, a variety of entertainers, including the Victoria Silver Threads Kitchen Band, woke them up.

REACHED GOAL

As they started into their coffee, Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes started into the list of firms that have already reached their 1969 objective.

He gave scrolls to representatives of Smith Cedar Products; the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, 3831 Cadboro Bay Rd.; Toronto Dominion Bank, 3635 Douglas and McKenzie and Borden branches; McCall Bros. Funeral Directors; Standard Life Assurance; Harbord Insurance; Goodwill Enterprises; Community Chest; Canadian Mental Health Association, Victoria branch; John Howard Society of Vancouver Island; Victorian Order of Nurses, and the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

The first kickoff breakfast was last year when 200 people attended. Everyone pays for his own breakfast.

POOR STATE 5 DEMANDS

Federal health minister John Munro and five provincial health and welfare ministers will discuss poverty with some of Victoria's poor in the YM-YWCA Wednesday.

Ministers, deputies and advisors from Ottawa, the provinces, the Yukon and Northwest Territories will be in Victoria from Wednesday to Friday for a federal-provincial conference on health and welfare matters.

The Wednesday meeting, which starts at 8 p.m. and is open to the public, will see presentation of five recommendations by the Low Income Co-operative of Greater Victoria:

- Establishment of an independent home economics body to set living allowances for families by region;
- Dispensing of cheques to be made a clerical function divorced from social workers;
- Make client abuse by social workers a cause for immediate dismissal;
- Establishment of an independent body to investigate claims of abuse;
- And provision of sufficient social workers and resources to ensure employment opportunity for welfare clients.

Walter Olszewski, president of the low income group, said 50 per cent of contacts between social workers and clients result in abuse of clients.

Olszewski and three other low income representatives travelled to Ottawa in July to meet with Munro.

Only 'Myopic' Don't See Value of Tourist Dollar

By AB KENT

Lane, the publisher of Sunset Magazine and recently chosen as the first non-Canadian to be Vancouver Tourist and Convention Bureau Man of the Year, was giving the keynote address to some 200 delegates and guests at the Empress Hotel.

His message—The Day the Tourists Stopped Coming—highlighted the conference theme: Tourism, Transportation and Trade—Everybody's Business.

HARD FACTS

Lane used a framework of fiction to weave what he called "some very hard facts" about tourist spending in everyday economy.

Dan Bevans, Eddie Carson, Blanshard Gardens and Bill Blane to play roles in the community of Seattville, where Eddie and His Pals are trying to organize the Lake Fair as a major attraction.

Their problems stem from the unwillingness of business and professional men to recognize that tourist money trickles through the whole community, Lane said.

'CUT ITS ORDER'

On the day tourists stopped, the hotel cut its grocery order, the grocer dropped plans to increase his insurance, the insurance man abandoned the idea of winning a trip to Hawaii, his wife cancelled her order for a new dress, the innkeeper broke off negotiations with architect and contractors for an addition to the hotel . . . repercussions all down the line.

Attractions are often taken for granted by residents, he noted, but their vital tourist role cannot be underestimated.

Today, and bound to grow quickly, the tourist industry expects North Americans to have more holidays as well as more discretionary income, more interests because of more education, and certainly more interest in travel, Lane said.

Pharmacists Drop Welfare Surcharge

Welfare recipients will no longer have to pay a dollar for every prescription filled, beginning Wednesday.

The British Columbia Professional Pharmacists' Society has agreed to suspend the dollar surcharge to welfare recipients which was put into effect April 15.

The dollar surcharge was added by druggists because they claimed they were not receiving enough compensation from the province for welfare prescriptions.

"We were losing an average of $1.14 every time we filled one of those prescriptions," said BCPPS executive co-ordinator Peter Bell.

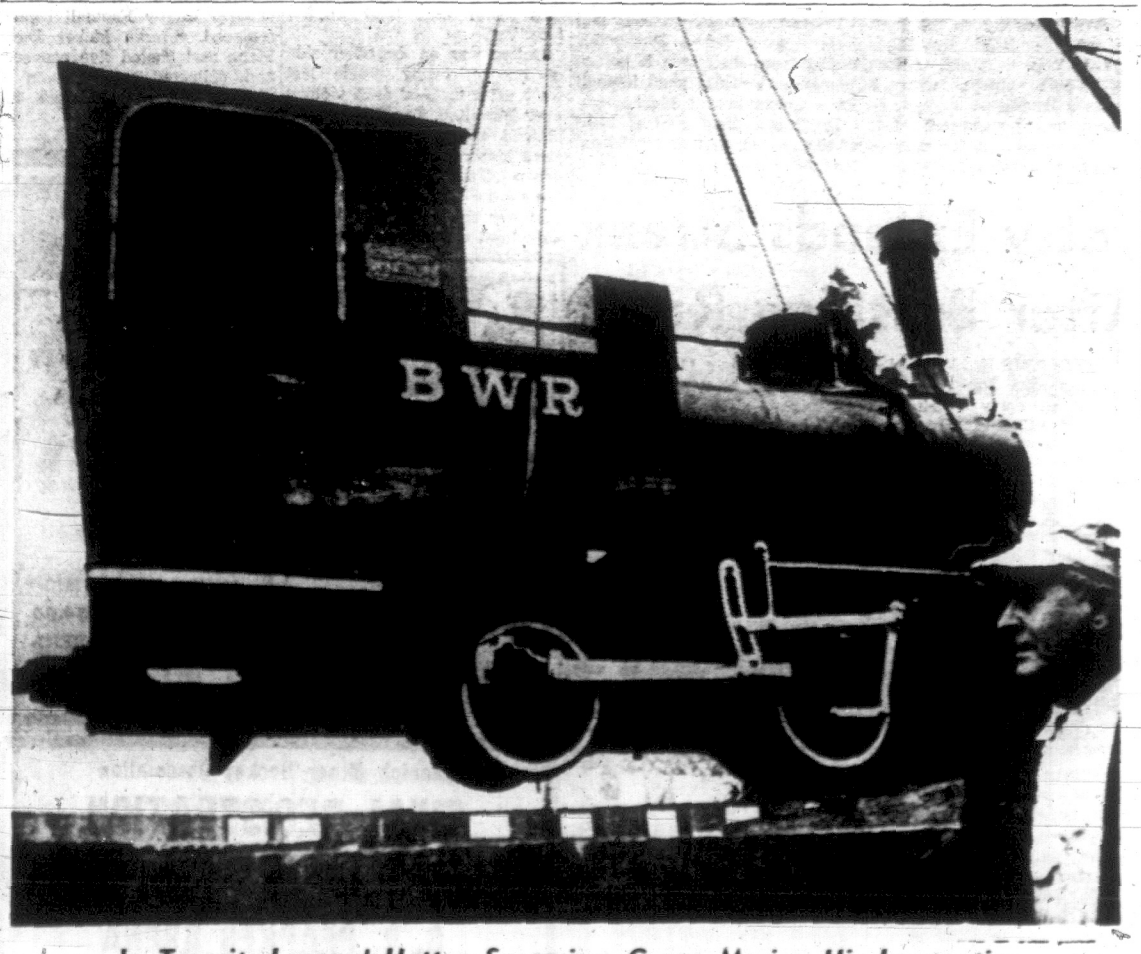

"We added the dollar charge because we weren't making any headway with the government."

Bell said the druggists had an agreement with the province since 1954 to supply drugs to welfare recipients but it had deteriorated with inflation.

"When the government simply refused to discuss a new agreement the dollar surcharge was the only alternative."

On Sept. 15, negotiations with Dan Campbell's social welfare department were re-opened.

In Transit: Leonard Hutton Supervises Crane Moving His Locomotive

Hard to Kick Chugging Habit

Leonard Hutton grew up in Prince Albert, Sask., and his biggest thrill as a child was watching steam engines—thundering, chuffing, or just standing still.

He became so enamoured with the "black statement of pistons" made by those smokey trains, whether the powerful manifestoes of a screaming express or a chugging freight, that he made a daily habit of viewing the glistening black hardware.

It got to be hard habit to kick. Maybe it influenced him into realizing the dream of many youngsters: He became a Canadian National Railways engineer.

"There wasn't hardly a day in my life I didn't look at steam engines, I guess," says the 66-year-old Hutton.

When he came to the Victoria area over 26 years ago, steam-driven engines were already on the decline. It looked like he was going to have to kick his habit.

He couldn't. Instead he bought a miniature locomotive—small enough to store at home and tinker with, still driven by steam and powerful enough to pull 300 people.

"Oh, I could never put a price on it," he says, "it's the only one of its kind in Canada though, and a similar one resold in the United States recently for $18,000."

He was busy today moving the 1936 German-built engine from his son's home on Pearl to his own Townley Street home.

Hutton is getting on, and he says there's nothing he'd like better than to donate his engine to the city for use in a park.

"It's all tested and ready to go. It would be a great tourist attraction. It's not a toy like some of them, this one will easily pull 300 people.

"Most people now make up gasoline engines to look like steam trains, but this one is real, with a real boiler."

City officials, however, don't seem too interested in acquiring the two-foot gauge locomotive, he says in dismay.

It's not that he objects to keeping the engine at home where he can eye the sleek symmetry of the machine, it's just that he'd like to share his passion with someone else.

"A train shouldn't sit and be looked at," he says, "it should be working."

Oak Bay Quarterback Terry Karpiuk Looks for Running Room as Linemen Collide

Tough Farmer Defence Knocks Down Hornets

By STEVE HUME

Oak Bay Farmer Construction came up with crunching defensive play Sunday to bring down high-flying Chew Excavating Hornets 13-2 in a head-on Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League collision at Centennial Stadium.

Three times a sharp Hornet offensive unit capitalized on mistakes and breaks to move the ball inside Oak Bay's 10-yard line with first-down situations before 1,800 fans.

Three plays later the ball went over to Oak Bay, and with fine poise, quarterback Terry Karpiuk bucked a runner into the line for no gain, faked the same play and unloaded an 85-yard pass-and-run bomb to Mike Blades for the major.

Minutes later, on the kickoff return, Hornets' outstanding running back Pete Rushton was injured and left the field by stretcher. Club officials said later he was not seriously injured.

Three plays later another Oak Bay fumble set up Hornets at the three-yard line. Farmers held once again.

When a third Oak Bay fumble left Hornets on the seven-yard line with a first down it looked like the tough Farmer defence had to crack under the pressure.

But two line plunges were stifled, and when Hornet quarterback Pat Griffin fired a deep pass into the end-zone, halfback Jack Clerkson made a diving tackle on the receiver to jar the ball loose.

OUTSTANDING EFFORT

Clerkson, playing his last game for Oak Bay before heading for Europe, was an athlete to warm oldtimers' hearts.

He played both ways, picking up good yardage with blasting broken field running, and on defence he made 12 unassisted tackles, led blanket pass coverage, and intercepted a pair of Griffin heaves.

With a 6-2 lead going into the second half, Oak Bay's stuttery offence caught fire, but it remained to the defensive unit to pick up the clinching touchdown.

A third and four situation forced Hornets to punt, but Oak Bay's Dick Venables punched through to block Ken Lundeen's kick. Glen White scooped up the bouncing ball and broke loose for 30 yards when a crunching block by Mike Woods knocked out two Hornets.

Oak Bay managed a total of 283 yards offensively, while Hornets were right behind with 259.

But Oak Bay dominated the passing department as Terry Karpiuk clicked on seven of 13 attempts. Griffin was good only on three of 11.

Meanwhile, in another league game at Nanaimo, the Rams thumped Victoria's James Bay Athletic Association Mustangs 22-6.

The win tied McLaren and Hulme with 125 points in the Can-Am points standings. Chuck Parsons of Deerfield, Ill., is third with 50 points and Chris Amon of New Zealand fourth with 39.

George Eaton of Toronto finished sixth in the race and has 35 points. Kris Harrison of Montreal finished 14th.

Roger McCaig of Regina collided with another car on the first lap and retired. His car was badly damaged but he was not hurt.

GUGGENHEIM TO SELL ALL CAIN HOY HORSES

NEW YORK (AP)—Captain Harry F. Guggenheim, one of the dominant forces in American horse racing and breeding for 35 years, is retiring from active participation in the sport and will sell the horses that made his Cain Hoy Stable famous.

Guggenheim, citing health, said all his horses will be sold at public auction, except his stallions and shares in stallion syndicates, which will be offered in private bidding.

There now are 30 horses in the Cain Hoy Stable.

Trimming Cougars Tackle San Diego

Victoria Cougars, of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, and the professional San Diego Gulls, looked forward to an exhibition meeting in Memorial Arena tonight as both continue their pre-season parading.

Game time is 8:30.

'Selby Statz' goal with four seconds remaining enabled the intermediate Luckies to pull out a 3-3 draw with the Victoria juniors in Port Alberni on Saturday.

At the same time, San Diego came from behind twice on goals by Ross Perkins and Willie O'Ree to tie Western League rival Vancouver Canucks 2-2 at Memorial Arena. O'Ree connected for the final goal with only a minute and 39 seconds remaining.

GOALIES SHARP

Murray Hall and Rene Robert scored for Canucks, who received solid netminding from goalies George Gardner and George Wood. Gulls out-shot the Canucks 36-23.

Vancouver's attack looked better Sunday when the Canucks skated to 5-2 win over the Gulls in Chilliwack. Veteran Phil Maloney sparked Canucks with two goals and an assist while rookie Kevin O'Shea and Irv Spencer connected for San Diego. Paul Andrea, Robert and Barry Watson hit for Vancouver's other goals.

Two goals by rookie Chris Riddell and one by holdover defenceman Murray Kennett staked Cougars to leads in Port Alberni. Luckies came back on scoring shots by Statz, Bruce Stratton and Alvin Brooks.

Victoria coach Doug Anderson announced after the game that Cougars' roster has been trimmed to 22 with the release of Esquimalt juvenile Bruce MacFarlane and Hugh Trask of Quesnel.

At the same time, holdover forwards Scott Munro and Bob Merluk have been signed for the coming season.

Green's Condition Is 'Much Improved'

OTTAWA (CP) — Defenceman Ted Green of Boston Bruins was reported in good condition today after undergoing a two-hour operation Saturday to remove a blood clot which formed where his skull was fractured by a hockey stick.

A hospital spokesman said Green spent a comfortable night and was "much improved" Sunday. He had been conscious and in satisfactory condition Saturday night and was visited by his wife.

Dr. Michael T. Richard, the neurosurgeon who is treating the defenceman, said the wound received in an exhibition game fracas Sept. 20 began to bleed early Saturday and a clot formed.

He said Saturday's operation would delay Green's release from hospital, and that it would take four or five days to determine how long his recovery might take.

Green had been scheduled to leave hospital Sunday and it had been estimated it would be late in the regular NHL season before he would be playing hockey again.

Green was injured in an exhibition game between Boston and St. Louis Blues when he was struck heavily on the right side of the head by Blues forward Wayne Maki, whose stick left Green with a depressed fracture.

Petty Extends Streak After Brushing Rail

MARTINSVILLE, VA. (AP) — Determined Richard Petty survived an early brush with the guard rail and came from two laps behind Sunday to win his third straight Old Dominion 500 stock car race and boost his earnings to $100,000 for the third year in a row.

The 32-year-old winner had been the pre-race favorite, but lost control of his blue racer on the 13th lap and had to restart at the rear of the field.

He gradually worked his way toward the front again, helped by 11 caution flags, and charged into the lead when Pearson began having brake problems and had to slow down.

The victory, Petty's 10th of the season, was worth $10,065. He now has won $100,980 in 42 races and ranks third in the money category behind Leroy Yarbrough and Pearson.

For the 32-year-old Pearson, second place paid $5,190 and boosted him to $157,750 for the season.

TREVINO BLOWS . . . . . . $55,000 PRIZE

Casper Hard to Convince

By ERNIE FEDORUK

PORTLAND — He chose to line up with a legion of non-believers, but Buffalo Billy Casper should have been the easiest to convince. He's "been there" before.

Casper found it hard to believe in 1966 when he picked up five shots in four holes to tie and later defeat Arnold Palmer for the United States Open golf title.

And Sunday, when Casper gained six strokes in the last three holes and defeated Lee Trevino by one stroke to win the $55,000 first prize in the Alcan "Golfer-of-the-Year" tournament, he didn't believe it either.

"I won't believe it until I get the cheque in the mail," said the buffalo-meat eater.

Four birdies on the last four holes gave him the dramatic victory when Trevino fell apart on the 16th and 17th holes.

Casper's final round gave him a 14-under-par 274 for the 72-hole tournament over the 6,541-yard Portland Golf Club course where par is 35-37—72. Trevino finished with a 275 after his final-round 69.

Bob Cox of Vancouver, the only Canadian entered, shot a four-under 68 for a 286 total and $2,200 in prize money.

It was the first time the three-year-old tournament has not been won by Gay Brewer, who finished tied for sixth with surprising Jean Garaialde of Paris.

Trevino, who had registered only three over-par holes in the first three days of the tournament, along with 19 birdies, went over par on the 14th but righted himself on the 15th where he scored an eagle by sending his second seven feet from the pin.

He was one over on the 16th when his second went behind a tree and then went three over on the par-three 17th when he landed in a trap and three-putted.

Bad luck also dogged Trevino on the final hole as he missed, by an inch, a desperate 17-foot putt that would have forced a sudden-death playoff.

Riders Roll Along; Lions Fail Parker

SPORTS

Editor: Doug Peden

Times News Services

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders scored a victory each during the weekend to pull farther away from the other three Western Football Conference clubs.

The Roughriders thrashed visiting Winnipeg Blue Bombers 24-8 Sunday to strengthen their hold on first place and Calgary remained four points behind the leaders with a 22-17 win over British Columbia Lions in Vancouver Saturday.

Saskatchewan's George Reed was credited with his finest performance of the season as he gained 108 yards on 18 carries.

SPARKS OFFENCE

Hugh Campbell scored two Rider touchdowns and Gord Barwell scored the other, all on passes from Ron Lancaster. Jack Abendschan kicked three converts and a field goal as the Roughies took quarter leads of 10-0, 10-1 and 17-1 before 16,828 spectators.

Winnipeg's only touchdown was by Bob Houmard, Ed Ulmer kicked two singles into a 25-mile-an-hour wind at Taylor Field.

Bombers' quarterback Wally Gabler completed 18 of 34 passes for 215 yards but couldn't get his ground game moving.

"I can't complain about the effort," said Parker. "I was concerned about how they would play but they reacted well."

The 21,729 in Vancouver's Empire Stadium saw Larry Robinson kick three field goals and a single and pick off two B.C. passes to give the Stampeders the edge.

Calgary's other points came on touchdowns by quarterback Jerry Keeling from one yard out in the second quarter and by Terry Evanshen in the fourth. Both converts failed.

Lions took a 17-10 lead in the second half, only to blow it and bring their record for the season to 1-10, virtually eliminated from playoff contention.

B.C. got touchdowns by Jim Young on a 30-yard pass from Paul Brothers and a 14-yard run by newcomer Charlie Brown. Ted Gerela booted both converts and added a field goal from 40 yards. Lions played dead the rest of the way.

Craig Murray set up Young's touchdown in the second quarter when he grapped a Keeling pass to Evanshen and ran it back 30 yards. Two plays later Brothers snapped a 30-yard pass to Young.

Brown's run came after Robinson failed to get a good punt away and Stampeders were penalized for giving no yards to the receiver.

B.C. took over on the Calgary 24 and ground out a first down before Brown slashed his way through the defence to score at 6:58 and Lions led, 17-1.

Keeling, who also gave up two interceptions, led a Stampeder march from their own 48 before plunging the final yard himself for a touchdown at 11:54.

Robinson's field goal at 14:53 of the second quarter cut Lions' lead to 17-10.

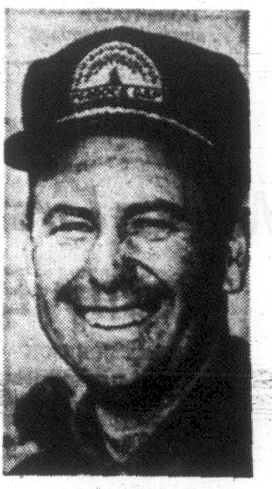

Gerela tried a field goal from 23 yards early in the third quarter, but it hit the upright and bounced out to the 10.

Lions were hit with a penalty for no yards and Calgary took over on its own 16.

Passes to Herm Harrison and Jerry Shaw, and some fine running by Rudy Linterman, put Stampeders in position for Robinson's 38-yard field goal at 8:40.

He missed the convert try after Evanshen brought down Keeling's eight-yard touchdown pass with 14 minutes to play in the fourth quarter, but five minutes later made up for it with an 18-yard field goal.

Next action in the Canadian Football League has Edmonton visiting Hamilton Tiger-Cats Tuesday night.

Coach Charges Wade 'Slugged'

By The Canadian Press

It was coach Kay Dalton's turn to complain about the opposition and the officiating after an Eastern Football Conference battle Sunday that ended with his Montreal Alouettes beaten and his quarterback sent to hospital.

Dalton was fuming after Toronto Argonauts "slugged, kicked and roughed" quarterback Sonny Wade on their way to a 36-33 victory.

Wade was taken to hospital after the game for examination of a suspected concussion which Dalton said he suffered early in the second quarter.

In an interlocking game Saturday, Ottawa Rough Riders blanked Edmonton Eskimos 17-0 to build a three-point lead in the EFC. Ottawa now has 16 points, three ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and four ahead of the Argos. The Ticats have a chance to narrow the lead Tuesday when they play host to the Eskimos.

"Wade didn't know where he was in the second quarter," Dalton said. "They slugged, kicked and roughed him like he was a punching bag."

FAIL TO PENALIZE

Dalton complained the referees failed to penalize the Argos for tackling Wade after he had thrown the ball.

"The only protection the quarterback has after the ball is thrown is the referee. It's a shame, because I've been trying to get a quarterback for four years and the Argos are the only team that tries to kill him."

Dalton was on the other side of the officiating puzzle last week after the Als' 41-35 victory over Hamilton. The Ticats complained that officiating errors gave Montreal their first touchdown. Canadian Football League commissioner Jake Gaudaur ruled that the Ticats' complaint was well founded, but decided against a replay of the match.

Toronto defensive back Jim Tomlin was the hero of Sunday's match after he picked off a Wade pass with 1:16 remaining in the game to frustrate Montreal's last chance for an upset.

It was one of three interceptions picked off by Tomlin who also recorded an 80-yard kickoff return.

He returned his third interception 32 yards and after he was tackled, Wade stomped on the fallen Argo, touching off a brief scuffle among several players. Wade's footwork cost the Als a 15-yard penalty.

COLLECTS TWO TDs

Halfback Dave Raimey collected two touchdowns for Toronto on running plays, and took a pass from quarterback Frank Cosentino for another.

Cosentino, replacing Tom Wilkinson who was resting a sore arm, also threw touchdown passes to Jim Thorpe and Mel Profit. Cosentino was good on 11 of 21 passes for 229 yards and his toss to Thorpe covered 74 yards.

Tom Johansen, from Bramalea Satellites of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, replaced veteran kicker Dave Mann and booted five converts and collected a single on a missed 20-yard field-goal attempt.

LATEST MOVE IN WAR . . . . . . AGAINST SOCCER HOOLIGANS

Police Plan to Ambush Trains

LONDON (AP) — Police plan to ambush trains in remote country places in England to catch soccer hooligans.

If fans travelling home Saturday nights from away games start smashing the windows or ripping up the seats the driver will quietly bring the train to a halt at an agreed spot and the police will swarm aboard.

It's the latest move in the war against the young roughnecks who start trouble drunk and after soccer games.

The ambush operation was planned following the battle of Flitwick, a tiny village 45 miles north of London, where 250 soccer fans ran wild a week ago Saturday after they had been put off a train for bad behavior.

They stormed through the village, smashing windows and throwing stones at residents.

The hooligans were said to be fans of Tottenham Hotspur, which lost 5-0 to Derby County in a league game at Derby that day.

The Tottenham Hotspur supporters' club promptly promised to co-operate with the police. It decided to charter its own trains for away games and to assume full responsibility for fans travelling on it.

Tickets will be sold only to persons who give their names and addresses, making it easier to trace those responsible for bad behavior.

British Railways run special soccer trains every Saturday. The organization has threatened several times to take them out of service after riotous scenes on board.

Magistrates' courts are stepping up sentences against soccer thugs. One man who assaulted two policemen at Leeds United's stadium was jailed for 2½ years. It was the 11th time he had been in court for offences at soccer games.

Kapp Bombs Colts To Tie Pass Mark

JOE KAPP
. . . seven TD tosses

By The Canadian Press

Burly Joe Kapp shredded the Baltimore defence for a record-tying seven touchdown passes Sunday as Minnesota Vikings mashed the defending National Football League defending champion Colts 52-14.

Kapp, a former quarterback for British Columbia Lions and Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League who played amidst boos with Minnesota the last two seasons, joined the elite group of Sid Luckman, Y. A. Tittle and Adrian Burk for throwing the most TD passes in a single game. Burk helped officiate the game as the back judge.

Only George Blanda, when he was with Houston Oilers, has thrown as many as seven scoring passes in a game in the American Footbal League.

In other NFL action, Lo Angeles Rams (2-0) stopped Atlanta Falcons (1-1) 17-7, Green Bay Packers (2-0) held off San Francisco 49ers (0-2) 14-7, Cleveland Browns (2-0) edged Washington Redskins (1-1) 27-23, Dallas Cowboys (2-0) nipped New Orleans Saints (0-2) 21-17, Detroit Lions (1-1) drubbed New York Giants (1-1) 24-0, St. Louis Cardinals (1-1) topped Chicago Bears (0-2) 20-17, and Philadelphia Eagles (1-1) outlasted Pittsburgh Steelers (1-1) 41-27.

The Vikings "took a chapter out of Baltimore's book—striking early and controlling the ball," said Minnesota coach Bud Grant, formerly with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Kapp, who did not play in the Vikings' 24-23 season-opening upset loss to the Giants, hit on his first six passes against the Colts, who took their second loss, and brought Minnesota its first touchdown wth an 18-yarder to Dave Osborn after the first two minutes of play.

His other scoring strikes were of 83 and 41 yards to Gene Washington and of 21, 13, one and 15 yards to four other receivers.

Meanwhile, the Vikings defence harrassed Baltimore quarterbacks Johnny Unitas and Earl Morrall. Unitas completed just two of his 13 passes and ended up eight for 22 for 68 yards with one interception. Morrall was 12 for 20 for 127 yards and had two intercepted.

Kapp said simply: "Our offensive line did a tremendous job."

Los Angeles, now two games ahead of arch-rival Baltimore and in first place in the Coastal Division, built up a 17-0 halftime lead and then held off Atlanta. Larry Smith slammed one yard for the first Rams' touchdown and Roman Gabriel threw a four-yard pass for the other.

LOSES FIRST GAME

Herb Adderley's interception of a John Brodie pass on the Green Bay goal line saved the victory over San Francisco for the Packers, who scored on an 87-yard return of the second-half kickoff by rookie Dave Hampton and a Bart Starr-to-Jim Grabowski swing pass for two yards. The '49ers' score came on an 80-yard bomb from Brodie to Clifton McNeil.

Cleveland handed Vince Lombardi his initial defeat as Washington coach when Bill Nelson passed 15 yards to Gary Collins for a touchdown with 1:19 left. The Redskins had come from a 20-10 deficit to a 23-20 lead by marching 70 yards for one touchdown and getting another on Sonny Jurgensen's 13-yard pass to Bob Long.

Rookie Calvin Hill bulled his way to touchdown runs of 23 and eight yards and Craig Morton threw a 49-yard scoring strike to Les Shy to get Dallas past stubborn New Orleans.

A New York gamble for a first down on fourth down which failed set up a Detroit touchdown, a recovered fumble set up a field goal and Leo Barney's 75-yard punt return brought another touchdown in the Lions' blanking of the Giants.

Amazing Bengals Jolt Kansas City

By The Associated Press

Coach Paul Brown, of the amazing Cincinnati Bengals, won't argue with success, but he does question it.

"I don't know exactly what's doing it—it's a miracle" he said after his Bengals upset Kansas City Chiefs 24-19 Sunday for their third straight victory and the Chiefs' first loss.

In three games this year, all at home, the Bengals have equalled their winning record of last year when they joined the American Football League as an expansion team. They wound up in last place in the Western Division. Today, they're tied with Oakland for first.

As far as the Chiefs are concerned, however, the Bengals are for real.

"They played an outstanding game," said Chiefs' coach Hank Stram. "For us it was a game of missed opportunities."

In other AFL games, San Diego Chargers (1-2) surprised the world champion New York Jets (1-2) 34-27, Buffalo Bills (1-2) routed Denver Broncos (2-1) 41-28, Oakland Raiders (3-0) upended Boston Patriots (0-3) 38-23 and Houston Oilers (2-1) drubbed Miami Dolphins (0-3) 22-10.

The decisive Cincinnati touchdown was set up when Clem Turner recovered Noland Smith's fumble of a Bengal's punt on the Chiefs' 25.

HADL ROCKS JETS

Quarterback John Hadl threw for three of the San Diego's five touchdowns against the slumping Jets.

Jack Kemp tossed three touchdown passes for Buffalo and O. J. Simpson ran for 110 yards in his best performance as a pro. He also caught five passes for 45 yards, including a three-yard touchdown.

Houston came from behind 10-6 in the second half on the strength of Pete Beathard's passing arm and Canadian-born rookie Roy Gerela's foot.

Ruling Gives Soviet Lifter World Crown

WARSAW (AP) — Jan Talts of the Soviet Union was awarded first place in the heavyweight competition of the world weightlifting championships Saturday night after a Russian team protest against an apparent victory by Bob Bednarski of the United States was honored.

A five-man jury of the International Wightlifting Federation deliberated 1½ hours before deciding that Bednarski had failed to meet a time limit for a lift during the final jerk event.

The decision gave Talts the gold medal with a total of 1,204.5 pounds in the three events—press, snatch and jerk—and placed Bednarski second.

Rutgers Repeats Win Of 100 Seasons Ago

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—College football celebrated its 100th birthday Saturday with a game between Princeton and Rutgers, the two teams that played the first match. As it did a century ago, Rutgers won.

The pageantry and ceremonies at the Rutgers campus were interrupted when, just before kickoff, 200 Negroes marched across the field, hands raised in Black Power salutes, to protest what they called a "Racist Institution."

Most of the spectators, however, concentrated on the game in which Rutgers — which has lost most of the annual contests between the two schools — scored an upset victory, 29-0. Enthusiastic fans tore down the goalposts while there were still two minutes left to go in the game.

In the original game Rutgers won, 6-4.

Among ceremonies was an exhibition game in the style of a hundred years ago between Princeton's Ivy club and Rutgers' Delta Phi fraternity. With a round football, as was used in that first intercollegiate game on Nov. 6, 1869, the game appeared more like soccer or rugby than modern-day football.

In the centennial game, Rutgers used the modern forward pass in routing Princeton. Princeton used the new professional-style T-formation instead of its traditional single wing.

Hawkes Takes Vets' Honors

SEATTLE — Victoria's Doug Hawkes rallied strongly to defeat Dave Faires of Seattle, 9-15, 12-15, 15-9, 15-4, 15-4, and capture the "B" veterans' singles Sunday in the Seattle College Club's invitational squash tournament.

Victoria's only other entrant, Guy Screetch, bowed out in the "C" quarter-finals.

Vancouver's George Morfitt defeated Brookes Ragan of Portland 16-14 in the fifth set to win the coveted "A" singles. Other class winners were Tom Wrightson of Portland ("B") and Peter Mercer of Vancouver ("C").

German Girls Snap Records

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Germany's Liesel Westermann and Heide Rosendahl broke world records in track meets Saturday.

Miss Westermann, 21, tossed the discus 209 feet, 10 inches in the opening day of the two-day meet between West Germany and Britain. She eclipsed her own mark of 205-8½ set June 18 in East Berlin.

Miss Rosendahl racked up 5155 points in the pentathlon to better the record of 5093 points set by Liese Prokop of Austria for the five events. The new record was set at a meet involving only German competitors at Leverkusen.

Quarterback Lawrie Garrett, who tossed three touchdown passes, and halfback Sean Flynn paced Knights of Columbus from Victoria's Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League to a 26-15 exhibition victory over Delta Rams Saturday at Braefoot Park.

Canadians Claim Three Gold Medals

TOKYO (CP) — Jay Dahlgren, Debbie Brill and George Puce brought home gold medals for Canada in the first Pacific Conference Games that ended Sunday night. Over-all, the 35-member Canadian team finished third with 14 medals.

The second Games will be held in 1973 in Toronto.

AUSSIES WIN

Australia walked off with the two-day Games championship, winning 15 of the 32 gold medals awarded. The United States was second with 11 gold. New Zealand was fourth with two gold and Japan, the host country, last with one gold—in the pole vault.

Phil May of Australia was the only individual to win two gold medals—in the triple and long jumps.

In addition to the three gold, the Canadian team won three silver and eight bronze medals.

Canada's bronze medallists Sunday were Diane Jones, 18, Saskatoon, in the high jump, Steen in the discus and Brian Donnelly, 26, Toronto, in the 400-metre hurdles.

Donnelly also got a silver as a member of the men's 400-metre relay team along with fellow Torontonians Chuck Francis, 20; Craig Blackman, 18, and Tony Powell, 26.

Stephanie Berto, Penny May, 18, Victoria; Irene Piotrowsky, 28, Vancouver, and Joan Hendry, 24, St. Laurent, Que., comprised the second-place women's 400-metre relay team.

AUSSIES BEST

Australia won 30 medals over-all including 10 silver and five bronze. The U.S. total was 26 including seven silver and eight bronze. New Zealand had five silver and five bronze to go with its pair of gold while Japan had seven silver and seven bronze.

Sunday's closing was marked by the disqualification of Australian sprinter Raelene Boyle from a silver medal in the women's 400 metres and American Bob Seagren's defeat in the pole vault.

PROTEST REFUSED

Seagren, the Olympic champion, managed to clear only 16 feet 2 inches. Japan's Kyoichiro Inouye won it.

The disqualification of 18-year-old Miss Boyle for lane crossing produced an official protest from the Australian team which was still under consideration by officials as the Games ended. The protest finally was turned down.

Within minutes of her disqualification, Miss Boyle came back to win the 200 metres.

ASHFORD GETS LEAGUE POST

In making the announcement Saturday at West Springfield, Mass., league president Jack Butterworth said the appointments of Ashford and David Shewchyk are part of a program to upgrade officiating in the AHL.

Each will work with a local official during league games. In the past, local linesmen have been used by the AHL.

Clarke's Kicking Hurts Norsemen

Dave Clarke booted 14 points to pace Castaways in a 23-3 romp over Uvic Norsemen during a Victoria Rugby Union second-division match Sunday on the university pitch.

Clarke kicked four penalty goals in the first half to give Castaways a 12-0 lead and added a convert to Danny Harlow's try in the second half.

Other Castaway trys were scored by Tom Brown and Paul Bayliss. Reg Hoole answered with Uvic's lone try in the final half.

In first-division action on Saturday, Uvic Vikings blasted James Bay Athletic Association 35-0 after taking a 22-0 half-time lead at Macdonald Park while Oak Bay Wanderers clobbered Cowichan 24-6 at Windsor Park.

Velox (Latin for "swift") made its debut in second-division struggles Saturday by downing JBAA 14-3 behind the kicking power of John Howe, who garnered two penalty goals and a convert.

Uvic Saxons crushed Oak Bay Wanderers 20-6 in the other divisional match. Mark Hoffman topped the scoring list for Saxons with a penalty goal and convert.

Sweeting Sizzles In Dragster Duel

Victoria's Bert Sweeting came on strong in the final run to down National Hot Rod Association record-holder Gary Beck of Seattle in a best-of-three double "B" class gas dragster match Sunday at Van Isle Dragways.

Due to present NHRA sanction limitations, the cars could only compete on a one-eighth mile scale, but still managed to turn in elapsed times in the eight-second bracket with speeds nearing 180 m.p.h.

Sweeting drove the "Shepherd and Sweeting" machine to victory in the first round and Beck captured the second. In the final run, Sweeting finished a full car length ahead before approximately 2,000 spectators.

Frank Jones of Victoria won top stock eliminator honors in his 1968 Barracuda which timed in a best 12.87 second ET at 107.78 m.p.h. over the quarter-mile.

Roy White of Gold River captured top street eliminator honors in a 1967 Shelby Mustang with a 12.51 ET at 113.20 m.p.h. Buck Kinney of Haney listed a top 11.78 ET at 118.42 m.p.h. in a '68 Camaro for super-stock laurels.

CANADIANS SHATTER . . . . . . LONG AMERICAN REIGN

Shuttle Revenge Is Sweet

CALGARY (CP)—Canada rid itself of the bitter taste of 20 years of defeat in men's badminton Saturday night by crushing the United States 8-1 in the second annual North American team competition.

The Canadians had wrapped up the event Friday night but didn't show any merey to the aging Americans, who had reigned in North American badminton since 1948.

Jamie Paulson, of Calgary, Canada's singles champion, showed the way as the Canadians swept the final three matches in just 69 minutes.

The 21-year-old Paulson needed only 21 minutes to dispose of Rod Parkey, of San Diego, 15-4, 15-5, in the first singles match.

Wayne Macdonnell, of Vancouver, followed with a 15-2, 15-2 verdict over Don Paup, of Los Angeles.

Paulson returned to the Glencoe Club courts to join Yves Pare, of Montreal, in a 15-5, 15-9 doubles triumph over Tom Carmichael, of Detroit, and Jim Lynch, an American citizen who now lives in Hamilton.

The Americans had one doubles victory, a 15-12, 15-11 win Thursday by Jim Poole, of New Orleans, and Paup, over Bruce Rollick, of Vancouver, and Dave Charron, of Calgary.

The fashion in which the best players in the United States were overwhelmed had to raise Canada into the favored position in the North American zone Thomas Cup draw next year.

The Americans will tangle with Mexico and Peru for the right to play in the zone final in Calgary in May.

The Thomas Cup final—the world championship of badminton—will be played in Singapore in June.

Last-Place Padres Shaped Flag Chase

By The Associated Press

San Francisco Giants are still stirring, but their last gasp in the National League's West Division race could come at any time.

Atlanta Braves clinched a tie for the title Sunday, beating San Diego Padres 4-2 while the Giants were in Los Angeles where Juan Marichal beat the Dodgers 8-1, prolonging baseball's last divisional race at least until Tuesday.

The Braves need one more victory in their two remaining games against Cincinnati or one Giant loss in their last three against San Diego to clinch the crown.

When the end comes, the last place Padres will be remembered as the team that shaped the West Division race. Atlanta is in the midst of a nine-game winning streak and six of the victories have come against San Diego. When they weren't busy losing to the Braves over the last 10 days, the Padres took two out of three from the Giants.

METS KEEP ROLLING

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, New York Mets, the East Division champions, won their eighth straight, beating Philadelphia Phillies 2-0, St. Louis Cardinals blanked Montreal Expos 2-0, Cincinnati Reds stung Houston Astros 4-1 and Chicago Cubs dropped Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1.

Saturday, St. Louis downed the Expos 2-1, New York beat Philadelphia 1-0, Pittsburgh whipped Chicago 4-1, the Braves took San Diego 4-2, Houston defeated Cincinnati 4-3 and Los Angeles lowered the Giants 2-1.

CARTY PACES BRAVES

Hot-hitting Rico Carty led the Braves to the tie-clinching victory over the Padres. He smashed a two-run homer in the first inning and then doubled home another run in the eighth.

The hits raised Carty's batting average for the season to .343. He has batted .411 for the last 18 games.

Marichal kept the Giants' fading hopes alive with his 21st victory of the year. San Francisco broke the game open with a five-run sixth inning as Bill Singer failed for the fourth time to win his 20th game.

Willie McCovey brought Giants fans some small salvation by whacking his 45th homer of the year and taking over the National League lead from Hank Aaron. It is the only place the Braves trail the Giants today.

Three Met pitchers shared a four-hit shutout as New York's precocious young hurling staff extended its scoreless streak to four games and 42 consecutive innings. Gary Gentry worked the first five innings and was credited with his 13th victory while Nolan Ryan and Ron Taylor finished up.

Point Lead Shared As O'Dell Sparkles

Mel Marshall and Bill Price finished in a tie for the 1969 stock-car driving championship at Western Speedway Saturday night while Rick O'Dell was providing the glitter in the championship meet that wrapped up the stocker season.

Price started Saturday's throttle-stomping with a 644-639 point lead over Marshall in driver standings and had boosted the margin by two points going into the 75-lap main event.

In that one, Price dropped far back when he tangled with John Currier on the first circuit and had to lap the field twice to move up close to front-runners.

Price had to settle for seventh place while Marshall placed third and the two pilots wound up in a deadlock with 673 points.

O'Dell finished second to Marshall in the "A" dash and then roared to victories in the fast heat and "A" main events before about 2,600 fans.

"A" dash: 1. Mel Marshall; 2. Rick O'Dell; 3. Bill Price.

"B" dash: 1. Tony Johnson.

Mid-Course Sputters Cause O'Keefe Stutter

Victoria O'Keefes are experiencing clutching difficulties in mid-course and Pacific Coast Soccer League rivals are making the most of it.

Victoria started strongly then meshed the gears again Saturday at Royal Athletic Park. The change of pace added up to a 2-1 victory for Vancouver Croatia.

The pattern closely followed Victoria's first start two weeks ago when Paul's Tailors of Vancouver slipped away with a 3-1 triumph.

STARTED STRONGLY

Saturday, as was the case in the season's opener, O'Keefes started strongly, took a 1-0 halftime lead and very much seemed the better club.

Rookie Bob Bolitho, set up a halfback Brian Robinson, counted Victoria's goal in the 21st minute. John Haar, on a header in the 69th minute, and Mimi Ficic, in the 79th minute, replied with the goals that dropped O'Keefes for the second straight time.

Croatia wasted no time in exploiting the talent switch. Both Vancouver goals were scored after miscues by Victoria's defence.

PERRI SPARKLES

In other games Saturday, Jack Perri's three goals powered New Westminster Blues to a 5-1 victory over Pauls while Eintracht and North Shore battled to a 2-2 deadlock.

Gord Bilson and Don Wilson counted Westminster's other goals while Ron McDonald replied for Pauls.

At North Shore, Wolfgang Bludahl scored two goals—including one on a penalty kick—to spark Eintracht. Roy Nosella and Norm Kennedy, getting the winner just three minutes before the end of regulation time, answered for North Shore.

Goalby Bird Wins Playoff

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Bob Goalby sank a 12-foot birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff with Jim Weichers Sunday to win the $75,000 Robinson open golf classic.

Both players scored 15-under-par 273s at the end of 72 holes. Weichers missed his 20-foot birdie attempt in the playoff while Goalby calmly stroked his in for the $15,000 first-prize money. Weichers picked up $9,000.

Howie Johnson carded a seven-under-par and finished third with a four-day total of 274.

Gerry Lindgren Resumes Career

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Gerry Lindgren of Spokane resumed his collegiate distance running career Saturday, leading Washington State University to a wide victory in a three-way cross-country meet.

Lindgren, who has two cross-country titles in his collection of 10 NCAA championships, moved to the front in the first 500 yards and led all the way over the four-mile route.

Mark Heifiled of WSU was second in 20:36.

COLUMBUS CLUBS EASTERN CHAMPS

VANCOUVER — Defeated in last year's final, Vancouver Columbus made it look easy here Sunday as the western champions captured the Dominion Challenge Cup and the Canadian soccer championship.

Completly dominating play in the second half after gaining a slim 1-0 lead before the intermission, Columbus humiliated Montreal Ukrania 10-1 in the national final before about 3,000 fans.

The Pacific Coast Soccer League club second three goals in the first seven minutes of the second half and ran roughshod over the eastern champions the rest of the way.

Winger Sergio Zanatta scored two goals and had another shot deflected into the Montreal net by a defender. Halfback Sam Lenarduzzi, who got the important first goal, and substitute centre-forward Dan Rosengren, each scored twice for Columbus.

Viking Win Streak Ended by Molsons

Gorge Molsons ended the victory streak of defending-champion University of Victoria Vikings at two games Sunday in first division action of the Victoria and District Soccer League.

Gorge downed Vikings 4-2 at Topaz Park with Bill Abbott and Dan Lawson splitting the four tallies. Mike Sails and Greg Pearson scored for students.

In other first division matches, Victoria West tumbled Tally-Ho 4-2 at Royal Athletic Park and Cosmopolitan Royals tied Oak Bay 4-4 in Central Park.

Royals were paced by the two-goal scoring punch of Rudi Kuebler while Jerry Punt and Marty Cross chipped in singles.

John Rostron recorded two goals for Bays while Palle Polson and John Hughes each scored once.

Next league match will be the McGavin Cup semi-final between Gorge and Oak Bay at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Royal Athletic Park. Winner of this match advances to the final Oct. 13 against Victoria West. All three teams are from the first division.

We've added a soft touch to a tough car.

The Toyota Corona has built a reputation right on the road of being a tough, rugged performer. And rightly so.

A moving 90 horsepower engine that can cruise at 80 m.p.h. all day, under any condition is anything but soft.

It can flatten out straightaways, steep hills, and tricky country roads without a strain, and a car that does all that isn't a softy.

So what's the soft touch we've added to Corona the tough one?

An automatic transmission with console. And when we say automatic we mean automatic. (P.R.N.D.L) Not shift 1.2.3.4. like some import's so-called automatics.

With the Corona you put it in drive and you drive. With all the get-up and go that makes Corona famous.

Soft, deep-pile wall-to-wall carpet.
Dished, padded, steering wheel hub.
Soft control knobs with functional symbols.
Soft padded sun visors. All these and more are standard luxury features.

So, if you think the Corona is just one big soft touch you won't prove it when you drive it.

That's how tough it really is.

McMahon Colt Wins by Neck

Essence of Time again proved his ability to handle a muddy track as he staged a late drive through the field of top contenders Saturday to win the $25,000-added British Columbia Derby before 8,976 spectators at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

The dark bay colt, owned by oil millionaire Frank McMahon of Vancouver, flew through the stretch for a time of 1:15 3-5 and won by a long neck over Seattle invader Glittering Affair. A nose back in third was Count Curragh from California.

Essence Of Time's win in the 1⅛-mile open stake for three-year-olds was his third victory this year on a water-logged Vancouver track.

WENT TO OUTSIDE

Held off the early pace by Vancouver-born jockey Wayne Harris, the colt threaded his way through the field until the top turn. Then Harris went to the outside, put Essence Of Time to a drive and overtook Glittering Affair near the wire.

The victory was worth $19,075 to McMahon and raised Essence Of Time's 1969 earnings to $30,231.

WOODWARD STAKES

At New York Saturday, Arts and Letters collared Nodouble about midway through the stretch and went on to win the $106,000 Woodward Stakes at Belmont Park. The victory all but clinched Horse-of-the-Year honors for the Rokeby Stable star.

Arts and Letters, the only three-year-old in the field of four, caught Nodouble just before the eighth pole and got to the wire two lengths in front. Verbatim was third, a half-length back of Nodouble, and Chompian was last.

Braulio Baeza sent Arts and Letters over the 1¼ miles in 2:01, a second off the track record set by Kelso in 1961, for his fifth straight stakes victory.

Arts and Letters now has nine wins in 19 career outings. The $68,900 first money boosted his career bankroll to $505,472, $486,574 of it in 1969.

DANCER'S DAUGHTER

Fanfreluche, a two-year-old daughter of Northern Dancer, Sunday captured the $15,000 Natalmo Stakes at Toronto's Woodbine track, finishing one length in front of Foxy Parent as she won her fourth race in five starts.

On Saturday's program at Woodbine, Dave the Knave scored an upset triumph in the $17,380 Canadian Stakes, beating Mr. Amber by two lengths.

Mortel Takes Fourth Place

Victoria's Tony Mortel finished with 1,361 points and fourth place in Canadian-American Modified Racing Association standings after the final race of the season in Spokane, Wash.

Spokane's Norm Ellefson placed first with 2,398 points followed by Vancouver, Wash., car-pilot Bob Gregg (2,085) and Vancouver, B.C., driver Ralph Monhay (1,459).

Potential Beef Glut Seen Result of Grain Surplus

By JIM NEAVES

CALGARY (CP) — The huge grain surplus on the prairies is creating economic problems for wheat farmers that could spread to the beef market.

Many wheat farmers are considering going into the cattle-feeding business in order to realize some financial benefit from the millions of bushels of wheat stored on their farms.

But this could put a glut of beef on the market.

The problem, say established cattle producers, is that by simply fattening cattle for the market on a short-term basis, the new producers would cause beef prices to slump.

Dr. Gordon Burton of Claresholm, Alta., president of the Western Stock Growers Association, who has about 1,000 head on his ranch, says the price received for cattle is extremely sensitive to supply and demand.

"You place 10 per cent too much on the market and you drop your price 25 per cent," Dr. Burton said in an interview.

"On the other hand, if your offerings are 10 per cent less than the market wants, your price is apt to advance rapidly."

Cattle producers must tailor output to the amount the market will absorb at a price which will cover costs, Dr. Burton said.

Cattle-Feeding Business Eyed To Dispose of Wheat Surplus . . .

One snag is that it is difficult to determine how many cattle should be placed on the market and even more difficult trying to persuade farmers to produce the right amount.

It is in this context that the "disaster which has occurred in the grain market" is going to affect the livestock industry, he said.

"This shakeup in grain markets is a serious one and one which is going to continue indefinitely because the structure of the demand for grain —the export market—has changed, principally because of the development of new high-yielding varieties which are being introduced into developing countries."

Dr. Burton said Canada is geared to export 450,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels of wheat a year.

"I very much doubt that in the future, with the exception of isolated years, we are going to export more than 300,000,000 bushels."

In effect this means Canada has 10,000,000 acres of farmland for which "we have no market for the production."

"This means the farmers with those acres are going to look for a way to market that produce. If they can't sell grain they're going to think about feeding it to livestock."

He emphasized he is not against increasing the cattle population, but is concerned that the expansion would mean more feeding for market instead of raising calves on a long-term basis.

Alberta was considered the best cattle country in the world apart from New Zealand, and now had about 25 per cent of Canada's 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 cattle.

In 1968, Alberta marketed 1,297,826 cattle and calves compared with 987,012 in Ontario—the second-largest producer. Saskatchewan marketed 633,082, Manitoba 321,006 and British Columbia 86,315. This compares with a combined total of 141,233 for Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

"By 1980, on a conservative basis we can find a domestic market for some 50 per cent more cattle."

Developments in the United States, a possible market for increased Canadian cattle production, also are causing concern to cattlemen.

"They also have too many crop acres for the market available and are looking to the prospects of increasing livestock."

One proposal in the U.S. is to take land out of crop production to allow livestock grazing and this program, if it becomes effective, "is seriously going to affect our chances of exporting feeder and fat cattle to the U.S."

. . . But Resultant Beef Surplus Could Be Price Depressant

There was merit in investigating the possibility of selling beef to Japan, notably a fat specialty variety which is called Kobe beef, but this would not be an immediate prospect for a substantial market.

Dr. Burton said cattlemen are "distressed" at what has happened to the grain farmer.

In the long run, lower grain prices for feed are not going to help the cattle industry because "everyone is going to try to get into cattle and we can easily flood the market."

But prairie grain farmers, because they can't sell their wheat, are short of cash, and this puts pressure on them to sell grain cheaply for feed to meet their financial commitments.

Stan Price, 41, of Acme, Alta., 45 miles northeast of Calgary, who operates a mixed farm of grain and livestock, said he has been offered wheat from Saskatchewan delivered to his farm for 85 cents a bushel, compared with the $1.80-a-bushel price paid through the Canadian wheat board.

"My own average production cost is 80 to 85 cents a bushel," Mr. Price said.

Mr. Price, president of the Canadian Swine Council, raises registered hogs and Hereford cattle on his 2¾ sections of land. He started in 1951 and now derives half of his income from hogs. One-quarter of his income is from grain and one-quarter from the cattle operation.

He sold his quota of grain last year and the surplus was used in his livestock operation.

The operating cost of his farm is $125 a day, 365 days a year.

"We handle a lot of money but we don't make much—I just wish we could hang onto it," he said in an interview.

There now is a record carryover of wheat totalling 848,284,000 bushels in Canada with a bumper crop being harvested. To use this up as feed for livestock would result in "an awful lot of meat."

Mr. Price said the hog industry could stand a 20-per-cent production increase, about 1,000,000 more hogs, "before it would hurt."

He forecast hog production in Alberta will increase 50 per cent next year and will double in Saskatchewan.

"To handle all this surplus grain we would have to triple Canada's existing hog population and double the cattle population but then we are just creating new problems."

Farmers now are being told to diversify, he said, "but this is tough—you don't learn the livestock industry, for instance, in a day."

He said he lost $14,000 on his farm in 1967, but "last year and this year we'll do all right."

Slowly building his operation from less than a section of land—640 acres—Mr. Price has about $40,000 invested in his hog enterprise—Landrace and Hampshire breeds.

It costs him about 24 cents to raise a pound of pork compared with the current market price of 35 to 37 cents.

"I can hang on longer financially than someone in straight grain."

Controversial Bishop Joins Cambridge

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England's most controversial bishop—Dr. John Robinson of Woolwich—withdrew Sunday from full-time church work and retired to an academic post at Cambridge University.

"I believe the religious institution is dying," he said in a farewell article in The Sunday Times, a few hours before preaching a last sermon in Southwark Cathedral.

During his 10 years as suffragan bishop of Woolwich, during which some daring new experiments were tried—and some abandoned—in his diocese, Bishop Robinson was under almost constant attack from conservative churchmen.

He was denounced by some as a heretic or agnostic. Twice he was publicly rebuked by the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England.

His paperback best-seller Honest to God offended many because it questioned the image of God under modern conditions.

But he probably offened many churchmen even more by going down to the Old Bailey court and taking the stand in defence of D. H. Lawrence's novel Lady Chatterley's Lover, then under police attack as obscene. Bishop Robinson said he thought it was a book Christians ought to read. The case was dismissed.

Dr. Robinson, 50, now becomes dean of Trinity College, Cambridge, where Prince Charles is a student.

New CTV Head Has Dramatic Potential

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Chercover has climbed up the ladder of success in relative anonymity, but that could all change now that he has become the top man with CTV Television Network Ltd.

Mr. Chercover, president and chief operating officer with the network since January, 1968, recently was named president and managing director.

Few top management jobs in North American television have been filled by a man who came out of the drama department as Mr. Chercover did.

And Mr. Chercover looks and talks like a drama department graduate. He wears colorful mod clothes and speaks in a rich baritone voice.

His was an unlikely start for a show business career. He was born in Montreal but moved to Port Arthur, Ont., at the age of three.

His grandfather and father both were horse dealers. But when Mr. Chercover started high school, it soon became obvious that show business would be his eventual career. His resonant voice put him in the school drama club and got him part-time work on a local radio station.

After high school graduation, he came to Toronto to enroll in the Lorne Greene School of Radio and Acting. He assisted producer Mavor Moore in staging the first all-Canadian play at the Royal Alexandra Theatre.

He won a scholarship to study at the Neighborhood Playhouse School of Theatre in New York, and his ability as an organizer came to the surface when he ended up managing as well as performing in summer stock and off-Broadway productions.

He also began to take on jobs as assistant director for industrial and commercial films and for a couple of low-budget movies. Later he hooked up with the Louis G. Cowan agency which produced some plays in the early days of television.

He soon had an offer from the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, then just setting out in the TV field.

Despite some problems in the early days, Mr. Chercover was successful both in the dramatic and technical fields for the CBC.

Then he received an offer to move to the CTV, and couldn't resist the challenge of entering another new enterprise.

KEEPS INVOLVED

Despite his new position, Mr. Chercover still keeps involved in the creative ends of television and has direct day-to-day involvement with individual shows.

He is a difficult man to satisfy, insisting always that the independent network improve its quality each year.

He believes that CTV must enter into international co-production ventures which can be sold elsewhere in the world—"things which would be physically impossible to mount for Canada alone."

"Most program directors under-estimate the capacity of the audience," he believes, favoring informative programming which gives the audience credit for some intelligence.

When he isn't busy at the network, Mr. Chercover spends as much time as possible with his wife Barbara, daughter of a Georgia journalist and a writer and artist herself, and their two children. He builds model airplanes, collects antique furniture and likes attending the theatre.

Many of his co-workers regard him as a sentimental man. The say he will put off firing a man for months abecause he knows the man needs the job.

Some, however, describe him as "lethal," but Mr. Chercover doesn't mind that description.

"If I set out to do something, for whatever motivations that I may have justified to myself, if I have to be lethal in order to accomplish it, then I will be."

Charles Templeton, former director of CTV's news and public affairs programming, and John Bassett, owner of station CFTO in the CTV network, both describe Mr. Chercover as having "guts" and possibly being "the most able man" in broadcasting today.

MOVIE STAR HAS SON

LONDON (AP) — British movie star Vanessa Redgrave, who announced five months ago that she and Italian actor Franco Nero were expecting a baby, has given birth to a son, British newspapers said Sunday. Miss Redgrave's whereabouts were unknown but The News of the World quoted Vanessa's father, Sir Michael Redgrave, as saying the baby was born about two weeks ago.

Parents Battle Corporal Punishment

By BRENDA LARGE

HALIFAX (CP) — "No, our teacher has not strapped anybody this year," says a little girl in Grade 3 when asked if corporal punishment is used in her school.

"But every morning she brings out her strap and says she will use it on anyone who makes a noise. So we shiver and shut up."

Another child in Grade 6 in a school in the Halifax-Dartmouth area says: "The poorest and the dumbest seem to get picked on and strapped more than others."

Comments like these are being used as ammunition to fight corporal punishment and "a punitive atmosphere" in some Nova Scotian schools by a new private organization called the Nova Scotia Action Committee for Humane Schools.

Judy Pelletier of Dartmouth, N.S., a social worker and mother of six, organized the committee earlier this year.

She says it is not known how many times corporal punishment is used in the province's schools during a school year.

If Child Suffers

"As far as we're concerned, if one child suffers it's bad enough. We're not looking for, or hoping to get, statistics."

Both concerned parents and teachers are members of the new organization which Mrs. Pelletier says has a hard-core membership of about 30 around the province. "And we get interest and support from many others, including other interested people in other provinces."

In a recent collection of comments from young children in schools in this area, the action committee found cases like these which it feels are harmful to the mental health of children:

● A primary-class child was strapped by his teacher because when he was told to sit perfectly still, he moved to look out the window at a passing airplane. When the school principal refused to discuss the matter with the child's mother, she withdrew the child from the school.

● A Grade 3 pupil reported to a member of the action committee that he could not concentrate while writing an exam. The reason: A Grade 4 teacher was strapping a pupil and the pupil's screams were upsetting.

Special Campaign

● A supply teacher for a Grade 5 class sent a boy into the hall. The principal of the school saw him, took the boy to his office and strapped him 15 times on each hand. His cries upset several classes and several children were reported to have been ill at noon.

Incidents like these have convinced Mrs. Pelletier and her committee that a special educational campaign is needed to improve the learning atmosphere in schools.

Among its purposes, the committee says it wants to "encourage an atmosphere of mutual respect and trust between teachers and pupils, school staffs and parents."

Climate of Violence

It also wants to gather information on disciplinary practices in Nova Scotia schools and to "work for the abolition of those practices which are harmful to the mental health of children and their attitudes to learning. . . ."

And in its statement of purpose, the committee includes this quotation from Goethe: "In all things we learn only from those we love."

Mrs. Pelletier says that incidents collected by the committee are aspects of the "climate of violence" in society.

"Kids are being punished and humiliated and they don't even know why."

She says the committee feels strongly that the teaching profession itself has not been able to handle school situations in which teachers abuse the trust placed in them. "Whoever gave the teachers the right to strike children anyway?"

She says she is against "the punitive atmosphere of the classroom which can't help but work against the child."

"We are not a militant group, but we have to remind people that there are situations in our schools which have to be changed—situations which result in children being turned into educational and emotional cripples."

CALEDON EAST, Ont. (CP) — John and Maureen Brown are reviving the 18th century English tradition of the country inn, offering respite to weary travellers.

They say they never turn a traveller away from the inn, a converted 150-year-old tavern in this community just north of Toronto, "just like in the old times".

"It's hard to say when we're closed or open," they say. "We've never really thought of it that way.

Canada Undecided About China Vote in UN

By STEPHEN SCOTT

—Canada will adhere to a one-China policy. If agreement is reached in Stockholm in talks on Canadian-Chinese recognition, Canada will change its vote in the UN to support the entry of the Peking government.

—Canada's vote in the UN this year on the annual Albanian resolution to admit China and expel the Nationalists could be a cliffhanger, with the decision on whether to change from the abstention of recent years made by the cabinet at the last minute.

—Canada has not been asked by the Chinese to vote for the resolution as a price for recognition. But Canadian officials realize that if the Chinese are not assured that Canada will support Peking here there will be no recognition. China has asked for that support, without specifying that it involves the Albanian resolution. Sharp says China would like to become a UN member.

—Progress is being made at the Stockholm talks and Chinese suspicions about Canada, a close friend of the United States, are being overcome. One of the main Canadian tasks has been to convince the Chinese that it is sincere.

OPPOSES INITIATIVE

—While some American spokesmen have told reporters that there could be advantages to the U.S. if a Canadian mission is established in Peking, Sharp has been told that the U.S. opposes the Canadian initiative in switching its recognition from Nationalist to Communist China.

—Italy, which also wishes to recognize Peking, is considerably behind Canadian efforts and no direct talks have started.

—Other countries are watching the Canadian initiative, not necessarily with a view to changing policy this year. But Canadian success in Stockholm may show the way for future changes of these countries, particularly some in Latin America.

—By the same token, the Nationalist Chinese are not concerned that the Canadian initiative will change the situation in the UN in the immediate future. But they are reported to feel that it could help start a long-time erosion of their position.

—There is no chance that China will gain entry into the UN this year.

Sharp said this week that Canada's decision to recognize Peking is its most important international initiative. He said the subject almost invariably came up during his round of talks with foreign ministers.

QUESTION OPEN

He left open the question of whether Canada will continue to vote yes in the UN on whether the Albanian resolution is an important question needing a two-thirds majority for passage. But observers here doubt that Canada would step away from that position except under the most unusual circumstances.

Sharp apparently has gone as far as he is prepared to go publicly in linking the Canadian UN vote with the recognition talks. But observers consider his remarks leave little or no doubt that Canada will change her vote upon agreement in Stockholm.

Presuming there is no agreement in Stockholm before the China resolution comes up in late October or in November, the cabinet will be faced with the decision of how to vote this year. Sharp has said in that case Canada likely will continue to abstain. But observers here say that the possibility that Canada will change if she feels there is substantial progress in Stockholm cannot be ignored.

The Canadian vote, no matter what it is, will have no immediate effect on the China question here. There is little expectation that there will be a radical change from last year when the resolution went down 58 to 44 with 23 abstentions.

There is a remote possibility, observers say, that a large number of countries will change to abstention, thus upsetting the vote. In this case the vote on the important question resolution could be extremely significant.

Accident Claims Former Togo President

PARIS (Reuters). — Former Togo president Nicolas Grunitzky, 56, died in hospital here, hospital authorities said Sunday night.

Grunitzky was flown to Paris in a special aircraft Thursday after he suffered serious head injuries in a road accident in the Ivory Coast the previous day.

Grunitzky was Togo's second president. He lived in the Ivory Coast since he was overthrown by a military coup in January, 1967.

LAWYERS OUSTED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two Vancouver-area lawyers were disbarred here by the British Columbia Law Society for misusing funds.

T. V. McCallum, secretary of the Society, announced that Gerald Vincent Pelton, 81, of Vancouver, one of the city's oldest lawyers, was disbarred on charges of professional misconduct, and conduct unbecoming a member of the society, "arising from the mishandling of clients' trust funds."

Victor John Petricia, 39, of suburban Burnaby, was found guilty of "wrongful conversion of money entrusted to him as a member of the society" and professional misconduct.

Corsicans Demanding Better French Deal

By CY FOX

PARIS (CP) — The highly centralized French government, pestered in recent years by disgruntled Brittany for a better regional deal, now faces a flare-up of similar discontent on the Mediterranean island of Corsica.

Birthplace of Napoleon Bonaparte and one of the 99 "departements" making up France as a whole, Corsica suffers from many of the shortcomings chronic with west-coast Brittany—notably a lack of economic development which forces young natives to make their future elsewhere.

Some island protesters voice the demand for greater regional autonomy, also made familiar by the Bretons.

Instead of local problems being administered by the central government through a Paris-appointed prefect, they want a local legislature and executive to do the job.

Already, violence has erupted following expressions of Corsican exasperation over road conditions on the island.

The prefect, together with the arm of centralized law and order known as the Gardes Mobiles, came in for extra bursts of angry criticism as a result.

POMPIDOU VISITS

The trouble developed despite the apparently heartening effects of an earlier visit to the Corsican capital of Ajaccio by French President Georges Pompidou on this year's 200th anniversary of Napoleon's birth.

Residents took some statements by Pompidou to mean that Paris would give serious study to their latest round of economic grievances.

Unrest and upheavals are an integral part of Corsica's bitter heritage as a one-time battleground for Mediterranean powers.

Still boasting a dialect and culture that reflect its former connection with Italy, the island was first ceded to France in 1768 by its former controller, the old Italian republic of Genoa.

In 1793, Paoli enjoyed better fortune and managed to spearhead a breakaway by the island from revolutionary France at a time when a similar secession was under way in Brittany.

Two years later, however, with Napoleon the rising star of French politics, Paris again re-established its hold on Corsica.

As master of France, Bonaparte subsequently did his best to promote the island's material progress but his orders in this respect often went unobeyed by central-government officials on the spot.

Down the decades since then, Corsica has remained economically static and plagued by periodic outbursts of banditry.

The complaint that it is mired in the middle ages is thus a perennial one.

But the link with France has proved sufficiently strong to inspire powerful island backing for the French cause in two world wars.

Nevertheless, by 1959 economic grievances had reached the point of prompting establishment of the first latter-day group determined to press demands for island improvement.

In 1967, an organization called Action Regionaliste Corse—Corsican Regionalist Action—was formed and now has 2,000 members.

BLOCK HIGHWAYS

Adding a modern bite to the protest movement are students. They want, among other things, university facilities on the island, with its population of up to 300,000.

To dramatize dissatisfaction with road conditions, Corsicans have been building barriers on highways.

It was across one of these that police pelted a crowd with tear-gas grenades. They were themselves attacked with rocks.

The police concerned were branded "colonial-type troops" by Action Regionaliste, a group which demanded their withdrawal from the island.

Hotel-keepers and owners of small businesses have joined in the outcry over the state of Corsica's roads.

The protesters generally want more efforts to spur industrial growth and steps to cut freight costs on goods brought to the island so that the cost of living as a whole can be reduced.

The latest burst of Corsican discontent happens to follow defeat last spring of Charles de Gaulle's project for vesting greater power in the regions, as opposed to the central government, of France.

The proposals were widely criticized as ineffectual before the countrywide referendum that brought their defeat and the general's resignation from the presidency.

But there seems little doubt that de Gaulle has considerable regard for Corsica.

One expression of it may currently serve to hearten the area's protest groups.

Recalling the island's role in Second World War resistance to the Germans, the general said:

"Corsica has never believed in defeat."

New Counsel Appears In Nassau Crux Trial

NASSAU (CP) — Canada's effort to have lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux extradited from the Bahamas for trial in British Columbia on 21 charges of theft and fraud enters a new phase with new faces today.

A Supreme Court justice will hear Canada's application for a writ of mandamus to force Magistrate John Bailey to rescind two rulings he has made at the Crux extradition hearing.

Bahamas Senator Kenval Isaacs will make his first appearance as counsel for Canada and B.C. aided by Nassau lawyer Patrick Toothe who presented the Canadian case in proceedings before Baily prior to lengthy adjournment that began Oct.

Crux, former president of the Commonwealth Trust Co., has been free on bail since shortly after his arrest here June 3. He has been defending himself at the extradition hearing, because of lack of funds to hire counsel.

Canada's Supreme Court application seeks the overturning of a ruling by the magistrate that the only evidence he will admit against Crux is that contained in depositions from a Vancouver court. The magistrate has said this is the only evidence he can be certain is admissible in Canadian courts as well as his own, a requirement of the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1967, under which extradition is sought.

Trudeau 'Man for the Time'

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says his kind of person will no longer be politically necessary in five or 10 years when such problems as national unity are solved in Canada.

He was asked during one of many stops during a two-day, meet-the-people tour of Ontario how he got to be prime minister, and replied he was "lucky enough to be around and to appear to have the answers to some of the questions bothering the people in the last few years.

"It's probable—I hope it's certain—that in five or 10 years there won't be the problems Canada has now. The problems of national unity will have been solved and therefore the kind of person I am with the kind of solution I had will no longer be necessary."

The pattern has been the same in each community Trudeau has visited—mainstreeting, then a speech, then a question-and-answer session. Some of the statements he has made:

● Asked what was the greatest threat to mankind, he said he had been told by an expert that vessels carrying DDT across oceans pose a great physical threat. A collision that loosed DDT in the oceans would destroy plankton, starting a process that would destroy atmospheric oxygen and kill off the population.

● Apart from this "hypothetical threat," he said the greatest threat to mankind arises from man's inability to understand each other in pursuit of the common good.

● Perhaps the French language in Quebec could be better preserved in the short run if Quebec was a separate nation. But in the long run, no community can develop by withdrawing from the larger society.

● Young people seeking change should be "regarded as the twinge of our conscience." As for the Liberal party, it should welcome dissenters, particularly youthful ones, giving them a vehicle to express their desires and dreams . . ." the important thing is that they not stay outside the organized party structure."

● Don't expect the government to do everything, such as in housing. They can only move in the direction of the people's dreams and ideals—only dictatorships can move their people in unwanted directions.

● The next session of Parliament will study lowering the voting age in federal elections to 18 from 21. Trudeau said the government is sympathetic to the idea.

● Canada still is trying to decide what form of sovereignty, if any, will be extended over the waters between Canadian Arctic islands. If a 12-mile limit was imposed, some straits would be closed off and become Canadian territorial waters.

His discourse on his job was prompted by a floor request in Geraldton, Ont., for a recipe on how to win the job.

Trudeau said that, when the teenagers currently in school are in university or business and become active in politics, "it is completely conceivable that this country will need a very different kind of prime minister than I am."

Each period of a country's history requires a particular kind of answer, he said.

"And I happened to run for this job at a time when there was a problem between French and English Canada and when there was a problem of a generation gap which was being developed.

Northwest Passage Data Awaited

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Eagerly awaited here is the data picked up by scientists aboard the SS Manhattan as the big United States oil tanker made its historic voyage this summer through the Northwest Passage.

Humble Oil Ltd., sponsors of the $39,000,000-plus voyage, agreed to give Canada access to all of the data being compiled by the small army of scientists accompanying the first commercial ship through the Arctic waters.

Along the route of the 115,000-deadweight ton tanker were the Canadian Arctic islands which oil experts here say have a potential of 43,000,000,000 barrels of oil and 260 trillion cubic feet of gas.

What makes prospects particularly bright is the fact that Manhattan experienced no difficulty in steaming through Baffin Bay, Lancaster Sound, Barrow Strait and Viscount Melville Sound, the waters off the Canadian islands.

Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, whose department gets first crack at the Manhattan's findings, said one disappointment was that the tanker didn't follow its original plan and go into the harbor off Pond Inlet, a small settlement on Baffin Island joining Greenland, about 400 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

SHIP SEASON SHORT

Nearby is the huge iron ore find reported to be the richest in the world. It has been untapped mainly because of the short shipping season known to date. It was hoped that Manhattan would add to the gradually-building hopes that ships can navigate off Baffin much longer than previously thought.

Because Manhattan was roughly a month late in leaving port, Pond Inlet was cut out.

Mr. Chretien also was firm in his oft-repeated stand that the Manhattan's excursion in Canadian Arctic waters had no relations at all to the continuing argument over Canadian sovereignty in the area.

Like Prime Minister Trudeau, Mr. Chretien views the Manhattan trip as purely a scientific one. It could well benefit Canada more than the U.S., says Mr. Chretien.

Mr. Trudeau is to make a statement on Canadian claims to Arctic waters soon after Parliament resumes next month. In the meantime, opposition parties and newspaper editorials are calling on the government to assert Canadian ownership of the waters in positive terms.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson has said that if commercial shipping starts in the Arctic, Canada would face a bill of $1,000,000,000 for navigation aids and an increased ice-breaking fleet.

He said Canada would not oppose the opening of Arctic navigation. But it would be under Canadian control and Canada would recover its expenditures from ships using the waters.

Mr. Jamieson, like a number of MPs, said he is concerned about pollution in the Arctic in the event of tankers breaking up in the heavy ice. In asserting its claims to Arctic waters, Canada could make regulations calling for minimum standards for the strength of ships using the passage.

Presumably, these standards would have to be based on the extensive data now being compiled by Manhattan.

While the Manhattan still is on the return trip from the passage, Humble officials announced in New York that the cost of transporting oil by that route is going to be more than it first estimated.

W. T. Slick, manager of Humble's supply department, said this week that costs of moving oil from Alaska via the passage to eastern U.S. markets probably would be 90 cents to $1 a barrel. An earlier estimate was 60 cents a barrel.

Humble is to estimate costs of tankers moving oil as against a pipeline and make a decision early in 1970.

One possible route for a pipeline from Alaska would be through the Mackenzie region of the Northwest Territories and ending at Edmonton. For obvious reasons, the Canadian government the oil industry here strongly favors such a route.

STUDIES UNDER WAY

The Canadian industry also is anxiously awaiting findings of two studies now under way on oil—one in the U.S. dealing with import quotas and one in Ottawa.

A Humble official aboard Manhattan said two weeks ago that he didn't believe that the Alaska finds would mean a reduction in Canadian crude flowing to the U.S. He forecast instead a sizeable increase in Canadian imports to the U.S.

Gordon Connell, chairman of the reserve committee of the Canadian Petroleum Association, told a Commons committee in June that the U.S. demand for oil could increase by 6,000,000 barrels a day by 1980.

While the Alaska oil could mean a reduction of 100,000 barrels daily in some areas of the U.S., "it may be possible to deliver larger amounts into the Great Lakes area," he said.

Asked whether the projected loss of 100,000 barrels resulting from the Alaska find could be made up in a reasonably short period of time, Mr. Connell replied:

"We would certainly expect so."

Search Continues

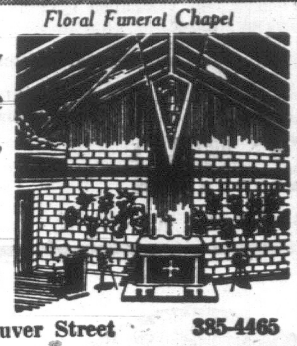

WELLS (CP) — Searchers in the central British Columbia area were hampered Sunday by low cloud and fog in the search for a Roman Catholic priest missing for two weeks in his light aircraft. Rev. Emil Sasges was alone on a flight from Wells to Valemount, near the Alberta border.

Bows, Swords Used

CUTTACK, India (Reuters) — At least nine persons were killed and about 60 injured in a clash between two groups of quarry workers using bows and arrows and swords in the eastern state of Orissa, officials reported Sunday. The clash took place at a limestone quarry.

Space Pioneer Alouette Still Singing

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Some of the country's best communications and space brains will hoist a glass to that hoary oldster Alouette 1, the oldest still-functioning piece of space hardware.

Seven years ago Canada's first space satellite blasted into polar orbit atop a United States rocket. It was meant to stay 600 miles up for a year, unheard-of longevity in those early days of space satellites.

For the seventh consecutive year, the launching of what has become the world's longest-operating satellite will be celebrated by as many as possible of the 100 men who helped put together the tub-like collection of solar batteries, scientific instruments and radio transmitters.

THREE MONTHS

"Those were the days when the Americans considered three months a long time for a space satellite to continue functioning," recalled Dr. John H. Chapman.

At that time, Dr. Chapman was a defence research board scientist on the Alouette project. Now he is assistant depuy minister of communications, deeply involved in preparations to build and launch Alouette's sophisticated descendant, a yet-unnamed communications satellite able to span the nation with voice and pictures.

While Alouette 1 has been called a whistling songbird, it's really a whistling slave. Six to 10 times a day the ground station at Shirley Bay just outside the capital sends a radio command to Alouette, which responds with high-pitched, rapid-rate communication of data collected by its instruments.

MANY OLDSTERS

Like many oldsters, it's a bit creaky in the joints. It sends for about 90 minutes in a 24-hour period, and only for 10-minute stretches. It used to be able to go up to five hours when it was younger.

But time is taking its toll on the solar batteries and the earthlings want to avoid exhausting its power supply by asking too much of it.

The varying high-pitched whistles from Alouette's audio carriers are recorded and, when deciphered, tell the scientists a lot of things about the ionosphere, a belt of electrically-charged particles that make radio communication possible on earth.

Its voice also tells them about electrical noises it has "heard" from cosmic sources, and other space noises that seem to range themselves in patterns around the Earth's magnetic field.

Dr. Chapman said the scientists are getting excited about Alouette's lengthening life span because in the upper atmosphere the seasons are 11 years long and no other scientific instrument package has ever recorded so much of a season.

There has been a birthday party—and a cake, of course—every year since 1962.

For any member of the public who wants to raise a glass, too, there's a choice of birth dates. Alouette 1 went up at 11:05 p.m. Pacific Standard Time, Sept. 28, 1962. That's 0605 Greenwich Mean Time Sept. 29, 1962.

Pipe Blast Kills Two

PARIS (Reuters) — Two men died after an explosion at a nuclear centre near Cherbourg, on the Britanny coast, the French Atomic Energy Commission disclosed today.

Engineer Rene Bourbigot and technician Jean Remaut suffered third-degree burns and multiple fractures when a pipe in the central heating system blew up Friday. They were flown to hospital in Paris where they died Sunday.

Fall From Hospital Bed Brings Award for Damages

NEW YORK (AP) — A Spring Valley, N.Y. builder was awarded $125,000 by a New York Supreme Court jury Friday based on a claim he was injured when he fell from his hospital sickbed.

Alan Schachter, 42, said he suffered neck injuries as well as aggravation of a knee condition when a castor broke and he fell from his bed at Doctor's Hospital four years ago.

BURSARIES BOOST UNIVERSITY BUDGETS

The path to the registrar's office became brighter for these University of Victoria freshmen when they learned they would receive bursaries from the Municipal Chapter of Victoria, IODE. From the left they are Nora James, Jean MacKenzie, Maureen Pinkney, Raymond Mar, Mimi Chan, Eleana Malcolm and Frances Chapman. An eighth bursary winner, Laurie Lee, was not available for the photograph. The bursaries, along with other awards from primary chapters, will be presented at the annual IODE Bursary Tea next Saturday, at 2:30 p.m., at the Student Union Building. Dr. Cary Goulson will be guest speaker. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Big-Small School Solves Problem

By DOROTHY RICH

WASHINGTON — High schools today have to be big, but they have to be "small," too.

There are lots of students and lots of courses. This means big schools. The problem is to make these big schools seem smaller so that they provide the intimacy and personal involvement that students need.

Off the drawing board but not yet in construction is James W. Robinson Jr. Junior-Senior High School in Fairfax County, Va.

Samuel Coffey, Fairfax associate superintendent, chaired the committee of administrators and teachers who planned the school. The aim was to come up with a big-small school.

To do this, Robinson will be made up of six separate schools, with no more than 700 students in each. Each school will have its own administration and faculty. Students will take their basic subjects in their own school and then move to such activities as gym and shop in facilities that will be shared commonly by all six schools.

USES FAMILY UNITS

The idea is to use these expensive facilities efficiently and yet still give students the feeling of being in a "we-know-you" school. Each school will be further broken down into family units of about 125 students.

Probably the most famous school-within-a-school in the U.S. is the huge Evanston township high school in Evanston, Ill. Last year a panel of experts rated it as the number one high school in the country.

I walked into Evanston High this week and asked, "What makes you so good?"

They told me about the equipment (it was breath-taking), their faculty (most have advanced degrees), their innovations (too many to count)—but basic to all of this is the way they pioneered in organizing their bigness.

SHARE FACILITIES

Evanston claims to have originated the school-with-in-a-school idea. Evanston is divided into four separate schools located in adjoining wings. They use each other's facilities, compete with each other, yet still stay distinct and small. The school, which enrolls 5,800 students, is an educational park with its own superintendent.

The process at Evanston abounds with innovations. You name it—they have it: Team teaching, closed-circuit TV, independent study. The school day is divided in "mods" not hours. Class times vary depending on their purpose. Science labs might need eight mods of 15 minutes each, social studies three mods.

All students get 15 per cent of their day for independent study. Instead of the old study hall, they go off to resource centres where they find books, TV consoles and their teachers. Each teacher has his own office. Able students can contract for as much as 60 per cent of independent study.

As for facilities and equipment, I've never seen anything like it: student lounges, planetarium, vivariums for working with tropical plants and animals. And it costs a lot of money: in 1968, about $1,300 per student.

Meat Boycott Movement Still Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — Housewives who conducted local supermarket meat boycotts last month say their campaigns were only a partial success—local prices dropped temporarily—but their movement is spreading nationally in the United States.

"The movement is spreading faster than I can keep up with it," said Mickey DiLorenzo who in August led a two-week meat boycott at supermarkets in the Levittown, Long Island area of New York.

"We started with seven people in Levittown and now we have 400-500 people I can call on to actively participate," said Mrs. DiLorenzo, the wife of an electrician.

There are nine groups on Long Island alone. They consist of some 1,500 persons that "are already formed or forming" to help drive down the retail price of meats through boycotts, she said.

Mrs. DiLorenzo said the national drop in beef prices—the first in eight months—announced Monday by the bureau of labor statistics was "encouraging."

Porterhouse steak dropped to $1.63 a pound at retail in August from $1.66 in July; sirloin to $1.38 from $1.42 and chuck roast to 74 cents from 75 cents, the bureau reported.

The beef price drop was offset by increases in other meat prices, and egg prices rose 20 per cent reflecting a shift from higher priced red meats to eggs, the bureau said.

Groups bearing the name of Mrs. DiLorenzo's organization —FLP, For Lower Prices— are operating in Melbourne Beach, Fla., Fort Collins, Colo., Arlington, Va., and another is forming in Shelter Rock, Conn., with 50 women preparing for a membership drive.

Bazaar Raises Over $1,000

A total of $1,083 was raised at a bazaar sponsored by friends of Mount St. Mary, held in Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall.

Proceeds, which will be used for hospital projects, included $150 cleared at a stall selling articles made by patients.

Polly Patchwork Look Sweeps Fashion World

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Sometimes Paris still has the power to start a fashion earthquake.

When Yves St. Laurent got interested in the look of patchwork quilts, worked out some fabrics made by sewing peices together and quilting them in the old style, he set off a quiltquake.

Over here, Adolfo, the high-fashion milliner who has also been doing some specialty items in clothes, picked up the idea from his New York society customers.

Soon, any patchwork quilt available for miles around wasn't safe. The ladies were buying the real things, having him turn them into skirts for at-home and small evening parties.

Some of St. Laurent's patchwork looks were in satin patchwork, an idea that fabric-makers turned into satins and brocades which were printed to look like patchwork, then quilted. Malcolm Starr used them for some of his prettiest evening gowns.

The whole idea has become one of fall's big successes, and you can find it in some unlikely places, done in ways which lift quilting right out of the bathrobe doldrums where it's languished for so long.

A visit to designer Bill Tice, for example, revealed that so-called robes at Royal Robes, when done in the new quilted patchwork, can go right out as evening dresses.

One fabric, in squares of many patterns, is so beautifully pink that Bill calls it "La Vie En Rose." Zipped up the front, the skirt billows beneath a shirt-styled top which is unquilted. The fabric is a silky acetate surah which furthers the evening dress effect.

(A Fashion League Feature)

The silky acetate surah is quilted for the full skirt, left unquilted for the shirt-styled bodice and sleeves. Designer Bill Tice has made this so-called robe an evening dress possibility.

Sea Rangers To Hold Show

The crew members of the Sea Ranger ship St. Therese will become fashion models Tuesday evening to raise funds to buy a training boat. With the help of Mrs. W. Steeves, the girls and their mothers will present a fashion show at 7:30 in Church by the Lake, Elk Lake. Refreshments will be served.

London Axes Long Tresses

LONDON (AP) — "People have had it with long hair."

This was the word Tuesday from Vidal Sassoon's, one of London's most popular women's hairdressing chains with branches in Canada and the United States.

An official said the trend now is "skinhead" for women. This is the nickname for London youths who hate hippies and get their heads shorn close, in crew-cut style.

Sassoon's said it is giving 80 to 100 skinhead cuts a week.

"Girls often want to identify with their boy-friends, and many boys are going for shorter hair," said Sassoon's managing director, Gerard Austen.

Caroline Baker, a 25-year-old fashion editor, claims she decided to go skinhead after watching short-haired Neil A. Armstrong on the Apollo 11 moon voyage.

"I got a girl-friend to hack my hair off the same night."

Parents Help Widen Communication Gap

By
MILLARD J. BIENVENU, SR.

Dr. Bienvenu is head of the department of sociology at Northwestern State College of Louisiana. This article has been adapted from his pamphlet, "Parents-Teen-Ager Communications: Bridging the Generation Gap," published by the Public Affairs Committee, 381 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y., 10016.

Seventeen-year-old Anne complained: "We rarely discuss anything important at home. We used to talk at dinner, but now that's out. Dad bought a portable TV and put it in the dining room."

If we are to believe Anne and many other teen-agers who responded to our questions about whether or not they found it difficult to talk to their parents — and, if so, why — the much-publicized communication gap between the generations seems to be as much the parents' fault as the youngsters'.

Parents who want to maintain contact with their children throughout adolescence should remember that we teach by example and that what we are speaks louder than our words.

(At the end of the second article there is a series of questions designed to ascertain how well parents and teen-agers communicate and to reveal any trouble spots that exist. Parents may want to suggest that their teen-age children read the article and then answer the questions as a preliminary to discussing how well the two generations understand each other.)

The following guidelines, which have been worked out in response to teen-agers' criticisms, may help concerned parents span the communication gap within their own families.

Enthusiastic — Not Engulfing

TAKE AN INTEREST — Parents should take time to talk to their teen-agers and their friends, read about them, listen to their music — all with an open mind. Give them a chance to display their point of view. Teen-agers very much want us to be interested and enthusiastic, if we can do this without engulfing them or seeming to want to control them.

BE CONSISTENT — One of the greatest criticisms that the younger generation makes is that we say one thing and mean (or do) another. "What's wrong with smoking pot?" youngsters say, "my parents get stoned on bourbon."

SUPERVISE AND GUIDE — One boy remarked, "I may be a rebellious teen-ager, but I'd like to know what my parents think is the right thing to do." Although teen-agers are capable of freedom, privileges, and responsibility, they still need help in setting limits on their freedom and behavior. Deciding WITH your youngster what these limits are usually tends to bring forth a more reasonable attitude.

Adolescents need and want limits and supervision, but at the same time they rebel against having to account for every minute of their time. A moderate and selective amount of guidance is one of the best ways to prevent a breakdown in the lines of communication.

RESPECT THEIR INDIVIDUALITY AND INDEPENDENCE — Avoid the impulse to mould them into what you think they should be. Parents should assume the role of watchful bystanders ready to come forward when help is needed.

LET THEM KNOW WHAT YOU EXPECT — They need to know where their parents stand and what they expect of them. Too many parents are wishy-washy in handling their children, are insecure in decision-making, inconsistent and confused about firmness and discipline. No young person can develop his best traits without knowing what his parents expect of him.

DON'T OVERREACT. We tend to brace ourselves for the onslought of adolescence, convinced that it is bound to be a long, hard struggle. Consequently we are quick to overreact the first time a youngster steps out of line. We punish severely, withdraw trust, and lose confidence in the youngster, thus severing the lines of communication.

Fifteen-year-old Terry, given permission to go to the drive-in with some friends, stayed an hour and a half longer than her parents told her to. Her mother told Terry she would be punished. Feeling she had to curb her potentially rebellious daughter, she searched for an effective — and perhaps severe — punishment.

What her mother failed to consider was that her daughter had never stepped out of line before. When a neighbor pointed this out, Terry's mother then talked at length with her daughter until they reached an understanding.

Listening is the foundation stone of genuine communication. Consider the words of these typical teen-agers: "My friends listen to what I say, but my parents only hear me talk." "Dad's not the type who sits and listens. He sits and tells you how it is." "How can I tell my father my problems? He brings work home every evening."

Try To Listen Calmly

To become good listeners and confidants of our children it is important that we:

FIND A TIME TO TALK WHEN YOUNG PEOPLE WANT IT. — Give your undivided attention; concentrate and try to avoid interrupting. One youngster mused, "When I sat down to talk to my father, he falls asleep. If I tell him about a problem, he gets all jazzed up and starts preaching. That's no help. I'm old enough for a discussion, not a lecture."

DON'T INTERRUPT — Too often we tend to say "Yes, but," before the other person has finished talking.

TRY TO LISTEN CALMLY — In the heat of family differences, our anger or excitement prevents us from listening to the other person. As a result we do not really understand or know what he has said. When someone wants to tell us something we should try to settle down, arrange for some privacy, and concentrate on hearing and understanding his point of view.

AVOID BEING JUDGMENTAL — A teen-ager will not confide in someone who judges him or is critical of his behavior. "Son, I know you're disappointed you didn't get the lifeguard job. It's a tough break. Let's see if we can figure out why they turned you down," is preferable to "Too bad you didn't get the job at the pool, but if you had listened to me you'd have cut your hair and shaved before going down there."

It is not necessary to condone a youngster's attitude or habits, but it is important to accept his feelings about what he does.

LISTEN BETWEEN THE LINES — Ask yourself, "What is he trying to tell me?" "What are the feelings beneath his words?"

PERMIT EXPRESSION OF FEELING — Many young people have views different from ours with respect to morality, marriage, work, education, time, money. We should try to recognize their wishes and acknowledge their opinions, but the fact that their views are different does not necessarily mean that they are correct or that they actually believe in them.

Very often they are trying to test their ideas. To start the communication process we must be willing to listen to and acknowledge their opinions. Then we should give them our viewpoints as plainly and as honestly as we can. And we should give direct answers to direct questions. When we don't know the answers, we should join them in a search for new and better solutions.

Gruffness Arouses Hostility

AVOID BARRIERS TO SELF-EXPRESSION — Nagging, sarcasm, preaching, and making unimportant things seem important are forms of destructive communication. Belittling, humiliating, and laughing at youngsters causes deep wounds and short circuits the lines of communication. Starting a sentence with "how come" or "you should" also blocks expression of feeling. Encourage expression by saying, "uh-huh," "hmm," or "I see." Be aware of these obstacles to self-expression and try to avoid them.

BE COURTEOUS—We all have a built-in sensitivity to the voices of others, especially of those closest to us. Sixteen-year-old Gloria complained, "they way my mother says, 'where have you been,' makes me feel like turning right around and going back there." Gruffness and abruptness can arouse hostility. If we talked to our offspring as we talk to our neighbors' children, they would be much more likely to talk to us. Respect engenders respect.

HOLD A FAMILY CONFERENCE — Most teen-agers feel they have little voice in family affairs. Why not treat them as junior partners in the firm by taking them into our confidence? Family gatherings offer an excellent opportunity for a family talk, for children to participate in decision-making, and for working things out together.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Party Problem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In two weeks my husband and I will be going on our vacation. After much persuasion, we agreed to let our two sons, 17 and 20 stay home and batch it.

Last week we discovered that the boys are planning to invite about 15 couples, boys and girls, to a party at the house while we're gone.

We firmly told them that they could have the party only if an aunt and uncle chaperoned it. The boys didn't like that idea, and suggested instead that a newly-married couple of their acquaintance be the chaperones. (This couple is about the age of our elder son.) My husband promptly vetoed that suggestion. We than gave the boys a choice of postponing the party until we return, having the party before we go, or having the aunt and uncle chaperone it. Well, their noses have been out of joint ever since.

Abby, my husband and I have looked forward to a well-earned vacation, and we would not feel at ease unless we were reasonably certain that everything would be all right at home. Do you think we are being fair in our demands? — J.K.

DEAR J. K.: Yes. And hooray for you and for all other parents who insist on having a clearcut understanding of what their children may and may not do in their absence.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently dating a young man who is wonderful in every way. He is studying for the ministry and has not been around very much.

I noticed the first time we ate together that he cut all his meat into little bite-sized pieces before eating even the first piece. I didn't say anything of course because I didn't want to hurt his feelings. Well, Abby, he still does it, and when we are in public it is embarrassing. His plate looks like he is ready to feed a dog or a small child.

Is there some nice way I can tell him that he should cut only one piece at a time? He's such a dear, sensitive person I'd hate to offend him. — Touchy Subject.

DEAR TOUCHY: If you can't bring yourself to tell him, clip this item and mail it to him with one of those cute "to a special person cards" and sign your name!

DEAR ABBY: Our neighbors' house burned down and we told them they could stay with us for a few days — until they found other living quarters. Well, it has been nearly two months and they're still here, and we don't know how to get them out.

These people have four school-age children, two in diapers, two dogs, and a cat. My house is a mess from one end to the other. We can't have anyone visit us as these folks who lost their home are always having company visiting them.

They are nice people, Abby, and we don't want to hurt their feelings, but they never mention looking for another place to live and we have had it. We are a family of seven, so you know that we are . . . Very Crowded.

DEAR CROWDED: It would appear that your neighbors are the kind of people who will stay until you make the first move — so make it. Tell them frankly that it's time they found other living quarters. (Could they be waiting for smoke signals?)

CONFIDENTIAL TO UPS AND DOWNS: This may surprise you, but more often than not the more neurotic partner in a marriage is the one who isn't seeing a psychiatrist.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hand Lights Increase Pedestrian Safety

By PENNY SAVER

When Mrs. Smith came over to see Gladys the other day, she brought presents for the twins.

"I know these aren't exciting," she explained as she handed them over. "But if you are as wise as I think you are you will carry them every day —and especially at night. I wouldn't step out the door in the late afternoon or evening without mine!"

What did she bring them? Miniature safety lamps, that's what.

These little lamps are just the thing for pedestrians and cyclists of any age — and drivers would be well advised to keep one in the glove compartment for emergencies.

Each is shaped like a T with a cylindrical handle the width and length of the two flashlight batteries that power it. An adjustable grey strap is attached to the handle.

The crossbar of the T is made of two cones; one ending in a red lens, the other with a clear lens. When the unit is switched on the whole top glows gently, but the lenses shine very brightly.

Held in the hand or strapped to an arm or leg with the red lens to the back, these little lights move with the body, making it easier for motorists to see.

Lights the Way

Mrs. Smith pointed out a few more advantages she has discovered since she bought hers.

"I use the clear end as if it were a flashlight to illuminate stairs, paths and my key-hole. Since it is so small I can slip the light into my purse or shopping bag, so I am never unprepared."

These little lights are made in France and were introduced to Victoria by the safety-conscious Lions Clubs. They are $1.95 each.

It's a well-known fact that everything tastes better through a straw and right now there is a super straw on the market.

Made of clear plastic, it is twisted and twirled into an intricate knot and as a child sets into just about any drink except water he can watch the liquid rise and sink through the coils.

Easily washable, these straws are 98 cents each.

Spoon collectors must be growing in number for spoon racks are growing in size and diversity of design.

Spoon racks range from $4.95 to $8.95 in price and can hold as many as 42 spoons.

AIMS Members Hold Tea

A donation tea was held recently at the Mayfair Drive home of Mrs. J. W. E. Hunt by the members of AIMS (Adventures In Music Society).

Mrs. G. R. Peakes opened the affair which raised approximately $500.

AIMS, which works closely with the Victoria Symphony Society and Harry Bigsby of the school board, was founded three years ago to encourage an interest in music in the schools.

This year the group plans to sponsor a number of children chosen by music teachers in the schools to attend Wednesday night recitals and Sunday afternoon concerts.

Saigon in Dark On Withdrawal Plans of Nixon

By ROBERT G. KAISER

SAIGON (WP)—The Nixon administration has not given South Vietnam any plan or timetable for future withdrawals of United States troops, President Nguyen Van Thieu said in an interview broadcast in the U.S. Sunday.

Thieu said he would like to be told how many soldiers the Americans are planning to withdraw during 1970 so the Saigon government can begin preparations to replace them. He said he could accept further U.S. withdrawals of up to 150,000 troops during 1970.

If 150,000 are withdrawn next year, about 335,000 U.S. troops would be left in Vietnam by the beginning of 1971. That figure would also represent an accelerated rate of withdrawal, which will average about 10,000 men a month during the second half of 1969.

(Thieu, in answering whether he thought Nixon must continue to withdraw troops, said that the problem was "not to stick and run but to help this small country." He suggested the U.S. "stay behind and help us economically and in more sophisticated weapons, like atomic warfare that we have not.")

("Atomic weapons?" Reynolds asked.)

(Thieu, apparently ignoring the last question, went on to say he agreed "completely" with President Nixon's policy on Asia.)

(Neither Reynolds nor John Scali, the other interviewer, pursued the matter.)

(This exchange led some observers to suggest Thieu was asking that his country be given atomic weapons.)

(John Scali told the Associated Press Sunday in Washington that he and Reynolds gained the impression that Thieu did not want nor expect to be provided with nuclear weapons. Rather, said Scali, their impression was that Thieu was trying to say his country was counting on a U.S. "nuclear umbrella" for protection.)

The interview broadcast in the U.S. Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" was recorded in Saigon Wednesday.

In the broadcast interview Thieu made many of the same points he made at a press conference in Vungtau Saturday, but he was much more explicit with his ABC questioners about the lack of any plan for future withdrawals.

If there was a plan, and if the U.S. would give Saigon "substantial aid, on equipment, on funds . . . we can replace a hundred, 150,000," in 1970," Thieu said.

"We would like to have long-range planning because the problem of the replacement of (U.S.) troops (by South Vietnamese forces) is not so simple . . . I don't like to have (a) surprise on that because we cannot accept surprise when we have war," Thieu said.

Thieu was asked if President Nixon had not given him "even a tentative timetable (for future withdrawals) which could stretch over a period of time?"

"Not yet, up to now," Thieu replied.

Thieu spoke in his sometimes confusing English, answering questions put to him by Reynolds and Scali.

Thieu was also asked if President Nixon had ever discussed with him the plan Nixon said he had in last year's presidential election for ending the Vietnam war. Thieu responded that "I think we have agreed on the plan I have announced on July 11 . . . to settle the war by peaceful means," by free elections in which the Viet Cong could participate.

In his press conference Friday, President Nixon said he opposed any proposal that set a deadline on the U.S. presence in Vietnam because any arbitrary deadline would destroy the possibility of an early peace.

The South Vietnamese president predicted that the Communists would conserve their forces in the next year or so, perhaps launching "another great offensive" to coincide with November's congressional elections so they could bring "the most powerful pshychological effect on the U.S. opinion at the right time next year."

Meanwhile, Thieu predicted, the enemy will continue to harass allied forces and "to play on the impatience of . . . U.S. opinion."

He said no progress could be made toward negotiating an end to the war unless the Communists are willing to "discuss about peace." Thieu again ruled out any coalition government for Vietnam, saying "we are against the Communist ideology."

BIZARRE WEDDING RITE performed by Ravi Kristin in Kansas City Sunday is described as "a combination of Hindu, pagan and Polynesian" styles. Young couple united, Bob Lucas and his bride, who wished to be known only as Blue, are watched by crowd of weekend regulars in downtown city square. (AP Wirephoto.)

OUTSPOKEN SOCIALIST FAVORED

New Swedish Chief Coming

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An outspoken Socialist named Olof Palme is expected to emerge this week as Sweden's prime minister.

The ruling Social Democratic party will select a new leader Wednesday, and this means a successor to Tage Erlander, who is retiring after 23 unbroken years as prime minister. The leader of the dominant party automatically qualified as prime minister.

Others have been mentioned, but Swedes generally expect Palme, an Erlander protege and now minister of education, to get the job. At 42 he will be the youngest chief of government his country has had.

The Social Democratic party, in power for a quarter century, is replacing its old guard with a new generation of Socialists. Erlander, 67, will formally resign next week along with his cabinet. His party won its greatest election victory a year ago.

Palme has been a controversial figure almost from the day in 1953 when Erlander appointed him as a personal assistant. He made enemies because of his sharpness in debate. But he was loved by the young left wing of his party as their alternative to left extremism outside the party.

Pentagon 'Misled' Acheson on War

Acheson, who helped place public advertisements backing Johnson's war policy in 1965, said Sunday he had been misled by the Pentagon high command.

"I would say I have changed my opinion," said Acheson, 76, who headed the state department under President Truman. "Yes, I have. In 1965, I was, I think, misled by optimistic views from the Pentagon.

"A group of us had had several briefings from 1965 on, from the Pentagon, sometimes done by the chairman, sometimes done by spokesmen for the department. And these had led us to believe that the military situation was more favorable than I later thought it was."

Acheson was interviewed on the CBS News program Who, What, When, Where, Why.

Acheson said that when President Johnson asked him to review the war in February, 1968, he agreed, but asked to speak to officers "lower down the line" than the joint chiefs of staff.

"And in going through all the reports," he said, "it seemed to me that the situation was quite different from the way it appeared when all these reports got sifted and came out through the ambassador, the chairmen of the joint chiefs and the heads of the CIA."

Acheson said he presented his views on Vietnam to President Johnson in mid-March, 1968. On March 31, the president announced a halt in nearly all air and sea action against North Vietnam.

Hanoi Goal Outlined In Secret Document

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command has a captured document stating that Hanoi's goals are to inflict heavy American casualties to prevent de-escalation of the Vietnam war while the United States is in a position of strength, official sources said today.

The informants said the document was found north of Saigon Sept. 5 and outlines a program for implementing the Communist command's battle plans.

However, the disclosure was coupled with an announcement that enemy activity had dropped to its lowest level in Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces since the week ending last July 26.

The captured document said heavy American losses had forced the United States to halt the bombing of North Vietnam and to withdraw 25,000 troops during the past summer.

It emphasized what it termed Viet Cong and North Vietnamese diplomatic successes compelling the United States to fight passively and negotiate at the same time in Paris.

The document instructed guerrilla troops to destroy the South Vietnamese government and its administrative machinery; increase military action and expand the armed forces; heighten the roll of the Viet Cong's revolutionary government; and increase civilian, military and political proselyting.

Cozened Darlings Are Cactus Explains U.S. Rose Expert

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Rose lovers of Victoria! Think of the woody stems of your cozened darlings. Remember the thorns. Now, tell me what is their family? Where did those lovelies originate?

Forbes

Believe it or not, they belong to the cactus family.

I got this hot-from-the-record tip through no less an authority than Patricia Moorten, botanist, author-specialist on desert plants and (with her husband "Cactus Slim" Moorten) originator and owner of a famed desertland garden and cactarium in Palm Springs.

Coupled with her intense interest in desert plants is her love of roses. She originated and sponsored the well-known Palm Springs rose, delightfully fragrant and with large coral pink and bronzy gold blooms.

If you are interested in seeing these at first hand you only need go as far as the Green on Pandora Avenue close to Vancouver Street. There you'll find a bed of the beauties, a bit bedraggled now by rain but still with amazing color and sweetness.

You remember, of course, that Palm Springs and Victoria clasped hands in a twinned-city pact a few year back, in the interests of friendship and tourism.

Since then there has been a two-way street between these cities with courtesies exchanged and gifts presented.

The roses (100 of them) are in the gift area. They arrived last spring and were planted with proper ceremony.

Down in Palm Springs there is a square in the centre of the city, Mrs. Moorten says, devoted to these roses. She and her husband donated many of them and they continue to assist in maintaining continuous bloom in that square throughout the year.

Patricia Moorten's love affair with the desert and its plants cover many years.

She was born in Ohio, planned early in her life to become a botanist and came to University of California at Los Angeles to take her university degree.

There she met "Cactus Slim," a landscape contractor with the same love for the desert. They married and went to Palm Springs to live "because it was easy there" to indulge what was then an absorbing hobby.

Today it is their life work.

In the years between they have researched thousands of cactus plants in Mexico and around Baja, California, and have discovered many unusual specimens and new varieties.

In 1938 they established "the world's first cactarium" on their place at Palm Springs. It is now a "living museum" that displays 2,000 varieties of desert plants. Seeds are harvested there and plants are grown.

On top of this the estate has an abundance of wild life, interesting displays of rocks, crystals and wood forms and the Moortens give talks on the Indian lore of the desert region—still another of their many interests.

Let me also whisper that in her "spare time" Patricia designs clothes for men and women. Cactus fashions, she calls them.

Some years back, in the course of their research, this husband-wife team made an overland trek from Palm Springs through South America to Cape Horn. This gave Mrs. Moorten the distinction of being the first woman botanist to make such a journey.

They had a specially designed car for the trip and they "inched" their way in places where there were no roads. "We found many new varieties and specimens."

Since then they have repeated this trip several times. "And still there are no roads in places."

Mrs. Moorten was in Victoria very briefly in the course of an annual lecture tour in the Pacific Northwest including Canada, United States and Mexico. Next spring she will take this lecture to England and Western Europe.

Soon now she will be hurrying back to Palm Springs. "From October to May the desert is in bloom," she said, "and we welcome thousands of visitors."

There is also a new grandchild (the first) waiting down there.

"We hope, when he is a little older, he will love the desert, its plants and its lore—and our Palm Springs roses—as much as we do."

Blaze Damages Lumber Yard

SURREY (CP)—Thousands of dollars worth of lumber stocks were destroyed Sunday along with offices and a storage warehouse as fire ripped through the Riverdale Lumber Co. operation in Surrey.

The three-alarm fire also destroyed four trucks and two fork-lift vehicles. Firemen saved much of the company's lumber stocks stored in a nearby yard.

Shipyards Told: Survive Without Government Help

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP)—Canada's shipbuilding industry must survive without government subsidies, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Saturday at this Fraser Valley community.

Speaking to the fall meeting of the Pacific Northwest Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, he said the industry is not dying and should specialize for the future.

"The industry, in the immediate post-war period, was both sanguine and a little sluggish. But now we have evidence of a thorough - going rationalization of capacity.

"Would this change have come about so rapidly had the shipbuilders been pap-fed by the government? As it was they were forced to act," said Mr. Jamieson.

Demands for protection for shipbuilding might take attention off the need to change techniques and suggested a selective approach to shipbuilding technology.

"I am certain that you realize completely all the problems of matching subsidy with subsidy. It winds up being a mug's game, for what's to stop the other fellow always upping his subsidy to cover yours to keep you at a constant disadvantage," Mr. Jamieson said.

In a later interview, he said the contraction of the industry was necessary.

"The yards that have closed are ones that should have shut. Some of the companies have switched to other lines.

"For example, Vickers has gone into the container field. Some have merged and achieved both a rationalization of production capacity and economies of scale."

Mr. Jamieson also said he expects a report from the Canadian Transport Commission by next spring on Canada's merchant marine, now down to 21 seagoing vessls of more than 10,000 tons.

FORMOSA WIND WRECKS HOMES

TAIPEI (AP)—Typhoon Elsie killed at least 95 persons and injured more than 250 as it swept across Formosa Saturday with winds of 120 miles an hour after hitting the Yaeyama Island to the northeast and inflicting severe crop damage, officials said.

Twenty-five persons are still missing on Formosa, where more than 9,900 homes were destroyed.

HOME GARDEN

Don't Neglect Those Vegetables

By HILDA BEASTALL

If we neglect the vegetable garden now it cannot be expected to keep us going later.

Keep the rows of winter vegetables clean of fallen leaves for beneath them will lurk slugs and other pests as long as mild weather persists.

Hilda

Remove yellowed leaves from cabbage, firm the plants if loosened. Newly transplanted spring cabbage (Flower of Spring) can have a weak feeding of alginure to improve their general health, and this goes to lettuce seedlings too.

In cooler areas away from the salt water, beans are almost finished so the plants can be pulled up for adding to the compost heap.

Other plants which are no longer producing a crop can also be pulled up. Squash, peppers, cucumbers, eggplants and melons are among the first to go. Immature fruits from these are used in soups, casseroles, or salads according to the kind.

With the exception of melons, partly mature fruits will keep for a week or more.

The late sowings of peas and bush beans will need picking over to catch the pods as they reach usable size without waiting for a full pick. In this way, you'll enjoy the few instead of risking loss of everything if a frost should come overnight.

To newcomers here, wit htheir first garden, it may sound strange for us to be warning about frost damage while September is still with us. But after many years, it becomes a way of gardening life to realize that the summer garden is living an extension of time after September 15.

This does not mean an end to flowers and color in the garden. Since fall takes over with its own quota of beauty.

When a space is cleared, (it should be sheltered from northeast winds during winter and receive sun from March on) make a sowing of broad beans and another of early peas.

Grow the dwarf broad beans, they flower earlier and so give an earlier crop; and choose a smooth seeded early dwarf pea, for the same reason.

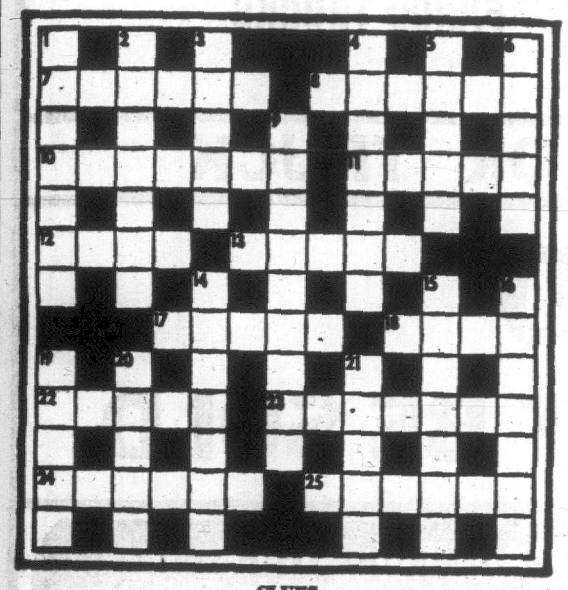

Adozen seed of broad beans for each person of the household will usually suffice unless you are especially fond of these delicious vegetables; but make the sowing of peas about six inches apart and more than you require to allow for loss of a few to winter conditions.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Voyage of Nonsuch Important to Canada

By BOB BOWMAN

During 1970 the Hudson's Bay Company will be celebrating its 300th anniversary and one of the featutures will be the appearance of a 40-ton sailing ship called the "Nonsuch." It will be a replica of the tiny ship that sailed from England in 1668, arrived at James Bay on September 29, and then returned to England the following year with such a valuable cargo of furs that King Charles II founded a company called "Gentlemen Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay."

It was a momentus charter in the history of Canada because King Charles gave his cousin, Prince Rupert, his brother Prince James, the Duke of Shafteabury, the Duke of Albermarle, and other leading courtiers, the territory known as Rupert's Land. It included the entire area, from Labrador to the Rockies and the Pacific Coast was included later. The Hudson's Bay Company governed this domain until Canada bought it in 1870 for 300,000 pounds (about $1,500,000 in those days). The company was allowed to retain about 50,000 acres of land around its many trading posts and was also given one-twentieth of what was known as the "fertile belt" across the prairies.

Two great adventurers were responsible for the creation of the Hudson's Bay Company. Pierre Radisson and his brother-in-law Medard Chouart, sieur des Groseilliers. They came from Three Rivers, Quebec, and were fined for fur-trading without a licence. This made them angry and with the help of Sir George Cartaret, a rather respectable English pirate, they got to England and told king Charles about the rich furs in Hudson Bay.

Charles and Prince Rupert called them "Radishes and Gooseberry" but they equipped two ships for an experimental voyage. Radisson's ship was damaged by a storm and had to return to England, but the Nonsuch with Groseilliers on board made the trip safely, and returned to England in October 1669. The Hudson's Bay Company was formed officially on May 2, 1670.

Other events on September 29:

1783 — Lieutenant French began survey to build canal between Ottawa River and Lake Ontario.

1905 — Carnegie Library opened at Guelph, Ont.

1919 — First airmail service in Maritimes opened between Charlottetown and Truro.

YOUR HEALTH

Migraine, Epilepsy Blamed for Spells

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I just ran onto some notes I made in 1940, describing the difficulties of a bright and pleasant girl of 15 who had never been able to romp and play with other children because if she did, she would soon go into what she and her mother called a "spell." She would first get to feeling very tired, and soon she would have severe pain which began in the pit of her stomach and then ran up into her back. Her temperature would then shoot up to 104 degrees. This fever apparently was due to nervousness, because after a little while it would go down again without any treatment.

Next in the spell, the girl would have much nausea, much intestinal gas and constipation. For the first 24 hours of the spell, she would lie in a stupor, waking at intervals to groan with pain. Then she would retch at hourly intervals, day and night, anywhere from one to seven days. Between the spells of retching, she would doze.

Many good physicians had examined her, and had found nothing wrong. Fortunately they had had the good sense not to operate on her abdomen. Interestingly, she was perfectly well between the spells, which fact made me feel that there was nothing wrong with her digestive tract. Her trouble was coming out of some part of her brain.

This was the more likely explanation because her spells tended to follow some excitement such as a school examination or a school picnic. But sometimes the mother could see no exciting cause for a spell. When I saw the girl, she was having a spell about every two weeks. Ten years later, I heard that she had soon outgrown the trouble and for years had been entirely free of it and in good health. Some of these spells are related to migraine and some to epilepsy.

I thought her spells were due to migraine plus some other trouble, because I have seen so many patients with this type of story who, when asked who in the family had migraine, would say, "Oh, that was my mother." And I would aks them who else had something wrong with the nervous system, and the patient would say, "Oh, that was my father's brother, who was once insane (or markedly alcoholic, or highly neurotic, or mildly epileptic)." In this girl's case, when I asked the mother what was the other element besides migraine producing her trouble, she said there was an insane grandfather.

Today, in such a case, I would insist on getting electroencephalograms (records of the tiny electric currents which are constantly running through the brain). Stormy records often indicate epilepsy. In this case, I could not get any history of anything like epilepsy in the family. The fact that in a few years the girl outgrew the trouble, and did not get it again in the next 10 years, tended to rule out epilepsy as a complication. I regret that we doctors were not taught in college how often very severe migraine is migraine plus some other troublesome inheritance.

I imagine that many people do not know that a test for sugar in the urine is not likely to reveal a mild and very early diabetes. Why doesn't it? Because in the kidneys, sugar does not "spill over from the blood into the urine" until the amount in the blood has risen from 120 to 150 or more milligrams. Normal values, according to the Folin Wu method, are between 80 and 120 milligrams.

fun with figures
By J.A.H. HUNTER

Ah Wong and Soong Li sat on the bund watching the sampans go by. "I sold my ducks and chickens," said Li. "The chickens for 79c and the ducks 61c each."

"Cheap," Wong commented. "How much in all?"

Li shook his head. "Just fifty dollars, but I needed the money."

How many had he sold?

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

It is a fact that in this game of bridge, everyone makes mistakes. The expert, of course, makes fewer mistakes than the nonexpert, which is what classifies him as an expert.

In the deal presented here, which arose in a rubber-bridge game, our South declarer committed an error that can be attributed only to a temporary blind spot. As he himself admitted later, he could have kicked himself for being so "stupid."

♣ A 6 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

The jack of clubs lead was covered by dummy's queen, East's king, and taken by South's ace. When the ace and king of trumps were cashed, it was revealed that West's queen of trumps was a sure winner.

It therefore became imperative that South dispose of the two remaining clubs in his hand before West obtained the lead with the trump queen. So South cashed the king of spades and the ace of spades. He then played the queen of spades, discarding his three of clubs. As is apparent, West ruffed the queen. His 10 of clubs now took the setting trick.

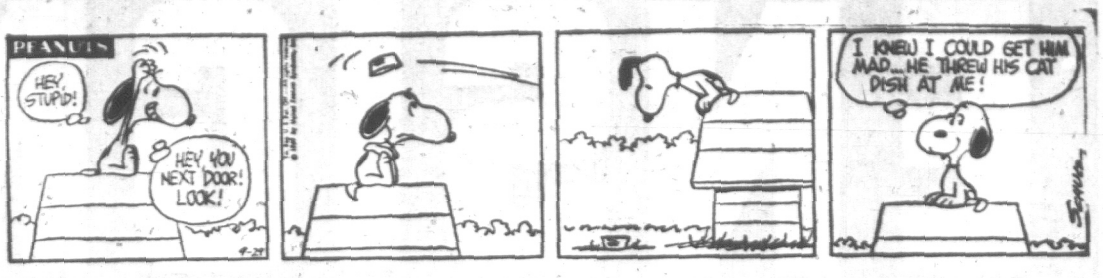

Admittedly, declarer got a tough break when West showed up with only two spades, but he really had no one but himself to blame for his defeat.

From South's point of view, in order to fulfil the slam West had to have a minimum of three diamonds. If he had fewer, South would be unable to cash three top diamonds; and he would then be unable to get rid of one of his clubs on dummy's fourth diamond.

South, therefore, should have started out by leading three rounds of diamonds, instead of spades. With West showing up with four diamonds, one of South's clubs would then be discarded on the board's fourth diamond.

Next would come the king, ace, and queen of spades, South discarding his other losing club on the latter lead. Whether West trumped or not, South would now have a fulfilled slam contract.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

Today's best television shows as previewed and selected by a staff of experts who watch screenings, attend rehearsals and analyze scripts in New York and Hollywood.

MY WORLD AND WELCOME TO IT: 7:30 P.M., Ch. 5, Color. "Little Girls are Sugar and Spice — and Not Always Nice." Pleasant outing. Our hero takes on his genuis daughter in a game of chess, and thanks to the most intelligently drawn characters we've seen in TV family mush in many years, the simple little tale comes out fun. Naturally, the girl is too good for him, but we all knew that before the game commenced. William Windom and little Lisa Gerritsen are delightful.

MAYBERRY R.F.D.: 9 P.M., Ch. 7, Color. Sweet Sam, the gentle farmer who always builds everybody else up, has his moment of triumph. He fills in at the last moment with a scarecrow dance number to keep Morelli's roadhouse going after a professional act is cancelled. Ken Berry used to be a Fred Astaire-type dancer, and this is his first chance to do his stuff on the series. Girl friend Millie and know-it-all Howard Sprague also help in attempting to book talent from a lowdown agent, nicely played by Buddy Lester.

THE SURVIVORS (Premiere): 9 P.M., Ch. 4. Color. For those fans lamenting the demise of "Peyton Place", here is its reincarnation set in the posh world of the jet set as seen through the eyes of Harold Robbins. The cast of characters might be found in any of Robbins' successful novels, and the name cast does what it can with patented roles. Ralph Bellamy plays the head of the wealthy banking family, Lana Turner his pampered, troubled daughter, and George Hamilton his playboy son who can't begin to bridge the gap with his Dad. The other regulars include Kevin McCarthy as Lana's weak husband, Michael Vincent as her illegitimate son, Diana Muldaur as Bellamy's more than dedicated secretary, and others ad infinitum.

BLACK JOURNAL: 9 P.M., Cha. 9, Color. Tonight's edition of the monthly journal offers segments of the first Pan-American Cultural Festival, held in Algiers last July. The portions of the 12-day festival attended by about 4,000 Africans, illustrate some of the performing talent including Tunisian, Moroccan and Sengalese dancers, singers and drummers. But a considerable part of the hour is devoted to the focus of the festival; namely, the unity of interest among African states and their shared cultural heritage with black men the world over. The highlight of that segment features interviews with two of the most outspoken rebellions spirits of the American black community, Eldridge Cleaver and Stokely Carmichael.

DORIS DAY SHOW: 9:30 P.M., Ch. 7, Color. The idea of the episode is to get Doris into hot water and rely on her feminine charm and fighting instincts to earn a second chance. In this instance, secretary Doris has the magazine in a jam over a bank loan when a frog slips out of her purse and disrupts an inspection tour by officials. Then a frantic Doris goes to work, pacifying one and all, and saves the loan without singing a note.

Strachan, Calder Backing NDP-Union Divorce Plans

New Democratic Party MLAs Robert Strachan and Frank Calder have spoken out against the provincial party's official ties with the trade union movement.

Strachan, who stepped down as party leader earlier this year, said the NDP "should stay away from a formal alliance with anyone."

Calder, MLA for Atlin, said Sunday the party is a mouthpiece for labor and should sever its ties with the trade union movement.

The comments followed NDP House Leader Dave Barrett's statement Friday that he will support a move to break ties between the party and unions.

National NDP leader T.C. Douglas on the weekend supported more ties with unions, farm and business groups.

DECLINED STANDS

Provincial Deputy Leader Alex Macdonald and caucus chairman Bob Williams both said today the reassessment being carried out by the party in the wake of its Aug. 27 election defeat should be an internal party affair and declined to take a public stand on the question of union affiliation.

Strachan said that the only formal affiliation between the NDP and the trade union movement was through official connections with a few unions.

"This is an independent party and it should stay that way," he said.

Calder said the party would be the government today if it had remained the CCF party without the NDP's formal union connections.

"I'm getting fed up with the general public blaming the NDP for any strikes in this province," said Calder, who was a strong supporter of NDP leader Tom Berger in his union-backed bid for the party leadership last April.

Berger has since given notice he will resign the job at the next party convention in 1970. He lost his Vancouver-Burrard seat in the election.

Calder said the major issue at the national NDP convention later this month in Winnipeg should be the severing of union ties.

REPORT TO COME

Williams said the reassessment of union ties being carried out by the provincial party cannot be regarded as a debate on any left wing-right wing ideological basis.

He said the real debate is about radicalism and that it can't be categorized on that spectrum.

Barrett, elected house leader 10 days ago, has said that Premier Bennett won the election as "the only real radical" in the campaign.

A committee studying the union question is expected to have a report ready for party convention next summer. It is representative of the entire party, rather than simply of the elected MLAs in the caucus, spokesmen say.

Dock Strike Forced Visit

The Canadian Pacific's Princess Patricia was forced to make an emergency call at Victoria Sunday because of the longshoremen's strike.

Due to dock at Vancouver, she was diverted to Victoria and landed 350 passengers who had completed a round trip to Alaska.

Local wholesalers were called into action and victualled the cruise ship with eggs, fresh vegetables and other supplies.

A special truck, laden with baggage for passengers from the mainland and the United States, was sent from Vancouver and met the ship when she docked at 7 a.m.

Mills Unaffected By Dock Strike

Two Vancouver Island pulp and newsprint mills expect little difficulty from the longshoremen's strike for the next three to four weeks.

Spokesmen for B.C. Forest Products in Crofton and MacMillan Bloedel in Port Alberni, said they have sufficient storage space to allow full production to continue.

No report was available from the MacMillan Bloedel pulp plant at Harmac, near Nanaimo, or the B.C. Forest Products sawmills and plywood mill in Victoria.

Crofton reported no effects from the longshoremen's strike, now in its fifth day. There was "considerable" storage space and rail shipments were continuing.

Overseas tonnage is being stored and no difficulty was anticipated for at least a month.

Port Alberni also uses truck and rail transport and anticipated no problems for two or three weeks.

In Vancouver, Andy Kotovich, president of the Canadian area of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said Sunday he thinks settlement by the parties themselves is possible.

And Edward Strang, president of the British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association, said all that both sides need is "a little time".

The union has agreed to handle grain exports but employers have made no commitment beyond approval of loading ships already in port.

The strike of 3,200 dockers in British Columbia started after negotiations collapsed on the question of wages and fringe costs.

The union's final package proposal amounted to $1.42 an hour and the employers' $1.22.

Most of the other complicated issues on work rules, work guarantees and container handling had been agreed when the axe fell on the wage issue.

Guard Held As Escapers Hunted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—An intensive search was under way today in bush land north of Quesnel for two armed men who broke out from a provincial jail Sunday. A jail guard was in custody.

The men were among three who fled from the Prince George jail after breaking into the jail's gun room and stealing arms.

Selwyn Roxborough Smith, B.C.'s director of corrections, said one of the men and a jail guard, first believed to have been taken as a hostage, were recaptured at Quesnel.

Mr. Roxborough Smith said "The officer appeared to have been involved himself in the breakout, the theft of arms and the theft of vehicles at gunpoint."

The director said the officer had geen on staff for six months and was a "temporary" officer.

He said the four men made the getaway by stealing at gunpoint two cars.

The prisoners were identified as Gerald Hebert, 20, serving 18 months for breaking and entering; Gregory Ashley, 18, serving eight months for assault and Arnold Ladouceur, 22, serving 12 months definite and 12 months indeterminate for breaking and entering.

Students Join Protest

Students from Mrs. Regan's classes are canvassing the staff and students in the school for signatures. Mrs. Regan will underwrite the cost of the telegram when it is sent Tuesday.

The telegram reads:

"Angered Esquimalt High School staff and students deeply disturbed. Demand cancellation of Aleutian tests. Vancouver Islanders remember 1964 earthquake and tidal wave. More research needed while doubts remain."

Dancers Willing, Supervisor Quits

Nine students at Edward Milne secondary school danced all night and still asked for more but couldn't find a willing superviser.

The nine were taking part in a marathon dance at the Sooke school to raise funds for the students' council and had finished a 24-hour session Saturday at 10 p.m. when supervising teachers decided they'd had enough.

The dance-in started with 33 couples Friday and Saturday morning still had eight couples shuffling around the floor but by 10 p.m. only one couple and seven single dancers were competing.

Principal Don Kerley said contestants raised about $500 as each dancer performed on a quarter-an-hour pledge. The money is for INVO, which means involvement, a student organization that sponsors hikes and other out-of-school activities.

An exhausted superviser said this morning no further marathons were planned in the near future.

Rites Held For North Mayor

Funeral service for John G. McNiven, 69, first mayor of Yellowknife, was held today from St. George's Anglican Church in Ganges.

McNiven, a resident of Ganges since 1967, died Saturday in Lady Minto hospital.

He was born at Comber, Ont., received his Master's degree from the University of Toronto in 1924, and went north in 1939 as manager of several mining companies.

When he arrived in Yellowknife, capital of the Northwest Territories, there were only 700 people living there. In 1946 he became the capital's first mayor and two years later became the first territories resident appointed to the territories legislative council.

In 1951 he became an elected member of the legislative council and served until 1961.

He moved to Edmonton in 1961.

Man Killed In Tire Mishap

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Police today released the name of a man killed Sunday at a logging camp on Loughborough Inlet, about 35 miles north of here.

Dead is Randy Saby, 24, of Courtenay.

Police said he was struck on the head by a tire iron as he changed a tire.

Accidents Kill Three In Boat, Car and Bed

Two area adults and an infant died over the weekend in separate accidents.

Mrs. Jeannie Cockburn, 22, of 1331 Pandora, died Saturday after the car in which she was riding was involved in three-car collision at Cook and Johnson. Louie Gene Cardinal, 636 Admirals, has been charged with causing death through criminal negligence.

Tracey Leigh Turner, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Turner, 1603 Cook, was crushed by a chest of drawers in her bedroom Saturday.

Mrs. Cockburn was in a car driven by her husband, Alexander, on Cook about 9:10 a.m. Saturday. It collided with the Cardinal car proceeding east on Johnson. Force of the impact sent the Cockburn car into a third vehicle driven by Robert Armstrong of 3790 Casey Drive.

The woman was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with severe head, chest, back and internal injuries. She died four hours later.

Cardinal was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital and spent the night under guard with a cut head and a sore shoulder.

Alexander Cockburn was treated for slight cuts and bruises to his head and later released from hospital. Armstrong escaped injury.

RCMP at Duncan said Capt. Higgs, a 15-year veteran with the B.C. Pilotage, was found at 7:30 a.m. Saturday aboard his boat and an inquiry is to be held.

The Turner youngster was put to bed at 1 p.m. Saturday and was found unconscious with a chest of drawers across the bed two hours later. The child was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital. Police are investigating.

Men Take Over As Women Ousted

By ANN McFEATTERS

ELLISVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Ladies Day is over in Ellisville.

The men are running things again.

The eight-year matriarchal reign of Ellisville—population 120 or maybe 140—ended in April when the men turned the tables with a vigorous write-in campaign.

Ousted were the female mayor, the female village clerk and three female aldermen.

The end came quickly and quietly when voters endorsed the write-in campaigns of two men.

The winners were still a bit surprised months later, and the village itself is a bit resentful of all the outside publicity.

"They made such a fuss about the women, we thought we'd change it," said the new mayor, Elmer Vorhees.

Nobody admits to anti-feminine bias in the election results.

Vorhees said the real reason the men ran was competition.

"Everybody needs competition," he mused. "After all, they'd been in eight years and —who knows—they may be in again next time. I was kind of surprised when we won."

But Vorhees probably wasn't nearly as surprised as in 1961 when the secret feminine campaign took Ellisville. In April, 1961, the matriarchy was established when the women carried on a whispering write-in campaign to unseat the men. They ran every male from office, all running unopposed for re-election.

Automation Is Putting Us In Prison, Says Indian

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Automation has put more Indians in prison than any other single cause, an Indian inmate of the British Columbia Penitentiary said Sunday.

Known only as Norman to reporters visiting the prison for a rare look at the weekly meeting of the penitentiary's Indian and Metis Educational Club, he said:

"Life was good for the Indian until 1940 or so. We had plenty of drunks and we liked to fight but we didn't have all that white man's crime.

"Before 1940 there were few Indians in jail except for fighting and drinking. Then automation started taking over our non-skilled, seasonal jobs. . . ."

Norman said there are about 600 inmates in the prison, 10 per cent of them Indians, with the percentage even higher in other provincial jails. Yet Indians formed only two per cent of B.C.'s population.

Out of a provincial Indian population of 47,000, there are always 900 in various jails, Norman said.

"Isn't that shocking?" he asked. "We must find a way for our people to understand the value of an education and keeping out of jail. . . ."

'SO WE GET DRUNK'

"Why does the Indian turn to crime? Because there are few jobs for the uneducated. No work to do. So we get drunk and fight and turn to crime," he said.

Norman said 10 members of the educational group now are trying to raise money for a three-volume book to be entitled "Indian: Past, Present and Future."

Carried out in co-operation with the Vancouver Indian Centre, the study will be written by club members "to tell our side of the question."

The group hopes it one day will become recognized as a school text.

Getting out of jail was another of the problems cited by members of the club during the interview.

One Indian said parole difficulties were not based on racial discrimination but on cultural discrimination.

"It's the system. It's a point system with the point favoring the achievements in the white man's world."

VIOLENCE ADVOCATED

Another said parole decisions were being made in Ottawa and advocated violence to get Indian problems solved.

Richard Pugsley, liaison officer for the club and a prison social worker, said a well-known lumber firm in the province has promised to hire released Indian inmates.

"They'll hire you without worrying about your past. It will be based on your will to work. They'll fire you if you don't work like they'll fire anyone else," he said.

The educational club was organized by former inmate Clarence Dennis, now a resident of Port Alberni on Vancouver Island, in 1965.

Mr. Pugsley said the ultimate object of the club "is to fold up for lack of Indian members.

"It's a self-educational program. Everything is left to club members to initiate."

Drapeau Home Bombed

MONTREAL (CP) — A powerful bomb, estimated by police to have the equivalent power of 10 sticks of dynamite, exploded at the east-end Rosemount home of Mayor Jean Drapeau early today.

Mrs. Drapeau and her 21-year-old son Michel, asleep upstairs in the two-storey residence at the time, were not injured by the blast that shattered windows two streets away.

Mayor Drapeau was at his restaurant, Le Vaisseau d'Or—The Golden Vessel—when the bomb exploded about 5:15 a.m. He reached home shortly after 6 a.m. and immediately asked if anyone was hurt.

The bomb shattered the rear of the grey stucco and wood-trimmed dwelling, built 20 years ago at a cost of $14,000. Additions had been made to the house on rue des Plaines since.

The force of the blast tore a gaping hole in the foundation and broke every window of the house.

The mayor told reporters the house appeared to be a total loss. Walls were split, the foundation cracked and floors had heaved, he said, and his preliminary estimate was that the house would have to be rebuilt.

BOMB - DAMAGED Drapeau home is surveyed (above) by Montreal mayor. His home, in city's east end, was rocked by bomb at about 5:15 a.m. Mayor Drapeau was at his newly - opened restaurant when the blast occurred and his wife and son, asleep in the house, were not injured. Neighbors (below) gathered to view the damage. (CP Wirephoto.)

Brandt Makes Bid To Lead Germany

Mark Freed Tuesday

BONN (CP) — The outgoing coalition government of Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger today announced it will turn its currency free on the markets Tuesday to find a supply-and-demand price level.

The move came after a new wave of speculative demand hit foreign exchange markets this morning and forced a hasty closing of exchanges, which opened briefly after a Thursday-Friday pre-election shutdown.

The unprecedented move to allow a free market price would at least temporarily have an effect similar to upward revaluation of the mark, since strong demand for the West German currency recently forced the central bank to sell marks to keep down the price.

But a government spokesman declined to comment when asked whether the move was a revaluation.

Formally, the announcement said the West German government has told the central bank to stop intervening in the market for the time being and let a free market establish the price.

The mechanism by which nations keep the level of the currencies fixed within narrow limits is the action of their central banks, which move in to either buy or sell enough of the currency to keep the price between fixed floor and ceiling prices.

SEE THREE CHOICES

Central bank sources said the move to turn the mark loose on the exchange markets might be followed by any of three alternatives:

—Formal revaluation to a new fixed parity.

—A "crawling peg" system in which minor adjustments of the parity value would take place at regular intervals.

—A return to the old exchange rate, accompanied by other economic moves to stop inflation, dampen an economic boom and reduce the balance-of-payments surplus.

In Washington, Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer of the International Monetary Fund said the West Germans had promised to resume maintaining the mark's value as soon as possible.

He said the German decision was taken to "avoid possible pressures on the international monetary system."

The decision to let the mark float free was made at a special post-election session of the Christian Democrat-Social Democrat coalition government.

The two parties face a parting of the ways some time in the next three weeks because of big gains by the Social Democrats in Sunday's national election.

Many observers expect the Social Democrats to head a new coalition with the free Democrats, a small liberal group which holds the balance of power.

SPECULATION SOARS

The prospect of a Social Democrat-led government produced the new wave of speculative demand for the mark when exchanges opened briefly this morning.

Speculators are betting on a quick profit from their marks if the currency is revalued upward.

West Germany has been subject for several years to pressure to increase the international exchange value of its currency in order to dampen an economic boom and keep West German exports from throwing international book-keeping further out of balance.

'Neo-Nazis' Strike Out

Nearly 1,500,000 West Germans voted Sunday for the NPD, but the party failed to get the 5 per cent of the poll necessary to qualify for representation in the Bundestag (lower house).

Party leader Adolf von Thadden suffered a resounding personal defeat in Bonn, where he polled only 3.5 per cent of the vote.

New Coalition Eyed in Bonn

BONN (CP)—West Germany's Social Democratic party said today it plans to form a governing coalition with the Liberal Free Democratic party, a move that would make Foreign Minister Willy Brandt the country's next chancellor.

The Social Democrats issued a statement saying Brandt had decided to ask the Free Democrats to form a coalition.

20-Year Rule May End

After Sunday's general election, the two parties have a 12-man majority in the next Bundestag (lower house).

A coalition between the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats would end the 20-year Christian Democratic domination of West German politics that began when the federal republic was formed in 1949.

There was no word immediately from the Free Democrats.

Theoretically they could still form a coalition with the Christian Democrats, but leaders of the Free Democrats indicated before the election they would prefer sharing a coalition with the Social Democrats.

The statement by Brandt's party this morning said federal President Gustav Heinemann had been informed that the Social Democrats plan to try forming a government with the Free Democrats.

Heinemann, himself a Social Democrat elected president in March, is the person who will officially submit the name of the next chancellor to the Bundestag for approval.

British Pick Brandt

In Britain, newspapers were betting today that Brandt would succeed Kiesinger as a result of the elections.

The Sun headlined its election story, "Brandt Poised to Snatch Victory." The Daily Mail's banner said "Midnight Poll Drama: Brandt to Make Bid for Power." The Daily Express proclaimed "Brandt Bounces Back."

The old government will resign Oct. 20.

Brandt's Social Democrats were the only party to gain in Sunday's elections, the most dramatic since the federal republic was formed 20 years ago.

If Brandt is successful, it would be the first German government in 39 years to be headed by Social Democrats as the major partner of the coalition.

The Social Democratic party won 42.7 per cent of the vote—a gain of 3.4-per-cent since the 1965 election. The Christian Democrats won 46.1 per cent—a loss of 1.5 per cent.

Both parties wooed Walter Scheel's small Free Democratic party which captured 5.8 per cent of the vote, compared with 9.5 per cent in the last election. The Free Democrats now have 30 seats in the 496-seat Bundestag.

If Scheel agrees to form a coalition with Brandt, the two parties could outvote the Christian Democrats 254 to 242 in the Bundestag.

Kiesinger declared himself satisfied with the outcome, but declined comment on coalition possibilities.

The Social Democrats bounced back from a series of early computer forecasts predicting a Christian Democrat victory to finish with 22 more seats than in the old Bundestag. The Christian Democrats dropped three seats and the Free Democrats lost 19.

VICTORIANS HEMMED IN?

Starting to feel a little hemmed in?

It's getting crowded down here at the bottom of Vancouver Island.

Not so bad west-end Vancouver's high-rise jungle where people live 60 to the acre — in Victoria, the population density is only 12 per acre, in Oak Bay seven.

A planner says 30,000 acres are available for development in the capital region.

If only high-rises are built, only 1,000 of these acres will be needed to soak up population growth by 1981.

If, however, the whole region develops as Gordon Head is developing, 10,000 acres will be needed by 1981.

Or if it is cut into one and 1½-acre lots, all 30,000 acres will be gone before 1981.

1981 is only 11 years, three months away.

UN 'Sideshow' Danger Scored

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp warned today that the 126-member United Nations is in danger of drowning in a "sea of words". He added that if this and other institutional problems are not solved the UN will become a "sideshow on the international scene, its activities brushed aside as irrelevant."

In a policy speech before the General Assembly, Sharp said the institutional problems are compounded by the fact that there is something like a tacit conspiracy by all members to pretend the problems do not exist.

Sharp called on all UN members to "lift our eyes from the narrow concerns of transient political advantage and national self-interest to a broader horizon that encompasses the whole family of man."

He said that if the 126 members do that they will fulfil the major UN tasks of keeping the peace and improving conditions of life on earth."

Sharp, whose speech ended a round of consultations with foreign ministers of more than 15 countries, made no mention of China and only passing reference to Biafra.

He called on the United States and the Soviet Union to start bilateral talks on the reduction of strategic nuclear weapons immediately, saying that these talks could prove the turning point of history.

And he, in effect, called on some powers to agree to limit their sovereignty to permit consultations on establishment of peacekeeping forces in areas of crisis to progress.

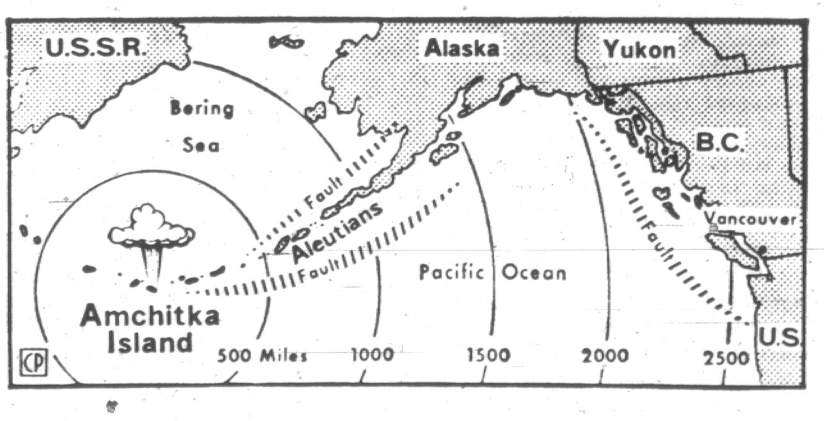

Green Beret Murder Charges Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army has suddenly dropped the murder charges against eight U.S. Special Forces men (Green Berets) accused of killing a supposed double intelligence agent in South Vietnam.

CHINA BOMB TESTED IN AIR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George D. Aiken (Rep. Vt.), said today China has detonated a three-megaton nuclear device in the atmosphere.

Aiken mentioned the blast in an off-hand manner as he presided at a hearing of the Senate foreign relations committee which is looking into criticsm of a proposed United States nuclear test in the Alueian Islands.

Nuclear Test Protests Echo Around Pacific

Times News Services

Thursday is M-day for Amichitka Island in the Aleutians and a growing wave of fear and indignation is rolling into Washington from Pacific rim areas.

At 3 p.m. PDT Thursday the United States Atomic Energy Commission has scheduled an underground atomic weapons-testing explosion called Milrow.

The device will have a power of about one million tons of TNT.

Because the island is in one of the most earthquake-prone areas in the world, Hawaiians, Alaskans, Japanese and Canadians fear the blast may trigger an earthquake and possibly a tidal wave.

Residents of Port Alberni and the Cowichan Valley have sent telegrams to President Nixon protesting the atomic test.

A group of Hawaiian legislators in Anchorage for an ALC briefing, have requested a 30-day postponement of the test, pending further study.

Official protests have been sent by the governments of Canada and Japan.

NO GUARANTEE

AEC seismologists insist the danger of a quake and tidal wave are minimal but they cannot guarantee anything.

Sunday Japanese seismologists said the test does not appear to involve a nuclear device big enough to set off a tidal wave.

But residents of Port Alberni, remembering the 1964 series of tidal waves set off by the Alaska earthquake, are not reassured.

Acting mayor George McKnight has sent a personal letter to President Nixon calling for "a halt to this madness."

"I appeal to you on behalf of all who live on the Pacific Ocean rim, be they Canadians, Americans, Japanese, Russians or any others, in their millions, to put a stop to this plan," he said.

In Duncan The Cowichan Valley Unitarian Fellowship has wired a plea to Nixon to stop all nuclear testing.

"We are not answerable for what Mr. Nixon does but we

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1969—PAGE 13

DODSWORTH
. . . streamline meetings

ELFORD
. . . 'controlled development'

Two veteran Oak Bay aldermen announced this morning that they would be seeking the mayor's chair in the Dec. 6 civic election.

Ald. Walter Dodsworth, completing his eighth year on council, and Ald. Frances Elford, completing her sixth year, will both be starters in the race.

A third alderman, Douglas Watts, has said he is "seriously considering" tossing his hat into the ring. Watts was unavailable for comment this morning following the Dosworth-Elford announcement.

THREE QUITTING

Mayor Fred Hawes confirmed this morning he definitely will not be seeking re-election.

He is one of three Greater Victoria mayors leaving office this year. The other two are Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, and Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria.

Two aldermen, Clyde Savage and Robert Baird, will square off for the Victoria seat. There are, at present, no bidders in sight in Esquimalt.

While neither Dodsworth nor Mrs. Elford forecast any great changes in administration if elected, Dodsworth did promise a streamlining of Oak Bay council meetings.

EXPERIENCE ESSENTIAL

"In the past I think we have wasted too much time counting how many dogs have been impounded and what we are going to do with cats in the pound," Dodsworth said.

Dodsworth added that it was essential that Oak Bay voters elected a mayor from council ranks.

"With so much going on regionally in the field of hospitals and sewers it is absolutely essential that Oak Bay's next mayor has a background knowledge of those proposals."

During his eight years on council Dodsworth has served on all major committees and on the Capital Region Planning Board.

If elected, one of his main targets during his two years in office will be to bring Oak Bay closer to its own recreational facilities.

Dodsworth stressed he wasn't promising overnight miracles in the recreation field.

Mrs. Elford said she would continue to push for "controlled development in the municipality if elected."

"I feel strongly that the 1969 council worked well along these lines," she said. "We let it be known that we wanted development in the municipality but that we also intended to control that development."

Mrs. Elford also promised to work for better recreational facilities.

NEED MONEY

"I would like to see us move in this direction as quickly as possible," she said. "But I don't want to see us go to the people for support until we know we have the money available.

"But I think the major endeavor in the 1970s will lie in the field of intermunicipal co-operation," she added. "It would be my intention to work closely with other municipalities and at the regional level to bring about better hospital facilities and to strengthen our pollution control programs."

Dodsworth was born in 1907, Mrs. Elford in 1914.

Gati's Programming Makes First Symphony Easily Enjoyable

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Making what was probably a wise decision, Laszlo Gati emphasized the charming, the vivacious, the effortlessly enjoyable, in programming Victoria Symphony Orchestra's opening pair of concerts.

Gati, the orchestra and guest artist, Czechoslovakian pianist Eva Bernathova, bowed in the 29th season at the Royal Theatre, Sunday, for a near-capacity audience.

That the symphony for 1970 is to have a new and better sound is quite evident already, despite the short time between the long summer hiatus and this first concert.

IMPROVED BALANCE

Much can be expected of the orchestra over the next few weeks. But already, with the addition of a number of new and proficient players, a thicker, silkier string tone has improved the balance of the ensemble.

This was especially notable in Delius' lovely impressionistic intermezzo, The Walk to the Paradise Garden which followed the brass-rampant Handel Royal Fireworks Suite.

Tender and evanescent, with its moments of rapture rising in finely balanced crescendoes, this was a clear example of Gati's instinct for the expression of tonal poetry.

FINE ATTACK

Again, strings are much to the fore in Mendelssohn's A Major (Italian) Symphony and after a fine attack this section settled down to a disciplined, cleanly articulated participation, contributing much to the particularly lovely second movement.

There is a reed entry, pianissimo, in the fourth movement and this was exceptionally well handled. A buoyant rhythm permeated the entire performance and gave it a sense of warmth and light.

Beethoven at his most Mozartean in his second Piano Concerto, was the vehicle for soloist Bernathova.

In perfect accord, Gati and Bernathova handled this music with admirable restraint, resisting any temptation to force it into a bigger mold than its nature demanded.

INTUITION

One can only guess, in this instance, at the power that lies beneath her exquisitely controlled performance. But that it is there cannot be doubted for it suplies the strength that makes such control possible.

Sensitivity and impeccable taste invest every aspect of her artistry — the purity of touch that turns passage work to festoons of crystal droplets, the warmth and sweetness with which she manipulates a phrase.

SYMPATHETIC

The tossing of phrases backward and forward between soloist and orchestra was effective, the orchestra under Gati's sympathetic touch, matching ritard and diminuendo skillfully.

Bernathova appears in the international artists recital series on Wednesday at McPherson Playhouse and it will be extremely interesting to hear this mature and finely endowed pianist performing completely contrasted syles of music.

The symphony program will be repeated tonight at the Royal Theatre at 8:30.

Appeal Gives Everyone a Chance To Carry Burden of Citizenship

"We can make it," he shouts.

He was riding high above 160 people at the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal kickoff this morning. The astronaut on the poster is the symbol of the appeal, the pie-moon its objective of $694,000.

The red slice represents the $112,000 pledged before the campaign officially began. By the time he completes one orbit, the objective will have been met, and the whole moon will be red.

Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen officially declared Sept. 29 to Nov. 10 United Appeal month at the breakfast and, later in the morning, town cryer, ringing a bell, made the proclamation through downtown Victoria.

'COMPASSIONATE SOCIETY'

Stephen told the breakfasters "our young people accuse us of not caring about what's going on around us. This appeal gives us a chance to show that we are a compassionate society . . . to show that the people of Victoria know how to shoulder the burden of citizenship."

Stephen said the people who have taken the job of carrying out the campaign had accepted "an onerous and most difficult but rewarding job that one can do in the community."

One reward was promised by campaign chairman Peter Darling this morning. He had been asked if he would supply some "bubbly refreshment" if the campaign objective was met.

He agreed, wished the workers success, and said, "I hope I can break out the bubbly when it's over."

PLEASED BY RESULTS

Darling said he is pleased by the results of the campaign in the armed forces. He was afraid with announced federal defence cuts, servicement would become tight-fisted with their money.

But not so, he says. "They've said 'damn the topredoes and full speed ahead."

So far, the services have been successful on 70 per cent of their canvass, "up considerably from last year," Darling said.

He urged business canvassers to get their rounds done early. And he hoped people wouldn't procrastinate about their donation. "You can't expect a volunteer to come again and again for a single gift and still retain his enthusiasm."

HOUSE APPEAL

He wants the business campaign finished before Oct. 6, when the house to house appeal begins. About 10 per cent of the total is expected to come from the residential canvas, he said.

L. G. Glassford, president of the community chest, said he hopes people will accept canvassers at their homes as friends and neighbors.

As the people started into their breakfast of sausages and scrambled eggs at 8, a variety of entertainers, including the Victoria Silver Threads Kitchen Bank, woke them up.

REACHED GOAL

As they started into their coffee, Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes started into the list of firms that have already reached their 1969 objective.

He gave scrolls to representatives of Smith Cedar Products; the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, 3831 Cadboro Bay Rd.; Toronto Dominion Bank, 3635 Douglas and McKenzie and Borden branches; McCall Bros. Funeral Directors; Standard Life Assurance; Harbord Insurance; Goodwill Enterprises; Community Chest; Canadian Mental Health Association, Victoria branch; John Howard Society of Vancouver Island; Victorian Order of Nurses, and the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

The first kickoff breakfast was last year when 200 people attended. Everyone pays for his own breakfast.

POOR STATE 5 DEMANDS

Federal health minister John Munro and five provincial health and welfare ministers will discuss poverty with some of Victoria's poor in the YM-YWCA Wednesday.

Ministers, deputies and advisors from Ottawa, the provinces, the Yukon and Northwest Territories will be in Victoria from Wednesday to Friday for a federal-provincial conference on health and welfare matters.

The Wednesday meeting, which starts at 8 p.m. and is open to the public, will see presentation of five recommendations by the Low Income Co-operative of Greater Victoria:

- Establishment of an independent home economics body to set living allowances for families by region;
- Dispensing of cheques to be made a clerical function divorced from social workers;
- Make client abuse by social workers a cause for immediate dismissal;
- Establishment of an independent body to investigate claims of abuse;
- And provision of sufficient social workers and resources to ensure employment opportunity for welfare clients.

Walter Olszewski, president of the low income group, said 50 per cent of contacts between social workers and clients result in abuse of clients.

Olszewski and three other low income representatives travelled to Ottawa in July to meet with Munro.

Only 'Myopic' Don't See Value of Tourist Dollar

By AB KENT

Lane, the publisher of Sunset Magazine and recently chosen as the first non-Canadian to be Vancouver Tourist and Convention Bureau Man of the Year, was giving the keynote address to some 200 delegates and guests at the Empress Hotel.

His message—The Day the Tourists Stopped Coming—highlighted the conference theme: Tourism, Transportation and Trade—Everybody's Business.

HARD FACTS

Lane used a framework of fiction to weave what he called "some very hard facts" about tourist spending in everyday economy.

Dan Bevans, Eddie Carson, Blanshard Gardens and Bill Blane to play roles in the community of Seattville, where Eddie and His Pals are trying to organize the Lake Fair as a major attraction.

Their problems stem from the unwillingness of business and professional men to recognize that tourist money trickles through the whole community, Lane said.

'CUT ITS ORDER'

On the day tourists stopqed, the hotel cut its grocery order, the grocer dropped plans to increase his insurance, the insurance man abandoned the idea of winning a trip to Hawaii, his wife cancelled her order for a new dress, the innkeeper broke off negotiations with architect and contractors for an addition to the hotel . . . repercussions all down the line.

Attractions are often taken for granted by residents, he noted, but their vital tourist role cannot be underestimated.

Today, and bound to grow quickly, the tourist industry expects North Americans to have more holidays as well as more discretionary income, more interests because of more education, and certainly more interest in travel, Lane said.

Pharmacists Drop Welfare Surcharge

Welfare recipients will no longer have to pay a dollar for every prescription filled, beginning Wedneday.

The British Columbia Professional Pharmacists' Society has agreed to suspend the dollar surcharge to welfare recipients which was put into effect April 15.

The dollar surcharge was added by druggists because they claimed they were not receiving enough compensation from the province for welfare prescriptions.

"We were losing an average of $1.14 every time we filled one of those prescriptions," said BCPPS executive co-ordinator Peter Bell.

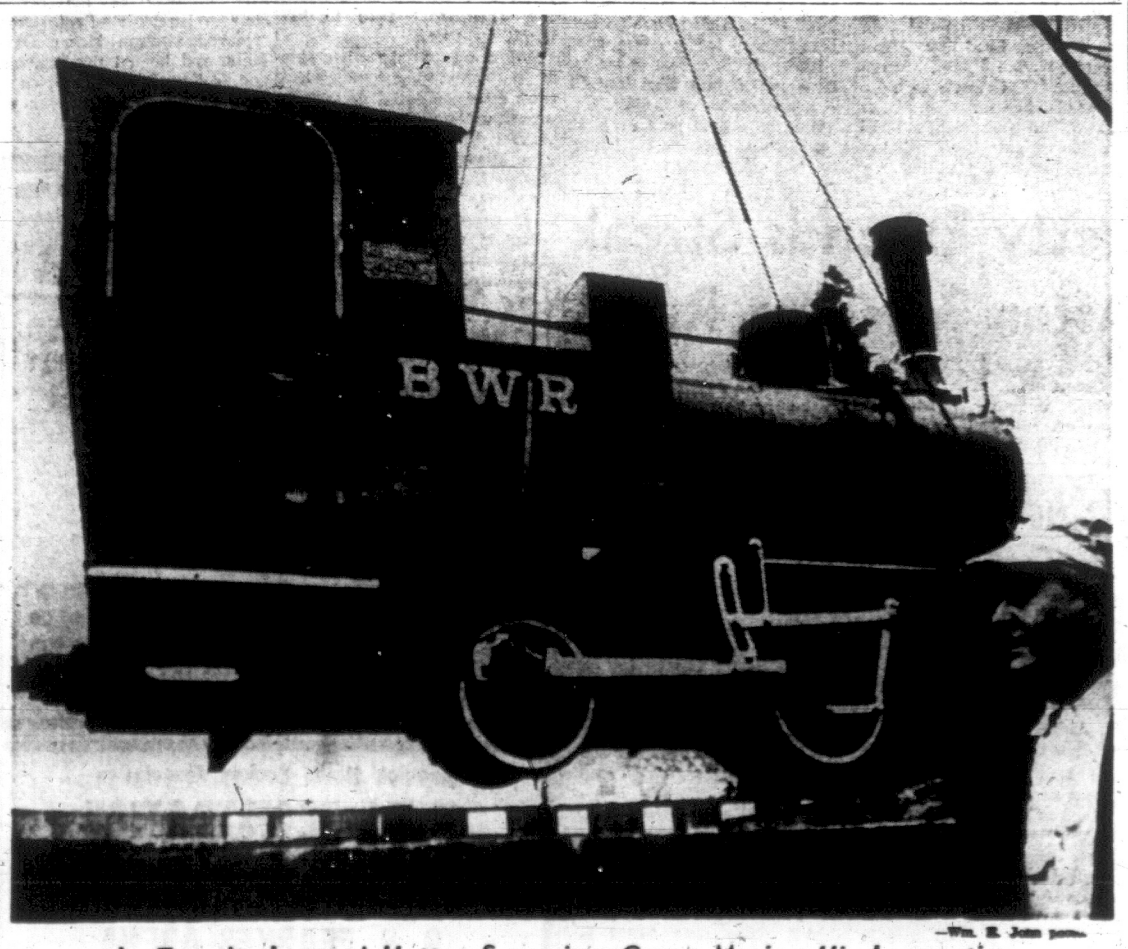

"We added the dollar charge because we weren't making any headway with the government."

Bell said the druggists had an agreement with the province since 1954 to supply drugs to welfare recipients but it had deteriorated with inflation.

"When the government simply refused to discuss a new agreement the dollar surcharge was the only alternative."

On Sept. 15, negotiations with Dan Campbell's social welfare department were re-opened.

In Transit: Leonard Hutton Supervises Crane Moving His Locomotive

Hard to Kick Chugging Habit

Leonard Hutton grew up in Prince Albert, Sask., and his biggest thrill as a child was watching steam engines—thundering, chuffing, or just standing still.

He became so enamoured with the "black statement of pistons" made by those smokey trains, whether the powerful manifestoes of a screaming express or a chugging freight, that he made a daily habit of viewing the glistening black hardware.

It got to be hard habit to kick. Maybe it influenced him into realizing the dream of many youngsters: He became a Canadian National Railways engineer.

"There wasn't hardly a day in my life I didn't look at steam engines, I guess," says the 66-year-old Hutton.

When he came to the Victoria area over 26 years ago, steam-driven engines were already on the decline. It looked like he was going to have to kick his habit.

He couldn't. Instead he bought a miniature locomotive —small enough to store at home and tinker with, still driven by steam and powerful enough to pull 300 people.

"Oh, I could never put a price on it," he saiys, "it's the only one of its kind in Canada though, and a similar one resold in the United States recently ofr $18,000."

He was busy todaly moving the 1936 German-built engine from his son's home on Pearl to his own Townley Street home.

Hutton is getting on, and he says there's nothing he'd like better than to donate his engine to the city for use in a park.

"It's all tested and ready to go. It would be a great tourist attraction. It's not a toy like some of them, this one will easily pull 300 people.

"Most people now make up gasoline engines to look like steam trains, but this one is real, with a real boiler."

City officials, however, don't seem too interested in acquiring the two-foot gauge locomotive, he says in dismay.

It's not that he objects to keeping the engine at home where he can eye the sleek symmetry of the machine, it's just that he'd like to share his passion with someone else.

"A train shouldn't sit and be looked at," he says, "it should be working."

Corsicans Demanding Better French Deal

By CY FOX

PARIS (CP) — The highly centralized French government, pestered in recent years by disgruntled Brittany for a better regional deal, now faces a flare-up of similar discontent on the Mediterranean island of Corsica.

Birthplace of Napoleon Bonaparte and one of the 99 "departements" making up France as a whole, Corsica suffers from many of the shortcomings chronic with west-coast Brittany—notably a lack of economic development which forces young natives to make their future elsewhere.

Some island protesters voice the demand for greater regional autonomy, also made familiar by the Bretons.

Instead of local problems being administered by the central government through a Paris-appointed prefect, they want a local legislature and executive to do the job.

Already, violence has erupted following expressions of Corsican exasperation over road conditions on the island.

The prefect, together with the arm of centralized law and order known as the Gardes Mobiles, came in for extra bursts of angry criticism as a result.

POMPIDOU VISITS

The trouble developed despite the apparently heartening effects of an earlier visit to the Corsican capital of Ajaccio by French President Georges Pompidou on this year's 200th anniversary of Napoleon's birth.

Residents took some statements by Pompidou to mean that Paris would give serious study to their latest round of economic grievances.

Unrest and upheavals are an integral part of Corsica's bitter heritage as a one-time battleground for Mediterranean powers.

Still boasting a dialect and culture that reflect its former connection with Italy, the island was first ceded to France in 1768 by its former controller, the old Italian republic of Genoa.

In 1793, Paoli enjoyed better fortune and managed to spearhead a breakaway by the island from revolutionary France at a time when a similar secession was under way in Brittany.

Two years later, however, with Napoleon the rising star of French politics, Paris again re-established its hold on Corsica.

As master of France, Bonaparte subsequently did his best to promote the island's material progress but his orders in this respect often went unobeyed by central-government officials on the spot.

Down the decades since then, Corsica has remained economically static and plagued by periodic outbursts of banditry.

The complaint that it is mired in the middle ages is thus a perennial one.

But the link with France has proved sufficiently strong to inspire powerful island backing for the French cause in two world wars.

Nevertheless, by 1959 economic grievances had reached the point of prompting establishment of the first latter-day group determined to press demands for island improvement.

In 1967, an organization called Action Regionaliste Corse—Corsican Regionalist Action—was formed and now has 2,000 members.

BLOCK HIGHWAYS

Adding a modern bite to the protest movement are students. They want, among other things, university facilities on the island, with its population of up to 300,000.

A group bearing the label Corse Libre—Free Corsica—is pressing for area autonomy. Its leader, Etienne Pierotti, was arrested by authorities this year.

To dramatize dissatisfaction with road conditions, Corsicans have been building barriers on highways.

It was across one of these that police pelted a crowd with tear-gas grenades. They were themselves attacked with rocks.

The police concerned were branded "colonial-type troops" by Action Regionaliste, a group which demanded their withdrawal from the island.

Hotel-keepers and owners of small businesses have joined in the outcry over the state of Corsica's roads.

The protesters generally want more efforts to spur industrial growth and steps to cut freight costs on goods brought to the island so that the cost of living as a whole can be reduced.

The latest burst of Corsican discontent happens to follow defeat last spring of Charles de Gaulle's project for vesting greater power in the regions, as opposed to the central government, of France.

The proposals were widely criticized as ineffectual before the countrywide referendum that brought their defeat and the general's resignation from the presidency.

But there seems little doubt that de Gaulle has considerable regard for Corsica.

One expression of it may currently serve to hearten the area's protest groups.

Recalling the island's role in Second World War resistance to the Germans, the general said:

"Corsica has never believed in defeat."

New Counsel Appears In Nassau Crux Trial

NASSAU (CP) — Canada's effort to have lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux extradited from the Bahamas for trial in British Columbia on 21 charges of theft and fraud enters a new phase with new faces today.

A Supreme Court justice will hear Canada's application for a writ of mandamus to force Magistrate John Bailey to rescind two rulings he has made at the Crux extradition hearing.

Bahamas Senator Kenval Isaacs will make his first appearance as counsel for Canada and B.C. aided by Nassau lawyer Patrick Toothe who presented the Canadian case in proceedings before Baily prior to lengthy adjournment that began Oct.

Crux, former president of the Commonweatlh Trust Co., has been free on bail since shortly after his arrest here June 3. He has been defending himself at the extradition hearing, because of lack of funds to hire counsel.

Canada's Supreme Court application seeks the overturning of a ruling by the magistrate that the only evidence he will admit against Crux is that contained in depositions from a Vancouver court. The magistrate has said this is the only evidence he can be certain is admissible in Canadian courts as well as his own, a requirement of the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1967, under which extradition is sought.

Trudeau 'Man for the Time'

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says his kind of person will no longer be politically necessary in five or 10 years when such problems as national unity are solved in Canada.

He was asked during one of many stops during a two-day, meet-the-people tour of Ontario how he got to be prime minister, and replied he was "lucky enough to be around and to appear to have the answers to some of the questions bothering the people in the last few years.

"It's probable—I hope it's certain—that in five or 10 years there won't be the problems Canada has now. The problems of national unity will have been solved and therefore the kind of person I am with the kind of solution I had will no longer be necessary."

The pattern has been the same in each community Trudeau has visited—mainstreeting, then a speech, then a question-and-answer session. Some of the statements he has made:

● Asked what was the greatest threat to mankind, he said he had been told by an expert that vessels carrying DDT across oceans pose a great physical threat. A collision that loosed DDT in the oceans would destroy plankton, starting a process that would destroy atmospheric oxygen and kill off the population.

● Apart from this "hypothetical threat," he said the greatest threat to mankind arises from man's inability to understand each other in pursuit of the common good.

● Perhaps the French language in Quebec could be better preserved in the short run if Quebec was a separate nation. But in the long run, no community can develop by withdrawing from the larger society.

● Young people seeking change should be "regarded as the twinge of our conscience." As for the Liberal party, it should welcome dissenters, particularly youthful ones, giving them a vehicle to express their desires and dreams . . ." the important thing is that they not stay outside the organized party structure."

● Don't expect the government to do everything, such as in housing. They can only move in the direction of the people's dreams and ideals—only dictatorships can move their people in unwanted directions.

● The next session of Parliament will study lowering the voting age in federal elections to 18 from 21. Trudeau said the government is sympathetic to the idea.

● Canada still is trying to decide what form of sovereignty, if any, will be extended over the waters between Canadian Arctic islands. If a 12-mile limit was imposed, some straits would be closed off and become Canadian territorial waters.

His discourse on his job was prompted by a floor request in Geraldton, Ont., for a recipe on how to win the job.

Trudeau said that, when the teenagers currently in school are in university or business and become active in politics, "it is completely conceivable that this country will need a very different kind of prime minister than I am."

Each period of a country's history requires a particular kind of answer, he said.

"And I happened to run for this job at a time when there was a problem between French and English Canada and when there was a problem of a generation gap which was being developed.

Strachan, Calder Backing NDP-Union Divorce Plans

New Democratic Party MLAs Robert Strachan and Frank Calder have spoken out against the provincial party's official ties with the trade union movement.

Strachan, who stepped down as party leader earlier this year, said the NDP "should stay away from a formal alliance with anyone."

Calder, MLA for Atlin, said Sunday the party is a mouthpiece for labor and should sever its ties with the trade union movement.

The comments followed NDP House Leader Dave Barrett's statement Friday that he will support a move to break ties between the party and unions.

DECLINED STANDS

Provincial Deputy Leader Alex Macdonald and caucus chairman Bob Williams both said today the reassessment being carried out by the party in the wake of its Aug. 27 election defeat should be an internal party affair and declined to take a public stand on the question of union affiliation.

Strachan said that the only formal affiliation between the NDP and the trade union movement was through official connections with a few unions.

"This is an independent party and it should stay that way," he said.

Calder said the party would be the government today if it had remained the CCF party without the NDP's formal union connections.

"I'm getting fed up with the general public blaming the NDP for any strikes in this province," said Calder, who was a strong supporter of NDP leader Tom Berger in his union-backed bid for the party leadership last April.

Berger has since given notice he will resign the job at the next party convention in 1970. He lost his Vancouver-Burrard seat in the election.

Calder said the major issue at the national NDP convention later this month in Winnipeg should be the severing of union ties.

REPORT TO COME

Williams said the reassessment of union ties being carried out by the provincial party cannot be regarded as a debate on any left wing-right wing ideological basis.

He said the real debate is about radicalism and that it can't be categorized on that spectrum.

Barrett, elected house leader 10 days ago, has said that Premier Bennett won the election as "the only real radical" in the campaign.

A committee studying the union question is expected to have a report ready for party convention next summer. It is representative of the entire party, rather than simply of the elected MLAs in the caucus, spokesmen say.

Dock Strike Forced Visit

The Canadian Pacific's Princess Patricia was forced to make an emergency call at Victoria Sunday because of the longshoremen's strike.

Due to dock at Vancouver, she was diverted to Victoria and landed 350 passengers who had completed a round trip to Alaska.

Local wholesalers were called into action and victualled the cruise ship with eggs, fresh vegetables and other supplies.

A special truck, laden with baggage for passengers from the mainland and the United States, was sent from Vancouver and met the ship when she docked at 7 a.m.

Guard Held As Escapers Hunted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—An intensive search was under way today in bush land north of Quesnel for two armed men who broke out from a provincial jail Sunday. A jail guard was in custody.

The men were among three who fled from the Prince George jail after breaking into the jail's gun room and stealing arms.

Selwyn Roxborough Smith, B.C.'s director of corrections, said one of the men and a jail guard, first believed to have been taken as a hostage, were recaptured at Quesnel.

Mr. Roxborough Smith said "The officer appeared to have been involved himself in the breakout, the theft of arms and the theft of vehicles at gunpoint."

The director said the officer had geen on staff for six months and was a "temporary" officer.

He said the four men made the getaway by stealing at gunpoint two cars.

The prisoners were identified as Gerald Hebert, 20, serving 18 months for breaking and entering; Gregory Ashley, 18, serving eight months for assault and Arnold Ladouceur, 22, serving 12 months definite and 12 months indeterminate for breaking and entering.

Mills Unaffected By Dock Strike

Two Vancouver Island pulp and newsprint mills expect little difficulty from the longshoremen's strike for the next three to four weeks.

Spokesmen for B.C. Forest Products in Crofton and MacMillan Bloedel in Port Alberni, said they have sufficient storage space to allow full production to continue.

No report was available from the MacMillan Bloedel pulp plant at Harmac, near Nanaimo, or the B.C. Forest Products sawmills and plywood mill in Victoria.

Crofton reported no effects from the longshoremen's strike, now in its fifth day. There was "considerable" storage space and rail shipments were continuing.

Overseas tonnage is being stored and no difficulty was anticipated for at least a month.

Port Alberni also uses truck and rail transport and anticipated no problems for two or three weeks.

In Vancouver, Andy oKtovich, president of the Canadian area of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said Sunday he thinks settlement by the parties themselves is possible.

And Edward Strang, president of the British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association, said all that both sides need is "a little time".

The union has agreed to handle grain exports but employers have made no commitment beyond approval of loading ships already in port.

The strike of 3,200 dockers in British Columbia started after negotiations collapsed on the question of wages and fringe costs.

The union's final package proposal amounted to $1.42 an hour and the employers' $1.22.

Most of the other complicated issues on work rules, work guarantees and container handling had been agreed when the axe fell on the wage issue.

Students Join Protest

Esquimalt Senior Secondary students, following a suggestion by social studies teacher Mrs. Kory Regan, will send a telegram with their names to President Nixon protesting the Aleutian Islands test.

Students from Mrs. Regan's classes are canvassing the staff and students in the school for signatures. Mrs. Regan will underwrite the cost of the telegram when it is sent Tuesday.

The telegram reads:

"Angered Esquimalt High School staff and students deeply disturbed. Demand cancellation of Aleutian tests. Vancouver Islanders remember 1964 earthquake and tidal wave. More research needed while doubts remain."

Kapp Bombs Colts To Tie Pass Mark

JOE KAPP
. . . seven TD tosses

By The Canadian Press

Burly Joe Kapp shredded the Baltimore defence for a record-tying seven touchdown passes Sunday as Minnesota Vikings mashed the defending National Football League defending champion Colts 52-14.

Kapp, a former quarterback for British Columbia Lions and Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League who played amidst boos with Minnesota the last two seasons, joined the elite group of Sid Luckman, Y. A. Tittle and Adrian Burk for throwing the most TD passes in a single game. Burk helped officiate the game as the back judge.

Only George Blanda, when he was with Houston Oilers, has thrown as many as seven scoring passes in a game in the American Footbal League.

In other NFL action, Lo Angeles Rams (2-0) stopped Atlanta Falcons (1-1) 17-7, Green Bay Packers (2-0) held off San Francisco '49ers (0-2) 14-7, Cleveland Browns (2-0) edged Washington Redskins (1-1) 27-23, Dallas Cowboys (2-0) nipped New Orleans Saints (0-2) 21-17, Detroit Lions (1-1) drubbed New York Giants (1-1) 24-0, St. Louis Cardinals (1-1) topped Chicago Bears (0-2) 20-17, and Philadelphia Eagles (1-1) outlasted Pittsburgh Steelers (1-1) 41-27.

The Vikings "took a chapter out of Baltimore's book—striking early and controlling the ball," said Minnesota coach Bud Grant, formerly with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Kapp, who did not play in the Vikings' 24-23 season-opening upset loss to the Giants, hit on his first six passes against the Colts, who took their second loss, and brought Minnesota its first touchdown wth an 18-yarder to Dave Osborn after the first two minutes of play.

His other scoring strikes were of 83 and 41 yards to Gene Washington and of 21, 13, one and 15 yards to four other receivers.

Meanwhile, the Vikings defence harrassed Baltimore quarterbacks Johnny Unitas and Earl Morrall. Unitas completed just two of his 13 passes and ended up eight for 22 for 68 yards with one interception. Morrall was 12 for 20 for 127 yards and had two intercepted.

Kapp said simply: "Our offensive line did a tremendous job."

Los Angeles, now two games ahead of arch-rival Baltimore and in first place in the Coastal Division, built up a 17-0 halftime lead and then held off Atlanta. Larry Smith slammed one yard for the first Rams' touchdown and Roman Gabriel threw a four-yard pass for the other.

LOSES FIRST GAME

Herb Adderley's interception of a John Brodie pass on the Green Bay goal line saved the victory over San Francisco for the Packers, who scored on an 87-yard return of the second-half kickoff by rookie Dave Hampton and a Bart Starr-to-Jim Grabowski swing pass for two yards. The '49ers' score came on an 80-yard bomb from Brodie to Clifton McNeil.

Cleveland handed Vince Lombardi his initial defeat as Washington coach when Bill Nelson passed 15 yards to Gary Collins for a touchdown with 1:19 left. The Redskins had come from a 20-10 deficit to a 23-20 lead by marching 70 yards for one touchdown and getting another on Sonny Jurgensen's 13-yard pass to Bob Long.

Rookie Calvin Hill bulled his way to touchdown runs of 23 and eight yards and Craig Morton threw a 49-yard scoring strike to Les Shy to get Dallas past stubborn New Orleans.

A New York gamble for a first down on fourth down which failed set up a Detroit touchdown, a recovered fumble set up a field goal and Leo Barney's 75-yard punt return brought another touchdown in the Lions' blanking of the Giants.

Amazing Bengals Jolt Kansas City

By The Associated Press

Coach Paul Brown, of the amazing Cincinnati Bengals, won't argue with success, but he does question it.

"I don't know exactly what's doing it—it's a miracle," he said after his Bengals upset Kansas City Chiefs 24-19 Sunday for their third straight victory and the Chiefs' first loss.

In three games this year, all at home, the Bengals have equalled their winning record of last year when they joined the American Football League as an expansion team. They wound up in last place in the Western Division. Today, they're tied with Oakland for first.

As far as the Chiefs are concerned, however, the Bengals are for real.

"They played an outstanding game," said Chiefs' coach Hank Stram. "For us it was a game of missed opportunities."

In other AFL games, San Diego Chargers (1-2) surprised the world champion New York Jets (1-2) 34-27, Buffalo Bills (1-2) routed Denver Broncos (2-1) 41-28, Oakland Raiders (3-0) upended Boston Patriots (0-3) 38-23 and Houston Oilers (2-1) drubbed Miami Dolphins (0-3) 22-10.

The decisive Cincinnati touchdown was set up when Clem Turner recovered Noland Smith's fumble of a Bengal's punt on the Chiefs' 25.

HADL ROCKS JETS

Quarterback John Hadl threw for three of the San Diego's five touchdowns against the slumping Jets.

Jack Kemp tossed three touchdown passes for Buffalo and O. J. Simpson ran for 110 yards in his best performance as a pro. He also caught five passes for 45 yards, including a three-yard touchdown.

Houston came from behind 10-6 in the second half on the strength of Pete Beathard's passing arm and Canadian-born rookie Roy Gerela's foot.

Ruling Gives Soviet Lifter World Crown

WARSAW (AP) — Jan Talts of the Soviet Union was awarded first place in the heavyweight competition of the world weightlifting championships Saturday night after a Russian team protest against an apparent victory by Bob Bednarski of the United States was honored.

A five-man jury of the International Wightlifting Federation deliberated 1½ hours before deciding that Bednarski had failed to meet a time limit for a lift during the final jerk event.

The decision gave Talts the gold medal with a total of 1,204.5 pounds in the three events—press, snatch and jerk—and placed Bednarski second.

Rutgers Repeats Win Of 100 Seasons Ago

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—College football celebrated its 100th birthday Saturday with a game between Princeton and Rutgers, the two teams that played the first match. As it did a century ago, Rutgers won.

The pageantry and ceremonies at the Rutgers campus were interrupted when, just before kickoff, 200 Negroes marched across the field, hands raised in Black Power salutes, to protest what they called a "Racist Institution."

Most of the spectators, however, concentrated on the game in which Rutgers — which has lost most of the annual contests between the two schools — scored an upset victory, 29-0. Enthusiastic fans tore down the goalposts while there were still two minutes left to go in the game.

In the original game Rutgers won, 6-4.

Among ceremonies was an exhibition game in the style of a hundred years ago between Princeton's Ivy club and Rutgers' Delta Phi fraternity. With a round football, as was used in that first intercollegiate game on Nov. 6, 1869, the game appeared more like soccer or rugby than modern-day football.

In the centennial game, Rutgers used the modern forward pass in routing Princeton. Princeton used the new professional-style T-formation instead of its traditional single wing.

Hawkes Takes Vets' Honors

SEATTLE — Victoria's Doug Hawkes rallied strongly to defeat Dave Faires of Seattle, 9-15, 12-15, 15-9, 15-4, 15-4, and capture the "B" veterans' singles Sunday in the Seattle College Club's invitational squash tournament.

Victoria's only other entrant, Guy Screetch, bowed out in the "C" quarter-finals.

Vancouver's George Morfitt defeated Brookes Ragan of Portland 16-14 in the fifth set to win the coveted "A" singles. Other class winners were Tom Wrightson of Portland ("B") and Peter Mercer of Vancouver ("C").

German Girls Snap Records

Miss Westermann, 21, tossed the discus 209 feet, 10 inches in the opening day of the two-day meet between West Germany and Britain. She eclipsed her own mark of 205-8½ set June 18 in East Berlin.

Miss Rosendahl racked up 5155 points in the pentathlon to better the record of 5093 points set by Liese Prokop of Austria for the five events. The new record was set at a meet involving only German competitors at Leverkusen.

KCs Trim Rams

Clarke's Kicking Hurts Norsemen

Dave Clarke booted 14 points to pace Castaways in a 23-3 romp over Uvic Norsemen during a Victoria Rugby Union second-division match Sunday on the university pitch.

Clarke kicked four penalty goals in the first half to give Castaways a 12-0 lead and added a convert to Danny Harlow's try in the second half.

Other Castaway trys were scored by Tom Brown and Paul Bayliss. Reg Hoole answered with Uvic's lone try in the final half.

In first-division action on Saturday, Uvic Vikings blasted James Bay Athletic Association 35-0 after taking a 22-0 half-time lead at Macdonald Park while Oak Bay Wanderers clobbered Cowichan 24-6 at Windsor Park.

Velox (Latin for "swift") made its debut in second-division struggles Saturday by downing JBAA 14-3 behind the kicking power of John Howe, who garnered two penalty goals and a convert.

Uvic Saxons crushed Oak Bay Wanderers 20-6 in the other divisional match. Mark Hoffman topped the scoring list for Saxons with a penalty goal and convert.

Sweeting Sizzles In Dragster Duel

Victoria's Bert Sweeting came on strong in the final run to down National Hot Rod Association record-holder Gary Beck of Seattle in a best-of-three double "B" class gas dragster match Sunday at Van Isle Dragways.

Due to present NHRA sanction limitations, the cars could only compete on a one-eighth mile scale, but still managed to turn in elapsed times in the eight-second bracket with speeds nearing 180 m.p.h.

Sweeting drove the "Shepherd and Sweeting" machine to victory in the first round and Beck captured the second. In the final run, Sweeting finished a full car length ahead before approximately 2,000 spectators.

Frank Jones of Victoria won top stock eliminator honors in his 1968 Barracuda which timed in a best 12.87 second ET at 107.78 m.p.h. over the quarter-mile.

Roy White of Gold River captured top street eliminator honors in a 1967 Shelby Mustang with a 12.51 ET at 113.20 m.p.h. Buck Kinney of Haney listed a top 11.78 ET at 118.42 m.p.h. in a '68 Camaro for super-stock laurels.

Canadians Claim Three Gold Medals

TOKYO (CP) — Jay Dahlgren, Debbie Brill and George Puce brought home gold medals for Canada in the first Pacific Conference Games that ended Sunday night. Over-all, the 35-member Canadian team finished third with 14 medals.

The second Games will be held in 1973 in Toronto.

Debbie, 16-year-old Canadian champion from Langley, B.C., showed off her reverse "Brill bend," and cleared five feet 7½ inches to win the women's high jump.

AUSSIES WIN

Australia walked off with the two-day Games championship, winning 15 of the 32 gold medals awarded. The United States was second with 11 gold. New Zealand was fourth with two gold and Japan, the host country, last with one gold—in the pole vault.

Phil May of Australia was the only individual to win two gold medals—in the triple and long jumps.

In addition to the three gold, the Canadian team won three silver and eight bronze medals.

Canada was second in both 400-metre relay races Sunday, earning silver medals, while Carol Martin, 21-year-old Toronto student took second in the women's discus Saturday night.

Canada's bronze medallists Sunday were Diane Jones, 18, Saskatoon, in the high jump, Steen in the discus and Brian Donnelly, 26, Toronto, in the 400-metre hurdles.

Donnelly also got a silver as a member of the men's 400-metre relay team along with fellow Torontonians Chuck Francis, 20; Craig Blackman, 18, and Tony Powell, 26.

Stephanie Berto, Penny May, 18, Victoria; Irene Piotrowsky, 28, Vancouver, and Joan Hendry, 24, St. Laurent, Que., comprised the second-place women's 400-metre relay team.

AUSSIES BEST

Australia won 30 medals over-all including 10 silver and five bronze. The U.S. total was 26 including seven silver and eight bronze. New Zealand had five silver and five bronze to go with its pair of gold while Japan had seven silver and seven bronze.

Sunday's closing was marked by the disqualification of Australian sprinter Raelene Boyle from a silver medal in the women's 400 metres and American Bob Seagren's defeat in the pole vault.

PROTEST REFUSED

Seagren, the Olympic champion, managed to clear only 16 feet 2 inches. Japan's Kyoichiro Inouye won it.

The disqualification of 18-year-old Miss Boyle for lane crossing produced an official protest from the Australian team which was still under consideration by officials as the Games ended. The protest finally was turned down.

Within minutes of her disqualification, Miss Boyle came back to win the 200 metres.

ASHFORD GETS LEAGUE POST

In making the announcement Saturday at West Springfield, Mass., league president Jack Butterworth said the appointments of Ashford and David Shewchyk are part of a program to upgrade officiating in the AHL.

Each will work with a local official during league games. In the past, local linesmen have been used by the AHL.

Canada Undecided About China Vote in UN

By STEPHEN SCOTT

—Canada will adhere to a one-China policy. If agreement is reached in Stockholm in talks on Canadian-Chinese recognition, Canada will change its vote in the UN to support the entry of the Peking government.

—Canada's vote in the UN this year on the annual Albanian resolution to admit China and expel the Nationalists could be a cliffhanger, with the decision on whether to change from the abstention of recent years made by the cabinet at the last minute.

—Canada has not been asked by the Chinese to vote for the resolution as a price for recognition. But Canadian officials realize that if the Chinese are not assured that Canada will support Peking here there will be no recognition. China has asked for that support, without specifying that it involves the Albanian resolution. Sharp says China would like to become a UN member.

—Progress is being made at the Stockholm talks and Chinese suspicions about Canada, a close friend of the United States, are being overcome. One of the main Canadian tasks has been to convince the Chinese that it is sincere.

OPPOSES INITIATIVE

—While some American spokesmen have told reporters that there could be advantages to the U.S. if a Canadian mission is established in Peking, Sharp has been told that the U.S. opposes the Canadian initiative in switching its recognition from Nationalist to Communist China.

—Italy, which also wishes to recognize Peking, is considerably behind Canadian efforts and no direct talks have started.

—Other countries are watching the Canadian initiative, not necessarily with a view to changing policy this year. But Canadian success in Stockholm may show the way for future changes of these countries, particularly some in Latin America.

—By the same token, the Nationalist Chinese are not concerned that the Canadian initiative will change the situation is the UN in the immediate future. But they are reported to feel that it could help start a long-time erosion of their position.

—There is no chance that China will gain entry into the UN this year.

Sharp said this week that Canada's decision to recognize Peking is its most important international initiative. He said the subject almost invariably came up during his round of talks with foreign ministers.

QUESTION OPEN

He left open the question of whether Canada will continue to vote yes in the UN on whether the Albanian resolution is an important question needing a two-thirds majority for passage. But observers here doubt that Canada would step away from that position except under the most unusual circumstances.

Sharp apparently has gone as far as he is prepared to go publicly in linking the Canadian UN vote with the recognition talks. But observers consider his remarks leave little or no doubt that Canada will change her vote upon agreement in Stockholm.

Presuming there is no agreement in Stockholm before the China resolution comes up in late October or in November, the cabinet will be faced with the decision of how to vote this year. Sharp has said in that case Canada likely will continue to abstain. But observers here say that the possibility that Canada will change if she feels there is substantial progress in Stockholm cannot be ignored.

The Canadian vote, no matter what it is, will have no immediate effect on the China question here. There is little expectation that there will be a radical change from last year when the resolution went down 58 to 44 with 23 abstentions.

There is a remote possibility, observers say, that a large number of countries will change to abstention, thus upsetting the vote. In this case the vote on the important question resolution could be extremely significant.

Accident Claims Former Togo President

PARIS (Reuters) — Former Togo president Nicolas Grunitzky, 56, died in hospital here, hospital authorities said Sunday night.

Grunitzky was flown to Paris in a special aircraft Thursday after he suffered serious head injuries in a road accident in the Ivory Coast the previous day.

Grunitzky was Togo's second president. He lived in the Ivory Coast since he was overthrown by a military coup in January, 1967.

LAWYERS OUSTED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two Vancouver-area lawyers were disbarred here by the British Columbia Law Society for misusing funds.

T. V. McCallum, secretary of the Society, announced that Gerald Vincent Pelton, 81, of Vancouver, one of the city's oldest lawyers, was disbarred on charges of professional misconduct, and conduct unbecoming a member of the society, "arising from the mishandling of clients' trust funds."

Victor John Petricia, 39, of suburban Burnaby, was found guilty of "wrongful conversion of money entrusted to him as a member of the society" and professional misconduct.

Dancers Willing, Supervisor Quits

Nine students at Edward Milne secondary school danced all night and still asked for more but couldn't find a willing supervisor.

The nine were taking part in a marathon dance at the Sooke school to raise funds for the students' council and had finished a 24-hour session Saturday at 10 p.m. when supervising teachers decided they'd had enough.

The dance-in started with 33 couples Friday and Saturday morning still had eight couples shuffling around the floor but by 10 p.m. only one couple and seven single dancers were competing.

Principal Don Kerley said contestants raised about $500 as each dancer performed on a quarter-an-hour pledge. The money is for JNVO, which means involvement, a student organization that sponsors hikes and other out-of-school activities.

The winners in the nine-way tie are Doris Miklenic and Ron Allman, the only surviving couple; Lucky McDonaugh, Wayne Hansen, Lorraine Lockerty, Lynne Kerr, Anita Jarvinen, Woody Underwood and Mike Planes.

An exhausted supervisor said this morning no further marathons were planned in the near future.

Rites Held For North Mayor

Funeral service for John G. McNiven, 69, first mayor of Yellowknife, was held today from St. George's Anglican Church in Ganges.

McNiven, a resident of Ganges since 1967, died Saturday in Lady Minto hospital.

He was born at Comber, Ont., received his Master's degree from the University of Toronto in 1924, and went north in 1939 as manager of several mining companies.

When he arrived in Yellowknife, capital of the Northwest Territories, there were only 700 people living there. In 1946 he became the capital's first mayor and two years later became the first territories resident appointed to the territories legislative council.

In 1951 he became an elected member of the legislative council and served until 1961.

He moved to Edmonton in 1961.

Surviving are son John, G. McNiven, of Calgary, a daughter, Mrs. Eric Reverley, of Toronto, and seven grandchildren.

Burial will be in Edmonton.

Man Killed In Tire Mishap

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Police today released the name of a man killed Sunday at a logging camp on Loughborough Inlet, about 35 miles north of here.

Dead is Randy Saby, 24, of Courtenay.

Police said he was struck on the head by a tire iron as he changed a tire.

Accidents Kill Three In Boat, Car and Bed

Two area adults and an infant died over the weekend in separate accidents.

Mrs. Jeannie Cockburn, 22, of 1331 Pandora, died Saturday after the car in which she was riding was involved in three-car collision at Cook and Johnson. Louie Gene Cardinal, 636 Admirals, has been charged with causing death through criminal negligence.

Tracey Leigh Turner, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Turner, 1603 Cook, was crushed by a chest of drawers in her bedroom Saturday.

Mrs. Cockburn was in a car driven by her husband, Alexander, on Cook about 9:10 a.m. Saturday. It collided with the Cardinal car proceeding east on Johnson. Force of the impact sent the Cockburn car into a third vehicle driven by Robert Armstrong of 3790 Casey Drive.

The woman was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with severe head, chest, back and internal injuries. She died four hours later.

Cardinal was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital and spent the night under guard with a cut head and a sore shoulder.

Alexander Cockburn was treated for slight cuts and bruises to his head and later released from hospital. Armstrong escaped injury.

RCMP at Duncan said Capt. Higgs, a 15-year veteran with the B.C. Pilotage, was found at 7:30 a.m. Saturday aboard his boat and an inquiry is to be held.

The Turner youngster was put to bed at 1 p.m. Saturday and was found unconscious with a chest of drawers across the bed two hours later. The child was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital. Police are investigating.

Men Take Over As Women Ousted

By ANN McFEATTERS

ELLISVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Ladies Day is over in Ellisville.

The men are running things again.

The eight-year matriarchal reign of Ellisville—population 120 or maybe 140—ended in April when the men turned the tables with a vigorous write-in campaign.

Ousted were the female mayor, the female village clerk and three female aldermen.

The end came quickly and quietly when voters endorsed the write-in campaigns of five men.

The winners were still a bit surprised months later, and the village itself is a bit resentful of all the outside publicity.

"They made such a fuss about the women, we thought we'd change it," said the new mayor, Elmer Vorhees.

Nobody admits to anti-feminine bias in the election results.

Vorhees said the real reason the men ran was competition.

"Everybody needs competition," he mused. "After all, they'd been in eight years and —who knows—they may be in again next time. I was kind of surprised when we won."

But Vorhees probably wasn't nearly as surprised as in 1961 when the secret feminine campaign took Ellisville. In April, 1961, the matriarchy was established when the women carried on a whispering write-in campaign to unseat the men. They ran every male from office, all running unopposed for re-election.

Automation Is Putting Us In Prison, Says Indian

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Automation has put more Indians in prison than any other single cause, an Indian inmate of the British Columbia Penitentiary said Sunday.

Known only as Norman to reporters visiting the prison for a rare look at the weekly meeting of the penitentiary's Indian and Metis Educational Club, he said:

"Life was good for the Indian until 1940 or so. We had plenty of drunks and we liked to fight but we didn't have all that white man's crime.

"Before 1940 there were few Indians in jail except for fighting and drinking. Then automation started taking over our non-skilled, seasonal jobs. . . ."

Norman said there are about 600 inmates in the prison, 10 per cent of them Indians, with the percentage even higher in other provincial jails. Yet Indians formed only two per cent of B.C.'s population.

Out of a provincial Indian population of 47,000, there are always 900 in various jails, Norman said.

"Isn't that shocking?" he asked. "We must find a way for our people to understand the value of an education and keeping out of jail. . . ."

'SO WE GET DRUNK'

"Why does the Indian turn to crime? Because there are few jobs for the uneducated. No work to do. So we get drunk and fight and turn to crime," he said.

Norman said 10 members of the educational group now are trying to raise money for a three-volume book to be entitled "Indian: Past, Present and Future."

Carried out in co-operation with the Vancouver Indian Centre, the study will be written by club members "to tell our side of the question."

The group hopes it one day will become recognized as a school text.

Getting out of jail was another of the problems cited by members of the club during the interview.

One Indian said parole difficulties were not based on racial discrimination but on cultural discrimination.

"It's the system. It's a point system with the point favoring the achievements in the white man's world."

VIOLENCE ADVOCATED

Another said parole decisions were being made in Ottawa and advocated violence to get Indian problems solved.

Richard Pugsley, liaison officer for the club and a prison social worker, said a well-known lumber firm in the province has promised to hire released Indian inmates.

"They'll hire you without worrying about your past. It will be based on your will to work. They'll fire you if you don't work like they'll fire anyone else," he said.

The educational club was organized by former inmate Clarence Dennis, now a resident of Port Alberni on Vancouver Island, in 1965.

Mr. Pugsley said the ultimate object of the club "is to fold up for lack of Indian members.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

NANAIMO (CP) — Michel Lalain, 25, of nearby Wellington, was committed for trial Friday after pleading not guilty in provincial court in this Vancouver Island community to possession of cannabis resin, a derivative of marijuana.

He was released on $3,500 bail. No trial date was set.
